Washington Plans To Defer Pushing Arms Conference

Administration Decides Time Is Not Ripe for Pressure on Foreign Nations To Pay Debts.

PATIENCE ADVISED BY STATE OFFICIALS

Declare Public Discussion of Arms Conference Would Not Be Timely at Present.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, April 7.—As to what progress is being made in the two main fields of America's foreign relations, debts and another limitation of armament conference, we have advice from the highest authorities to the effect that public discusson just now would not be helpful.

To that judgment, nearly every thoughtful person in Washington will agree, because of some events that happened recently. The judgment is sound not only as to events immediately in hand, but in the broadest sense. One European country in debt to us is just now passing through a political and financial crisis. That the American government would do nothing to embarrass a government so situated and would take no unsympathetic step, goes without saying.

Restraint Is Urged.

For broader reasons, the expectation of another limitation of armament conference would not be furthered by public discussion just now. And on the broadest grounds of all, there is need of self-imposed restraint in several quarters.

The desirability of open diplomacy must be conceded, but there are questions about the time and manner in which the openness should emerge. The fact is, a steady process goes on in the field of international dispatches which is definitely harmful. Two recent cases are sufficient illustration.

In Paris, in January, America signed an agreement. Immediately thereafter, French politicians said things about that agreement designed to commend the agreement and themselves to the French people. M. Clementel, for example, said: "America's participation in the Dawes' annuities is beyond price; it has cost us nothing. We should have been glad to pay highly for it." That speech was calculated to make the French people think M. Clementel is a very fine person and had done a fine thing for France. British politicians and Belgian politicians said similar things with similar purposes.

Have Different Sound.

Thereafter, the American correspondents in Europe picked out of those speeches the parts most likely to interest America. To an American audience these quotations had quite a different effect. Senator Hiram Johnson said things. Thereupon, the reverse of the process took place. Those passages from the speeches of American politicians most likely to interest Europe were cabled over there. The quotations from American politicians were as disturbing to European readers as the quotations from European politicians were to American readers.

And so the thing went on in an endless circle. We know now that it was all for nothing, because there was nothing wrong about America's signature to the Paris agreement.

More recently, just a few days ago, the same process went on with respect to America's suggestion of a conference for the further limitation of armament. Indeed, the same thing goes on frequently as between America and France, as between America and Japan, as between America and various other countries. What sounds right in America sounds wrong in France or Japan and vice versa. Neither the correspondents nor the papers are primarily to blame. It is rather the politicians of the various countries who need to learn a larger sense of responsibility.

Seek Popularity.

Politicians in each country say things designed to make them popular with their own people. If these things include phrases likely to seem unpleasant to the people of another country, the politicians either forget that or ignore it. Americans have no votes in Japan or France. Frenchmen and Japanese have no votes in America. Politicians of all countries must learn that an arrangement or a conference between two countries must be good for both countries, or otherwise it should not be made or held. In their speeches, they must reflect the mutual good, and not merely emphasize the advantage to their own country in such a way as to seem to imply disadvantage to the other. The point of view and these wise considerations will account, among other things, for a diminution in the quantity of dispatches from Washington about foreign affairs this week.

FATHER OF DEAD VETERAN DONATES TO LEGION DRIVE

MEMORY OF DEAD HONORED BY CHECK

With little more than $8,000 yet to raise to complete Atlanta's quota in the American Legion endowment fund drive, leaders of the movement had their attention drawn to a plan which was suggested to them in a letter received late Tuesday afternoon from Charles D. Montgomery, with which he inclosed a check as a memorial to his son, who died at the front during the world war.

With this idea in mind, Judge Shephard Bryan, chairman of the local drive, stated that he wished the people of Atlanta to consider the spirit in which Mr. Montgomery's contribution was made and to invite others to contribute in a like manner.

Montgomery's Letter.

Mr. Montgomery's letter to Legion officials follows:

"Dear friends of my boy: I have been watching the progress of your drive with great interest and I cannot understand why you, the men who sacrificed so much, should now have to bear the brunt of securing funds to care for your 'buddies' and the orphans of those who have passed on into eternity.

"It is a shame that the people of Atlanta have not responded voluntarily with their help to raise this fund for you, without your having to go out and ask the citizens to support a cause which is indeed theirs and not yours.

"I have thought of an idea which I believe will appeal to the people of Atlanta and here it is: One hundred and forty boys of Fulton county died on the battlefields of France. I believe, besides myself, there are 139 other citizens of Atlanta who will give at least $50 in memory of each of those boys who gave their lives for us.

Son Was Honored.

"My only son, Charlie Montgomery, gave his all and lies in Flanders field among the poppies. The first American Legion post in Georgia was named for him, an honor which I, his father, appreciate very deeply.

"In his memory I inclose $50, with the hope that others may follow this example and subscribe a like amount for each of those names appearing on the honor roll at Pershing Point.

"I cannot believe the people of this city have so far forgotten the sacrifices made by these boys as to fail to rally to their memory and do justice to the orphan children of those who lost their lives.

"Devotedly yours,

(Signed) "Charles D. Montgomery."

With contributions amounting to about $17,000 to the American Legion endowment fund, which were turned in up until Tuesday night, the second day of the drive came to a close.

MARCONI REPORTED TO WED GIRL OF 18

London, April 7.—The Daily Express says it understands that the engagement will be announced shortly of Guglielmo Marconi, the wireless inventor, and Elizabeth Narcissa Payneter, 18-year-old daughter of Colonel George Camborne Beauclerk Payneter, of Bosquenna, Cornwall, an intimate friend of Signor Marconi.

Signor Marconi, who is 51 years old, was divorced last year at Fiume and his wife soon afterward married the Marquis di Montecorona. Colonel Payneter is the commander of the Scots Guards.

INTERSTATE PACT PLAN IS RECEIVING COOLIDGE BACKING

System Is Being Given Trial Now as Cure for Increasing Growth of Federal Bureaus.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, April 7.—To reduce to a minimum the growth of federal bureaus complained of by Senator Borah, the administration is trying to popularize the idea of interstate treaties.

By this method many matters of sectional concern can be dealt with by mutual compacts between the states affected. Wherever this can be done it eliminates the necessity of action by the federal government and the inevitable creation of another expensive bureau at Washington.

This method has been advocated and employed in several instances. The latest suggestion is to apply it to the campaign against the cotton boll weevil, which destroys millions of dollars' worth of crops in southern states every year. President Coolidge made the suggestion in his address to the cotton manufacturers here. For thirty years the weevil has resisted the onslaughts of science. Now it is proposed to starve it out of existence by discontinuing the growth of cotton, year by year in successive zones.

Treaty Is Suggested.

"A suggestion was made to a convention of the cotton growing interests three or four years ago that the foundation for such cooperation might be laid if the cotton states would enter into a treaty among themselves pledging cooperation in executing it," the president said. "There are several examples of such interstate treaties for the accomplishment of ends which could not be attained by the states acting separately. I believe the suggestion has much practical value and that, if the cotton states would act upon it, they would find the national government prepared to give all possible assistance and encouragement to the program."

The most notable of the examples of interstate compacts referred to is the Colorado water power pact negotiated by the seven state—California, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming and Nevada. All of the states have ratified it except Arizona where the legislature has been deadlocked. California has suggested that if Arizona finally acts adversely, that the other six states proceed in a six-power compact. This interstate treaty was negotiated largely through the initiative and leadership of Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Another compact has been suggested between Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho, involving Columbia river waterpower. Secretary Hoover has advocated the same method of dealing with the fisheries problems.

Application of this principle can be

Pension in Old Age Is Voted In California

Bill Passes Senate and Goes to Assembly and Governor.

Sacramento, Calif., April 8.—Establishment of an old age pension system and appointment of a commission to administer it was provided for in a bill which passed the senate today. If the assembly and the governor approve the measure, under its provisions and subject to the restrictions of the act "every person, while residing in the state of California, shall be entitled to a pension in old age," the pension could not exceed $1 a day.

Qualifications for pensions would make pension allowances possible only to those who have attained the age of 70 years, have resided in California at least fifteen years preceding date of application.

Inmates of prisons, jails, work houses, infirmaries, insane asylums, poor houses and other public institutions would not be entitled to an old age pension.

RUMANIAN QUEEN SENDS GREETINGS TO U. S. MOTHERS

New York, April 7.—A greeting from Queen Marie, of Rumania, to all American mothers on child health day to be observed in America on May 12 has been received through the American Child Health association. Queen Marie cabled from Bucharest, saying she regretted that the illness of her husband, King Ferdinand, made it impossible for her to accept the invitation of the association to visit America for May day.

"As a mother of a country who has suffered much, I send, on the occasion of your great national celebration, my greetings to all American mothers," her message said. "Here in Rumania with love we are working for the same great cause which binds hearts together even beyond the seas."

(Signed) "MARIE."

CONDEMNED BOYS' NEW TRIAL MOTION EXPECTED TODAY

Taylor County Youths Condemned to Death for Murder Confident of New Trial.

Columbus, Ga., April 7.—Indications tonight were that an extraordinary motion for new trial would be filed in Taylor superior court tomorrow for Willie Jones and Gervis Bloodworth, according to advices from Butler. Reports were that attorneys for the condemned youths were completing the motion, which is based on the claim that L. V. Smith, one of the trial jurors, is related to Mrs. Howard F. Underwood, widow of the man slain December 3, 1923, by Willie Jones and Gervis Bloodworth.

In case the motion is filed tomorrow, it is expected that the hearing will be held at Butler Thursday. It was indicated that it would be conducted by Judge Z. A. Littlejohn, of the southwestern circuit. Judge C. Frank McLaughlin, of the Chattahoochee circuit, being disqualified.

Jones and Bloodworth, in the Muscogee county jail here, are confident that they will get a new trial. Four dates have been set for their execution on the gallows, but their appointed attorneys have succeeded in saving their lives each time.

SCIENTISTS PLAN BIG ADVANCEMENT IN OIL RESEARCH

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—A vast program of oil research has been framed by a commission of 11 leading scientists, and its operation only awaits the sanction of the financial leaders of this industry, Dr. Charles H. Herty, of New York, president of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers association, declared in an address today before the division of industrial and engineering chemistry of the American chemical society in session here.

Entrance of the research chemists into this field will greatly enhance the national wealth, asserted Dr. Herty, describing amazing advances in synthetic organic chemical manufacture in the United States.

Appropriate financial provisions, now under consideration, will inaugurate a new epoch in American oil in the belief of Dr. Herty.

Remarkable Phenomenon.

"Our great national asset of petroleum," he said, "presents a remarkable phenomenon, yet somewhat typical of the past history of our industry. It is estimated that about nine billion dollars have been invested in the American Petroleum industry. The raw material, crude oil, has in the past been subjected only to certain physical processes, chiefly fractional distillation, with a limited amount of purification by simple chemical methods, the resultant products being used chiefly for fuel, lighting and lubrication.

"Chemical work in this field has been devoted largely to control of mechanical operations."

Mass production will profoundly influence the future of the synthetic organic chemical industry, said Dr. Herty, further on in his address. He warned that a monster dye monopoly is forming in Germany with government aid to capture the exports markets of the world.

"Somewhere contraction must take place," added Dr. Herty, "and I know of no more important question

COURT SUIT TO DECIDE WOMAN'S CLAIM

Washington, April 7.—The federal government has taken a hand in unraveling a case of mistaken identity, in which a mother, whose son was officially reported killed in France, claims as that son another man who swears he was never in the army.

The man is Arthur Lopez, now in a veterans' bureau hospital at Minneapolis, Minn. Mrs. Hannah Frazier, of Martin, S. D., claims that he is her son, Arthur Frazier, reported killed in France. Her husband, the Rev. Charles Frazier, has become skeptical through repeated denials of Lopez, who has benefited materially in spite of the denials.

In order to settle the case, Director Hines, of the veterans' bureau, who recently went to Minneapolis to investigate, has had Lopez institute a suit in the federal district court at Minneapolis alleging that he is Frazier, in order to have the matter cleared up by the courts.

Mrs. Frazier has refused to take insurance for the death of her son, insistently claiming that Lopez is her missing boy.

It is alleged that Lopez, working about the Indian reservation at Ponca City, Okla., was visited one day by Gregory Lesserd, of Martin, S. D., who was looking for his brother, also reported missing in France. Lopez was posing as a veteran, wearing an old uniform said to have been given him. Lesserd, when he returned to his home, carried a picture of Lopez.

Mrs. Frazier saw it. She immediately said it was a picture of her son, and with her husband went to Ponca City. Lopez, it is said, first denied he was Arthur Frazier, but upon the mother's insistence, admitted it. He consented, he said, later, in order to get a home, his mother and father having died when he was nine years old.

He then went to the veterans' bureau hospital at Minneapolis to be treated for an alleged injury he had received in the service, and also received government compensation.

Finger prints of Lopez have been compared with those of Frazier on file here and they do not match. Lopez has admitted the hoax.

It was through insistence of Sioux Indians that he adopted his pose as an ex-soldier, Lopez says in an affidavit on file at the department of justice here. Wearing a uniform, he was asked if he was a soldier. He denied it, he said, but the Indians refused to believe him, so he became a soldier.

CASE ALMOST PARALLEL TO ONE IN ATLANTA.

The case described in the above dispatch is almost a duplication of the St. Clair-Bergeron incident at the Atlanta federal penitentiary several months ago. In this case, a prisoner at the pententiary named St. Clair declared he was Urban Bergeron, Wisconsin war hero supposed to have been slain in France. Parents of Bergeron came here and identified St. Clair, who was able to discuss the early life of Bergeron with superficial accuracy. Mrs. Stella Emmerich, sister of the Wisconsin soldier, also came here; pronounced Bergeron an imposter, and after arousing the ire of her parents, finally convinced them that St. Clair was not their son. She forced the prisoner to sign a statement that he was not Bergeron.

HERRIOT WINS POINT IN BATTLE FOR LEVY ON FRENCH CAPITAL

Fire Set To Burn Snakes And Weevils Sweeps Twiggs

MANY UNOCCUPIED HOUSES ALSO BURN

Jeffersonville, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Many thousand acres of cut-over land a few miles west of this place have been swept by fire within the past two weeks. A number of tenant houses mostly unoccupied, have been burned and the excuse given for the spread of the flames is an effort to exterminate boll weevils.

This practice of burning over vast acreage of timbered land in effort to destroy the cotton pest was begun by ignorant negroes, who it is believed here, thought by starting a fire all the pests and snakes would be burned.

Some of the large land owners are being severely criticized for permitting tenants to set fires and allow them to spread to other property.

The young pine forests are totally ruined and every year sees thousands of acres of young trees burned that, within 20 years would have sufficient growth to be used and sold as saw timber.

Efforts, it is said, will be made to check this yearly practice of flagrant disregard of property rights when setting out fires.

The vast area burned recently comprises some of the most valuable lands in the state and a great portion of which is uncultivated and did have a great amount of young pine trees.

The fire has swept clean all the small timber as far as the Southern railroad on the western end of the county, especially between Savage and Flat Creeks. This territory that was once the best hunting ground for quail in the county, since being fired, for the past four years each spring, has caused the birds to hunt other breeding grounds and there were very few coveys reported found by hunters last season.

GREATEST AIRSHIP CARRIER IN WORLD LAUNCHED BY U. S.

Carrier Pigeons Bear Tidings to President; Mrs. Wilbur Christens Craft With Water.

Camden, N. J., April 7.—An experiment, as significant of the ultimate evolution of naval warfare, perhaps, as was the first trial of iron armor plating on battleships, was initiated today by the United States navy in the launching of the U. S. S. Saratoga, which will be commissioned the world's largest airplane carrier.

In the words of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, and other high naval officials, the Saratoga, being the pioneer of her type, is an unknown quantity in a new field of military combat—the air. Heretofore the United States navy has not possessed airplane launching vessels and carriers of more than small auxiliary size. Therefore, the possibilities of this 33,000-ton steel monster, with its awkward-appearing flat deck and its giant electric motors, which will drive it at a 33-knot speed, will be tested critically.

Mother to Brood of 72.

The Saratoga will be mother to a brood of 72 planes, 31 of which will be bombers. Beside the planes, stores of explosives, and aircraft parts, with repair shops will constitute part of her equipment. Her great speed will enable the air force to range far ahead of the battleships, transporting a veritable nest of hornets to the enemy wherever located. It is a new phase of naval maneuvering, naval officers agree.

The U. S. S. Lexington, sister-ship of the Saratoga, will be launched at Quincy, Mass., next fall. Both vessels originally were planned as battle cruisers, but under the Washington disarmament treaty were redesigned. The vessel will measure 850 feet at the water line. The turbine generators will harness 45,000 horsepower to each of the four screws, which surpasses the total manpower of a city the size of Philadelphia.

With the jocular instructions from her husband "to give her a good swipe, now," Mrs. Curtis D. Wilbur, wife of the secretary of the navy, broke the bottle of mineral water over the big ship's bow, watched by thousands of spectators. Whistles from craft on the Delaware mingled their din with

Scene Created In Court Room By Jazz Girl

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

San Francisco, April 7.—Dorothy Ellingson, 17-year-old matricide on trial for her sanity before a jury in superior court here, interrupted the proceedings this afternoon by hurling a glass of water at her attorneys and denouncing them bitterly.

"You can't talk about me like that!" cried the girl, smashing a bottle of smelling salts on the table by way of emphasis. "Wait until I take the stand and tell about it!"

She then wept, and Judge Louderback ordered a brief recess.

The outburst came during the cross-examination of Edward W. Twitchell, a prosecution alienist, who had testified that he considered the girl sane. Sylvester J. McAtee, of defense counsel, had been asking the witness about the incidents surrounding the death of Mrs. Anna Ellingson, whom Dorothy

NATIONAL CAPITAL WAGING DRASTIC TRAFFIC CRUSADE

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, April 7.—A war on traffic violators, under a stringent code of regulations which may be copied in other cities, is being waged here in the national capital without fear or favor.

Citizens who never saw the inside of a police court before are taking their turn before judges who are meting out hard-boiled justice and a "night traffic court," which threatens to become famous, has just begun operation.

Washington's traffic czar is M. O. Eldridge, recently appointed and already getting results. Eldridge, with wide powers as director of traffic, has become much more important here to the average citizen with a car than President Coolidge. The new traffic director was formerly an official of the American Automobile Association, and his work and policies are expected to serve as a model for other communities.

Quick Sentences

Speedy justice is Eldridge's way. When a man is arrested for a major traffic violation now, he is carried immediately by the arresting officer to the nearest police station. The first day under the new system an automobilist was sentenced by the judge of the traffic court within ten minutes after his arrest.

Eldridge is determined that those who drive cars be responsible people and for this purpose he will install a new system requiring mental, moral and physical fitness before a driver's permit is issued. A tempo-

CHICAGO REFUSES TO BUY RAILWAY

Proposed Municipal Acquisition and Extensions Would Have Cost City $700,000,000.

Chicago, April 7.—Chicago voters today rejected a proposal for purchase by the city of the street railways and elevated lines and the building of a subway, said to be the largest municipal ownership project ever attempted, by a majority of nearly 100,000 votes.

With the rejection of the ordinance for purchase of the city transportation system there also went by the board a proposition for municipal operation of the lines, which it was proposed to buy, by about the same majority.

The proposed municipal acquisition and extension of the surface and elevated lines and the building of a subway would have involved an expenditure of $700,000,000 with a forty year period provided for payment for the properties out of earnings of the lines. The proposal which was rejected involved the payment of $162,843,584 for the surface lines, $85,000,000 for the elevated railways, and an appropriation of $268,301,000 for 465 miles of extensions of these systems, while a start on a subway was to have been made with $40,000,000 already available from the city's share of the street railway earnings. The franchise under which the street railway lines operate expires in about two years. The proposal provided for a municipal board of control to operate the municipality-owned systems.

TREASURY BATTLE IN FRANCE BRINGS POLITICAL CRISIS

4 BILLION RAISE LIKELY TO PASS

Paris, April 8.—Premier Herriot has won the first round of his battle to cram a capital levy down unwilling French throats.

By a vote of 18 to 14, the chamber of deputies finance committee decided this morning not to divide the double-barreled government financial program into two distinct measures. The measure will be considered as one bill of two parts. This is a triumph for Herriot and Finance Minister De Monzie.

The committee is hostile to the government plan despite the favorable vote. The socialist project which has been hanging fire for some time to introduce a straight capital levy bill without a provision for interest into the chamber will be considered by the committee more to indicate its lack of faith in the government measure than in expectation that the socialist bill could be passed. The committee considers the government plan a mere expedient.

Insists on Perpetual Loan.

Finance Minister Anatole de Monzie appeared before the committee Tuesday night to insist that his plan of a voluntary perpetual loan from French capital was the only method whereby world confidence in the franc could be restored and the committee immediately attempted to separate the government project into two measures:

1. Increase the Bank of France note emission limit from 41,000,000,000 to 45,000,000,000 francs.

2. A voluntary loan of 10 per cent from French capital.

De Monzie refused to agree to the separation of the government program and a long fight followed.

While Herriot and De Monzie struggled with the financial problem, M. Francois-Albert, minister of education, was battling in the senate for approval of his action in suspending the dean of the Sorbonne law school after Sorbonne students had rioted in opposition to the government's selection of a professor.

Senator Blaigan proposed that the minister be censured and this was done by a reduction in the estimates for his department. As Francois-Albert did not make the question one of confidence, the censure may not cause his resignation.

The introduction of the government's financial program into the chamber was an anti-climax. The galleries and

POPULATION JUMPS IN FLORIDA CITIES

Orlando, Fla., April 7.—Fifteen cities of southern Florida during the past five years made a total gain in population of 94,937, or a net percentage gain of 116 plus, according to a compilation of figures just made public by the various towns and the Orange County Chamber of Commerce.

The figures show that in 1920 the total population of the 15 towns was 81,162, while at present the population is 175,301.

Miami ranked first in gain of population with 71,419 at present and 29,571 in 1920, making a gain of 41,848 in the past five years. Orlando was second with a present population of 22,273 and a 1920 population of 9,282 or a gain of 12,991 during the prescribed period. Miami's percentage gain was 141, while that of Orlando was 140. Lakeland had a percentage gain of 141 but its population gain did not equal that of Orlando, the former city gaining 9,984 in the past five years, making its present population 17,046.

Unusual Tangle In Criminal Law Forecast in Case

Claiming that seduction is not a crime in the state of Georgia and that Marion Davis, of DeKalb county, is being unlawfully detained by the Georgia prison commission, attorneys for Davis, Tuesday filed habeas corpus papers, demanding that the commission order the release of the prisoner, who now is serving a sentence of seven to ten years in a DeKalb county convict camp.

The petition sets out that Davis was convicted by a jury at the March, 1922, term of DeKalb county court on charges of seduction. It alleges that the offense is not a crime in this state, since it never has been written into the Georgia code. The petition alleges that the offense is a crime under the common law, but that a statute was never enacted by the Georgia legislature, and the offense therefore, is not a crime in this state.

William G. McRae and George F. Finch are attorneys for Davis. The hearing is set for April 11, before Judge John D. Humphries.

Attorney McRae also in conjunction with the habeas corpus action, filed a petition asking for a rule ordering R. E. Davison, T. E. Patterson and E. L. Rainey, Georgia prison commissioners, also named as defendants in the habeas corpus proceeding, and V. L. Stanley, secretary of the commission, to allow him free access to records of the commission.

Attorney Finch represents Attorney McRae in his suit. McRae claims Stanley declined to produce records for which he asked. Judge Humphries will hear this petition April 18.

OWLS PLANNING SPECIAL PROGRAM AT BIG WIGWAM

A free entertainment is planned by the Fraternal Order of Owls Thursday night at the wigwam, it was announced by Sidney Johnson, state director of the order.

J. Ed Walker, of East Point, will speak briefly on the purposes of the order, followed by a musical program by the Louisiana Aces' orchestra, adopted as the regular orchestra for the Owls. The musical program will be followed by a dance.

BEAUTIFUL EASTER PLAY TO BE STAGED

Miss Mary Brent Whiteside's play, "Interlude," will be presented Friday night at the Liberal Christian church, on West Peachtree street by the Theater guild of Atlanta, it was announced Tuesday. It will have a second showing Sunday night at the church.

Several of Booth Tarkington's plays, including "Clarence" and "Seventeen," will be produced by the guild. The cast is being directed by Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson.

CIRCUS LURE INVADES SCHOOLS OF ATLANTA

The odor of the sawdust arena and the lure of the white tops have infected the schools of Atlanta and thousands of children are looking forward to six big days and nights of enjoyment next week when the three-ring circus of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan will be staged at Spiller park for the benefit of the Confederate Soldiers' home.

This is the first circus of this magnitude which has appeared in Atlanta in the spring of the year and is the first of the more pretentious outdoor shows to fill a week's engagement in Atlanta. The klan circus committee issued a statement Tuesday declaring that the show will be complete in every respect and every type of circus novelty from the aerialists down to the happy clowns will be offered.

"No greater array of champion circus performers ever appeared here before in the spring of the year than will come in the big show to be given for the John B. Gordon klan, No. 91, by the Fraternal Circus company," the committee announced. "This organization has filled successful engagements in Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and a dozen other large cities of the country. It is strictly an outdoor attraction and is not to be confused with some of the indoor circuses which have been presented in Atlanta in the past."

As a special added attraction to the regular circus performance a world's congress of daredevils will be staged, which will bring to Atlanta some of the most thrilling and most sensational outdoor acts in the world. Among the daredevils will be the Great Fussner and his spiral tower, the Marvelous Mills in "Frolics in the Air," Mme. Constance, queen of all high-divers, the Sensational Meredith in his aerial loop-the-loop, and the Great Valliance, who performs a double somersault high in the air without the aid of a net.

EASTMAN RETIRES AS KODAK COMPANY HEAD ON TUESDAY

Jersey City, N. J., April 7.—George Eastman, builder of the great kodak business which bears his name, today retired from active direction of the Eastman Kodak company, relinquishing the offices of president and general manager, which he hasheld since 1919. In assuming the chairmanship of the board of directors, a newly-created position, Mr. Eastman, however, will continue his official relations with the company.

An amendment to the by-laws creating the office of chairman of the board was approved by stockholders and the retiring directors were reelected. At an early meeting of the board Mr. Eastman will be formally chosen chairman: William G. Stuber, president of the company, and Frank W. Lovejoy, general manager.

Eggs For Easter

OURS ARE LAID ESPECIALLY FOR US BY PARTICULAR HENS

We have said this many times in our advertising and some of our friends are inclined to think that it is simply a slogan or that our advertising man is trying to be funny. Neither is the case; our statement is literally true.

Four years ago we discontinued the practice of promiscuous buying of eggs and made arrangements to secure our entire supply, as far as possible, from special poultry farms, taking their selected fresh eggs for our trade.

Today we are taking the entire production of YARD EGGS from 42 such farms and our connections and arrangements are such that these eggs are rarely more than three days old when offered to our customers, and in the great majority of cases are less than three days old.

Therefore, it must be plain to you that when we say that our Yard Eggs are laid especially for us by particular hens it is literally true and not a trade slogan. These are the very best we can get.

Special Services To Mark Closing of Revival Series In Progress In 91 Churches

Theatrical Folk To Attend Special Service To Be Held Sunday Night at St. Paul's Methodist.

One of the unique features of general revivals now being held in Atlanta churches will be a special meeting for theatrical people which will be held next Sunday night at St. Paul's Methodist church, it was announced Tuesday. Invitations have been extended to all persons engaged in the theatrical business in Atlanta to attend the services.

The musical program at this service will be handled by a special orchestra of members of the various theaters in Atlanta. Miss Nora Allen, Signor Volpi and other widely known musicians will appear on this program.

Methodist churches are swinging into the last phase of their revival campaigns and there is much activity at many of the churches. Special programs for each service have been arranged at these churches.

Special Closing Services.

Plans to close the revivals with special services on Easter Sunday night have been formed by the churches of the various denominations which have not yet ended their campaigns. The pastors of the churches report numerous conversions and many new additions to the church roster.

A few Methodist churches concluded their special revival efforts last Sunday with large ingatherings of new converts. Services are to be continued this week by those churches that began special meetings last Sunday. Among those in revivals this week are Trinity church, Park Street church, Center Street church, Payne Memorial, Bethany and Oakland City.

Rev. C. M. Meeks, pastor of the Park Street church, states that the meeting there began with the most auspicious start he has ever observed. Dr. S. R. Belk, of Grace church, is assisting in that meeting, and the Wisdom sisters, of Missouri, are conducting special song services.

The Park street services will continue throughout the week and until April 19, with services each night.

At Trinity church Rev. Wallace Rogers, pastor-evangelist, the special meeting has gotten underway with a most promising prospect. Mr. Rogers will preach each evening at 7:30 o'clock, with a special service for young people next Friday afternoon. For tonight's sermon he will preach on the subject, "A Difference of Estimate," and the service will be sponsored by the Woman's Missionary society.

Services Continue.

At the Wesley Memorial Methodist church services will continue through the week till Easter Sunday, with the evangelistic efforts being led by Messrs. Neal and Poulter, of Texas and Oklahoma, respectively. The Wesley Memorial meetings are attracting wide-spread attention, according to Rev. Marvin Williams, pastor in charge.

On Wednesday night Mr. Neal will hold another special service for men only, with women present, and will preach on the subject, "A Miserly Spendthrift." For Thursday night he will preach to women only, with men present, on the subject, "The Hope of America." Friday night will be young people's night. An impressive feature of the Wesley Memorial services has been the large number of penitents going to the altar and asking for prayer.

Activities continue at the St. Paul Methodist church, where Rev. L. Wilkie Collins is pastor-evangelist. The special revival campaign closed Sunday, but follow-up efforts are being made this week, and other converts will be received into the church next Sunday.

On Wednesday night Mr. Collins will deliver a special discourse for the new converts, preaching on the subject, "How To Succeed in the Christian Life." All new members for the St. Paul church will be received into full fellowship Easter Sunday morning.

Rev. V. L. Bray, pastor-evangelist at Bethany Methodist church, is holding meetings at that church this week each night. The revival began Sunday, and so far nine have united with the church. A special feature of the services is the music, which is led by Clifford Groover.

Rev. Felton Williams, of Toccoa, is assisting Rev. A. S. Hutchinson, pastor, in holding services each day at 3:30 and 7:30 p. m.

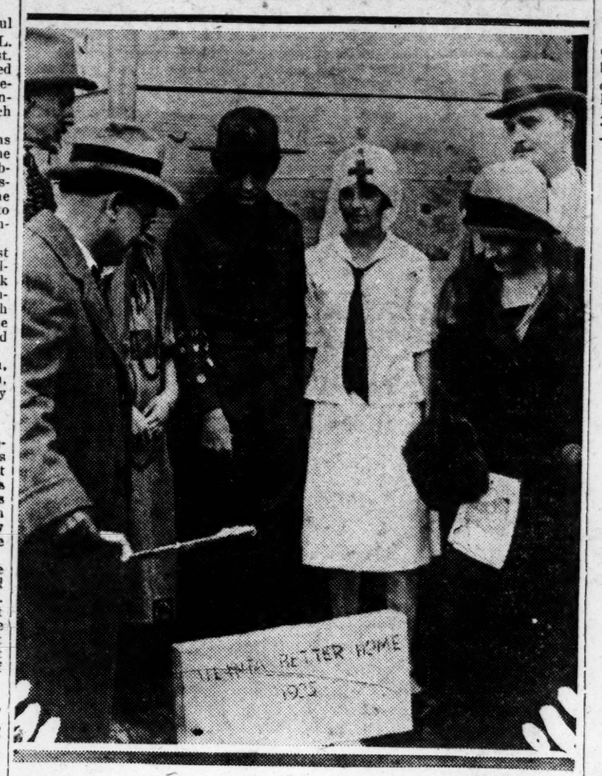

Noted Teacher Active.

Continuing to pack the North Avenue Presbyterian church at both his afternoon and evening services, as it has never been packed before in its history, Dr. William Evans, of Los Angeles, Cal., internationally known Bible teacher and writer, Tuesday night took up his third phase of the question, "What After Death?"

Expressing no patience with those who claim the title of Christians, and deny the existence of an actual hell, Dr. Evans said he would assume that his hearers had studied the Bible enough for themselves to realize that there is an actual hell. In support of this he pointed to the parable of the "rich man and Lazarus."

"Now a sailor must trim his sails." "I'll like that part," said the girl who is learning to steer. "What sort of trimming is stylish in sea circles?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Better Home" Cornerstone Laid

Ceremonies were in charge of members of the Atlanta Committee of Better Homes in America and the stone was dedicated to home lovers in Atanta. The cornerstone was set in place by Professor J. L. Smith, owner of the home, which is located at Barnett street and Forest way. He was assisted by Keller Melton, the builder; Thornton Marye, supervising architect, and others. Demonstration week, marking the culmination of the ceremonies, is slated for May 10-19.

Hollomon Makes Two Addresses in North Georgia Communities

Young Harris, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—The faculty and entire student body of Young Harris college was addressed this morning by James A. Hollomon, associate editor of The Atlanta Constitution. He spoke on "The Eternal Principles of Life," taking his cue from that expression used by Dr. Sharp, the president, in the opening prayer.

Mr. Hollomon spoke Monday to 1,000 people at Blairsville in Union county, under the auspices of the Union County Good Roads association in celebration of its tenth anniversary. Judge Jones adjourned court immediately after the charge to the grand jury for the address. He was introduced by former Senator Pat Harrelson. On this occasion his address was on "ommunity Democracy."

Gainesville, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Gainesville's street car company was sold at public auction today for approximately $8,200, the city's paving assessment against the company. T. E. Atkins, president of the State Banking company, acting for J. H. Reynolds, bought the property. It is stated that it will be sold as junk.

The town's ten miles of street car tracks, and equipment, cost $100,000, it is estimated, and the system has not paid for several years, due to the inroads made on its earnings by private automobiles.

A bus line has been established between Gainesville and New Holland, a distance of two miles.

New Orleans-Cleveland Air Mail Route Plan Declared Feasible

Birmingham, Ala., April 7.—An air-mail route from New Orleans to Cleveland, Ohio, connecting with the transcontinental route is a feasible plan if backed by a reliable firm of commercial aviators, Paul Henderson, assistant postmaster general and chief of the air-mail service, told a group of more than 50 persons from Alabama, Kentucky and Tennessee here today.

Thomas H. Huff, president of the Huff-Deland Aircraft association, declared the project would be a money-making project from a contractor's point of view. The proposed route would touch Birmingham, Nashville, Louisville and Dayton. Change in the northern destination from Chicago to Cleveland was suggested by Mr. Henderson.

Representatives of the Nashville and Louisville chambers of commerce and others presented a mass of data to the postoffice official to prove the feasibility of the air-mail route.

Details have been completed for a test flight Monday from Birmingham to Chicago, the plane touching at Nashville and Louisville to pick up mail en route.

BEHRMAN WINNING IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, April 7.—Early returns from today's municipal election indicated that Martin Behrman, democratic nominee for mayor, and his entire ticket was polling a ratio of about 17 to 1 over the republican ticket headed by Lionell J. Gottschalk.

Two wards complete gave the democrats 4,696 and the republicans 269.

This was the first time in many years opposition was offered the nominees of the democratic party. In the final days of the campaign a factional quarrel broke out in the republican ranks which was believed to have kept many republicans from the polls today.

CROSSTOWN EXPRESS IS SUED FOR $40,000

The Crosstown Express, Inc., Tuesday was made defendant in two suits totaling $40,000 for alleged damages sustained by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kilgore, when one of the large busses, formerly operated by the bus company, and a street car of the Georgia Railway & Power company collided on Stewart avenue. Although the Crosstown concern ceased operation when the Atlanta anti-jitney ordinance went into effect, suits were entered and will be heard in Fulton superior court.

The crash occurred February 10. Mrs. Kilgore asks $25,000 damages and her husband seeks to recover $15,000. Lawton Nally is representing the petitioners.

Lithonia is giving a banquet in connection with the convention and it is expected that a full attendance of DeKalb Odd Fellows will be present, together with a number of distinquished visitors.

MAN SERVES TERM IN N. Y. PRISON IN HOSPITAL BED

Ossining, N. Y., April 7.—Sometimes justice does silly things.

Charles H. Ford is a prisoner in Sing Sing, serving a term of from one to two years, which began last January, when he was convicted of abandoning his family.

He was helpless from paralysis when he arrived and has been a patient in the prison hospital ever since.

Tuesday the doctors completed their diagnosis of his case. He can never walk again, they said.

But unless some authority intervenes to release him he will have to stay in Sing Sing until the orderlies carry him out on a stretcher at the expiration of his time.

Legitimate Cotton Trade Associations Endorsed By Commerce Secretary

Hoover Approves Maintenance of Sound Statistical Service and Contract Practice Uniformity.

Washington, April 7.—Approval of legitimate trade associations and maintenance by them of sound statistical service, together with uniformity in contract practice, was reiterated by Secretary Hoover today in a brief address at the commerce department to delegates attending the semi-annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

Nine of Mr. Hoover's assistants, in three-minute talks, also outlined their specific work to the cotton men, after the delegates had completed a tour of the bureau of standards laboratories and other agencies of the department.

Population growth and assured transportation have had their effect on commerce, Mr. Hoover told the manufacturers, adding that the latter had a tendency to reduce individual orders by assuring retailers of speedy delivery. Although this "thrusts upon the manufacturers the burden of the country's stock," the secretary saw no remedy for the situation, and the industry will "have to accommodate itself to it as long as we have an effective transportation machine."

Knowledge of raw material and stocks on hand make for stability of industry, Mr. Hoover observed, in advocating a sound statistical service. He declared he saw no way of obtaining representation in industry without trade associations, and that the number of these engaged in fixing prices and production against public interest are "in an extremely small minority."

A knowledge of current prices open to the public, he said, is insurance against fraud and misrepresentation, although information disseminated within a group for the control of price movement is against public interest.

Alfred P. Dennis, the new member of the tariff commission, who also addressed the delegates briefly, likened the commerce department to "the greatest transforming station in the world," into which a fund of information poured from all parts of the world to be expended for the benefit of business in this country.

Slayer Blames Desire To See Death Agonies

Medina, Ohio, April 7.—Her strange "funeral complex" and a desire to see others suffer the agonies of death caused Mrs. Martha Wise, who was indicted Tuesday for first degree murder, to poison 17 of her relatives, three of whom died.

Appearing before the county grand jury Tuesday, the accused woman described her brutal craving. She said that she was lured irresistibly by funerals because the grief of the mourners satiated her hunger for suffering. When there were not enough funerals in the neighborhood, she caused more by administering arsenic to her relatives.

The widow's own mother, Mrs. Sophie Hasel, was the first victim of her daughter's distorted yearning. Mrs. Hasel died in December.

In February, Mrs. Wise killed her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clarke.

The murder indictment, according to Prosecutor Joseph Seymour, was only a formality, as Mrs. Wise probably will be sent to a hospital for the insane.

Women Voters Get Magazine's Offer Of Valuable Prizes

The Atlanta League of Women Voters Tuesday received a telegram from The Woman Citizen magazine, which offers a prize to every member of winning teams in the membership drive now being conducted by the local association.

The Atlanta league has organized 21 squads composed of one captain and six members each, which are working this week to double the membership of the league. A minimum quota of six new members each has been assigned to each member of the squads, or a total of 42 new members for the whole squad. Membership in the league costs $1 a year.

Wednesday the booth at Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBase company will be in charge of Mrs. Wilbur L. Hunnicutt, of Kirkwood, and the one at Davison-Paxon-Stokes will be presided over by Mrs. L. L. McDaniel. As there are some four or five hundred members of the league, whose memberships fall due in April, leaders hope that these will all make an effort to visit these booths. A receipt is given at the booth. Later the treasurer mails the membership card, it is announced.

Mrs. N. A. Hughes, heading the Boulevard Park squad, will be hostess at the headquarters' tea Wednesday afternoon at 420 Connally building. All interested in the league or in hearing more about it are urged to attend.

The loving cup offered by the Atlanta league to the winning squad is on exhibit this week in J. P. Allen's window.

Athens Revival.

Athens, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Dr. Allyn K. Foster, educational secretary of the Northern Baptist church of New York has accepted an invitation to conduct a series of religious services on the campus of the University of Georgia from April 12 through April 17, it is announced.

The new municipal airplane landing field, to be located on Candler field, was approved by city and county officials Tuesday after a thorough inspection had been made and several officials had made flights with Beeler Blevans, commercial pilot, who is making the field his headquarters.

Commissioner I. N. Ragsdale, representing the Fulton county board, visited the field Tuesday and went over plans with others in connection with a request of city council that the board of commissioners grade the field. This grading, it is estimated, will cost about $5,000 and Commissioner Ragsdale's visit was to enable him to make definite recommendations on council's request, at the meeting next week of commissioners.

A topographic survey of the 300-acre tract recently was completed by W. A. Hansell, chief of construction, and it has been tentatively decided to locate the landing field in front of the old grand stand near the north end of the old race track. The field will be triangular in shape, with each side 1,500 feet long, giving approximately 25 acres with only a 2 per cent grade.

Among those present at the inspection Tuesday were Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, mayor pro tem.; Mr. Hansell, I. N. Ragsdale, member of the county commissioners, and representatives of the Atlanta Woman's club and the woman's auxiliary of the chamber of commerce.

Among those taken up by Mr. Blevens were Miss Susie Wailes, president of the woman's auxiliary of the chamber of commerce; Miss F. L. Bettis, chairman of the publicity committee of the same organization; Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the woman's club; Alderman Hartsfield and Mrs. Hansell.

The field has been leased by the city from Asa G. Candler, Jr., for a five-year period. Practically all civic organizations have approved council's action in leasing the property, and the Atlanta Woman's club has adopted special resolutions to this end.

SOCIALISTS LOSE IN PARLIAMENT

London, April 7.—The house of commons condemned socialism as a cure for society's ills after a tame debate Tuesday night when a laborite effort to wring a condemnation of the capitalistic system was voted down, 281 to 124.

Walter Windsor, labor member for Bethnal Green, asked the house to approve the following resolution:

"The destitute, impoverished condition of the working classes, which is inherent in the present economic and industrial system, constitutes a grave menace to social stability and industrial peace.

"No permanent solution of the problem is possible apart from progressive advances toward social ownership and democratic control of the staple industries and the banking system."

Debate on the resolution was brief and half-hearted. Sir Alfred Mond taunted the socialists with backsliding.

"The red wine of socialism has been watered down," Sir Alfred said, "and the red flags have had a coat of whitewash."

Lieutenant Colonel Herbert Spenderclay, a tory, introduced an amendment during the course of the debate.

"The well being of all classes being dependent upon the maintenance of the present economic system," Spenderclay's resolution read, "any attempt to undermine it constitutes a grave menace to society."

The amendment further set out that the solution of unemployment and low wages lay in the recovery of trade and the cooperation of all sections of the community. The amendment was put as a substantive resolution and carried with few more than half the members present.

FLORIDA IS CERTAIN TO HAVE BIG EXHIBIT

Preparations under way in adjoining states for exhibits in the Southern Exposition, to be held soon in New York, is adding impetus to Georgia's campaign for $20,000 for a similar exhibit, officials stated Tuesday. The latest state to give assurances of an exhibit in New York is Florida, the following telegram having been received by The Constitution Tuesday night from Richard H. Edmonds, editor of Manufacturers' Record, and one of the leaders in the Southern Exposition move.

The telegram follows:

"I am just in receipt of dispatch from Mr. J. W. Young, president of the Hollywood Land and Water company and also of the Florida Society of America, enthusiastically in favor of an adequate representation by Florida as a state and by individual activities in this state. In the course of his telegram Mr. Young says 'We are taking space at Southern Exposition in the name of Florida Society of America, displaying there our Florida industrial prize contest and the society's official publication, The Hollywood Magazine. We will also advertise the prize contest in New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia papers at the same time. The Florida Society will spend at least $40,000 directly contributory to our exhibit in New York, but not one cent of this amount is to advertise Hollywood as a development.

"It will be remembered that Mr. Young recently announced prizes amounting to $20,000, the first prize to be $10,000 for suggestions as to what manufacturing industries could be established to best advantage in Florida. In carrying forward that plan, which is of such tremendous importance to the state, Mr. Young has now arranged to make a big exhibit at the southern exposition and to spend in connection therewith $40,000 for the exhibit and details of handling it. This is the spirit which has made Florida what it is and if this spirit can be awakened in Georgia it will mightily help to duplicate in Georgia the prosperity now rampant in Florida.

Mother, 86, Sells "Tatting"

:: COLLEGE HEAD RECEIVES BILL AND LETTER ::

For $1 and Aids Mercer Fund

Macon, Ga., April 7.—(Special.) One lone dollar was enclosed. The letter was unsigned and bore no mark of identification. The postmark was dim and no one yet has been able to tell from where it it came.

Attached to the greenback was a brief note, a few lines telling of the struggle of a little, old lady, now 86 years old, to put her two sons through college.

She had worked nights that they might have an education. Now both have graduated and are out in the world. One came away with first honors of his class.

They make her last days comfortable ones, but sometimes she longed for the past. As she had fought for her sons she still felt the call to struggle for others. She wanted to fight the world the way she had when her boys were not grown up, to give again of her earnings as she had then.

And as she had done in those long, hard years before, she set to work again, making tatting. Once the time was that this had made enough to add materially to their meagre income. No one cared for it now and she found few who would buy.

Then, too, her eyes were age-bedimmed. She could work only a few hours daily, but would wear no glasses. Tatting is tedious, but finally a dollar's worth had been made, and sold by her own soliciting.

Last week, Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, Mercer university president, received her letter with the dollar. Her sons were Mercer alumni, the note said, and she had read of the drive to erect a memorial to the war dead. The dollar was her mite toward the $200,000 campaign.

Rural Russia Now Trying New Trial Marriage Plan

:: THREE-YEAR TESTS FOR NEWLYWEDS ::

BY ERIC KEYSER.

Berlin, April 7.—Trial marriages with all the legal trimmings of regular wedlock are being tried in rural Russia in an effort to produce a marital utopia.

Pravda, the official newspaper mouthpiece of the soviet government, announced the inauguration of the trial marriage plan in areas of the Hinterland where considerable difficulty has been had in handling divorce demands.

With the triumph of the communist rebels over Kerensky, marriage became a purely legal state and the wedding ceremony was made a civil ceremony.

Stories of the nationalization of Russian women have come out of Russia from time to time since the revolution, but these yarns were more numerous immediately after Trotsky and Lenin rose to power than since the soviet state has achieved a comparatively firm foundation.

Trial marriage has exponents outside the collection of soviet republics that compose the new Russia. It has been argued that only by an actual experiment in marriage could two persons, especially young ones, determine whether or not they were suited to go through life together. The experiment in rural Russia will be the first thorough test of the trial marriage theory by a modern state.

That the report of the trial marriage scheme is true is hardly a subject of argument since Pravda vouches for it. A sample marriage contract, as presented by Pravda, is as follows:

1. I, the citizen Sergei Kowaljew, herewith pledge myself to keep Anna Romanenka as my legal wife beginning with the year 1925.

2. I, the citizeness Anna Romanenka, herewith declare my willingness to be the wife of Sergei Kowaljew for three years running.

3. I, Sergei Kowaljew, for three years hereafter consider the Romanenka my wife, and pledge myself to treat her accordingly during the above mentioned period.

This contract serves to bind the two parties together for three years only, whereafter they may separate and live their life alone or marry elsewhere, if they so desire. The schme has not been in operation long enough to permit its worth to be judged.

French Women Win One Step In Vote Fight

Paris, April 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The chamber of deputies this evening pased a bill giving women the right to vote in municipal elections and also making them eligible for municipal office if elected. The vote was carried by a show of hands. A similar bill was passed by the chamber in 1919, but was defeated in the senate.

The age at which women would gain the right to vote was fixed at 21 instead of 25 years as at first proposed. The chamber voted this alteration on motion of Deputy Baroux, communist.

Paternity To Be Decided By Child's Fingerprints

:: NEW METHOD SUGGESTED BY WOMAN SCIENTIST ::

Oslo, Norway, April 7.—The paternity of children may be determined by the resemblance of a child's finger prints to those of its father, according to Professor Christine Bonnevie, of Oslo university. Miss Bonnevie undertook the research which she believes has established her finger-print theory in order to protect mothers all over the world.

Solomon's dilemma when confronted with two claimants for one babe is the most famous instance of questioned parentage, but cases involving the same principle occur every day in Europe and the United States. The Stillman case which hinged on the identity of the father of baby Guy Stillman, who was said by James Stillman to be the son of an Indian guide, could have been adjusted quickly by Miss Bonnevie's technique.

The finger prints of young babies are so like those of their fathers' that the resemblance cannot be ignored, according to Miss Bonnevie.

Auto Crash Victims Reported Improved By Grady Surgeons

Physicians said at Grady hospital Tuesday night that Miss Lucile Copeland and W. R. Phillips two of the victims who were seriously injured in an automobile accident Saturday that cost the lives of two of the occupants and injured four others, were greatly improved.

The condition of J. W. Jones, driver of the machine which crashed into a telephone at the intersection of the streets, was reported as slightly improved.

Nixon Spiller, the fourth victim, who was removed to his residence, 418 South Boulevard, Monday, is said to be on the road to recovery.

Police were prepared Tuesday to present evidence in connection with the accident to Fulton county grand jury, but owing to other matters before that body the matter was not reached. The evidence, however, will be submitted Friday.

Lyons Chautauqua.

Lyons, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—The Radcliffe chatauqua held here last week was a success. Something over 1,000 attended the program Friday and Saturday nights.

The local people have signed up for next year.

N. C. & ST. L. CAR BUILDER OUT WITH STATEMENT

"You Can Just Say For Me, That This Karnak Is Even Better Medicine Than Is Claimed For It, Declares L. F. Parker.

"Day by day, the amazing health-building powers of Karnak, the sensationoal new medicine on sale at Jacobs' Pharmacy, are becoming more evident. Atlanta people are realizing that the claims made for Karnak are, if anything, underestimated.

As an instance of what Karnak will do, the experience of L. F. Parker, a member of the N., C. & St. L. Ry. Shops in Atlanta, is given just as he tells it.

Mr. Parker, who resides at 324 Grant St., is probably one of the best known railroad men in this section. He is a member of the St. Paul Methodist Church and very prominent in fraternal order circles. He is a member of the Junior Order of Ry. Mechanics, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Odd Fellows, Woodmen of the World, Order of Red Men and the N., C. & St. L. Shop Employees Association.

"It may be hard to believe, but I began to feel better almost from the first dose of Karnak and now stomach troubles that kept me in misery for ten years are completely overcome," declares Mr. Parker.

"If you want to see a man who really suffered from indigestion and stomach troubles, I wish you could have seen me before I took Karnak. Why, it just seemed like all food was poison to me. Nearly everything gave me trouble. I got to where I didn't care whether I ate or not—my appetite was gone anyway.

"Then I would have terrific pains in my chest and stomach and across my back around my kidneys. My kidneys were always out of order. I got so tired-out I couldn't do any heavy lifting, and the constant hammering on cars would get me. I would come home at night and just flop down in a chair, too tired to move, and then when I would try to get up my arms and legs would be asleep and ache. I would have to keep working them slowly before I could move.

"Well, sir, that was my condition when I started taking Karnak and, it's the gospel truth, the very first dose of this medicine made me feel better. Now, I haven't a touch of stomach trouble and I never felt better in my life. I haven't had the slightest ache or pain since I started taking Karnak, my kidneys are working fine and my circulation that caused my legs and arms to go to sleep is in perfect order.

"I have got back my old-time strength and energy, too. Last Saturday I nailed up the whole side of a car without stopping to rest once—and when I can do that, I know I am right. And eat! Why, my wife has had to double my lunch—I eat 7 or 8 biscuits at a meal. I enjoy everything and it seems like I can't get enough.

"I have already gained 7 pounds, so that ought to show how much good Karnak has done for me. No, sir, they haven't claimed enough for Karnak. It's the real thing—better than all the other medicine I ever took put together. I'll tell anybody what I think of it."

Remember, Karnak is sold under a strict guarantee that if the first two bottles do not benefit you your money will be returned. You take no chance with Karnak.

Karnak is sold in Atlanta exclusively by Jacobs' Pharmacy; in Marietta by Hodges Drug Co.; in Decatur by Elkin Drug Co.; in East Point by Christian's Pharmacy, and by the leading druggists in every town.—(adv.)

Coffee

– the best of drinks – still remains one of the cheapest

COFFEE is such a popular beverage and has always been so cheap that we sometimes forget how very, very little it costs per cup.

Though present prices may seem high in comparison with other years, the average cost of good Coffee for home use is only 1½ cents per cup, which is mighty little for the best drink you can buy.

The price had to go up, of course, just as it did on milk, bread, shoes, clothing, rent, etc. The important thing to remember is that the price increase on Coffee has been no greater than the increase in the price of many other staples.

At 1½ cents per cup, the cost of good Coffee is only 1/20 or 1/40 or even 1/50 of the total cost of the average meal you serve at home.

What else can you buy that brings you as much genuine enjoyment and satisfaction for such a small cost? What other single item in your diet adds as much pleasure to every meal?

CLARK'S ESTATE OVER $10,000,000

Butte, Mont., April 6.—The will of former United States Senator W. A. Clark, opened and read in probate court today, bequeathed $2,500,000 to the widow, Anna E. Clark, in addition to the ante-nuptial settlement in lieu of dower rights. Numerous other bequests to relatives, friends and associates were included in the will.

The former senator's Fifth avenue home in New York and stock in the W. A. Clark Realty company and $600,000 are left to the executors in trust for Mrs. Clark and daughter, Huguette, only until June 10, 1928. The realty stock and $800,000 provisions are for the proper maintenance of the home during that period.

The senator's costly art treasures in his New York home were bequeathd to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, to be designated as the W. A. Clark collection. The bequest is provisional upon acceptance within four months and agreement to maintain a gallery for the exclusive exhibition of the works.

Should the collection not be accepted, the works are to go to the Corcoran gallery of art in Washington, D. C., on the same terms.

The exact value of the estate was not determined, but attorneys said it was "in excess of $10,000,000."

HEALTH

How to Get It and How to Keep It

If the reading of this article teaches you only this one lesson about your own body it may be worth more than millions of dollars to you; for of what use is money without health, or after you are dead?

The lesson is this:—"Keep your system pure and you will have health and strength to gain and enjoy happiness, success and length of years."

But you may ask:—

How Can I Keep My System Pure?

That is not a hard question to answer, for physiology plainly teaches you that your liver, which is larger than all of your other vital organs combined, has the special work of purifying your blood and thereby your entire system and of keeping it pure and healthy.

How Does the Liver Purify?

Physicians tell us that the liver purifies the system by manufacturing a greenish-yellow, bitter fluid called the bile, which, between meals, is stored up in the gall-bladder, but after each meal is poured out into the intestines. The bile is purgative and antiseptic or germicidal. In health, it is your bile that makes your bowels act regularly and freely every day,—it is Nature's only purgative. It is your bile that keeps your bowels pure, sweet, clean and free from the germs of fermentation (gas) putrefaction, decay and disease. Remember that germs cannot live where there is bile and there can therefore be no fermentation to cause gas, nor putrefaction or decay to produce poisons or toxines. Also, as bile is Nature's purgative, there can be no constipation if the bile is flowing naturally and freely into the bowels after each meal.

But when the bile stops flowing freely your bowels stop acting regularly and the contents become a foul, stagnant, breeding bed for the germs of fermentation (gas) decay and disease. These poisons (called toxines) are gradually absorbed into your blood and circulate all over your body, poisoning, irritating or inflaming your brain and nerves, your muscles and joints, your heart, lungs, skin, kidneys, bladder, spleen and every vital organ of your body including your liver, stomach and bowels.

Nature's Danger Signals

When your car gets out of fix you can tell it. It is the same way with your liver. Nature gives you warning—not by words, but by signals or symptoms. Your doctor recognizes these danger signals and you also should know them and instantly heed them. It will save you much pain, serious illness and perhaps big repair bills.

When the bile stops flowing freely into your bowels you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms:—Your breath may become heavy or foul, your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your food (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heartburn, gas, or fluttering around the heart, dizziness or blind spells; you may be troubled with belching or frequent passage of gas from the bowels; the gas "balloons" your bowels and presses so hard on the kidneys that it gives you pain, soreness, stiffness in the small of your back over your kidneys, making you think you have kidney trouble; at night the gas in your bowels presses upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep. In the morning you are tired instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is injured. Your complexion becomes sallow, muddy or yellow—your skin may be disfigured with liver spots or pimples; you may become sleepless, restless and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent, dull headaches; your bowels stop their free, full and natural action; you have constipation, fermentation, gas, putrefaction and self-poisoning or "auto-intoxication" as the doctors call it.

How to Make the Bile Flow

We have learned that bile is Nature's purgative and Nature's antiseptic (or germ killer) for the bowels; that, in health, bile keeps the bowels moving regularly and freely every day and prevents fermentation, gas, putrefaction, decay, disease and self-poisoning.

But when the bile stops flowing freely, how can we start it up again? The answer is, Take Calotabs at bedtime and drink water freely the next day. This treatment represents the best thought and experience of the best physicians in every civilized country of the world. No other purgative will do. If you take oils, salts, cascara, or the many other simple laxative syrups, powders and candy laxatives, you are merely wasting valuable time. They only make you feel better for a day or two. They do not remove the cause for they do not increase the flow of the bile which is Nature's only purgative and intestinal antiseptic. When you take Calotabs you know that you have taken a real, doctor's medicine. It cleans you out thoroughly. Every inch of your twenty-five foot canal, including your stomach, small intestines and large intestines, is thoroughly cleared and washed clean and pure and your bile is flowing freely. Next morning your liver is active, your system is purified and refreshed and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please and go about your work;—there is no danger, for Calotabs are perfectly safe and create no habit except the habit of health.

What are Calotabs—How Do They Act?

Calotabs are a real doctor's medicine—the best of their kind ever devised. Kings, presidents and millionaires have traveled far and have paid rich fees to the world's greatest physicians and have regained their health by this medicine. But now, thanks to modern manufacturing methods, even the poorest person can easily find the price of a package of Calotabs for they are now manufactured by the millions, in one of the largest medical laboratories in the world, and are sold wherever medicines are sold, in convenient, economical packages, price thirty-five cents for a large, family package.

Calotabs are composed of a thoroughly purified and refined calomel, combined with assistants and correctives. The calomel increases the flow of the bile and every physician knows that no other medicine can take its place; there is no such thing as a substitute for calomel. The assistants act like salts, washing the calomel out of the system and preventing its accumulation and any possibility of danger. The correctives settle the stomach and bowels, preventing nausea, sickening and griping effects.

Calotabs (and water) therefore, give you the combined effects of calomel and salts without the nauseating, sickening, griping and dangerous effects of either.

The medicine chest of every home should be supplied with Calotabs, the most important of all family medicines, for they are needed in almost every case of sickness, and, if used promptly, may prevent many cases of serious illness.

Directions for Using Calotabs:

Complete directions, in plain language which every one can understand, are contained in each package of Calotabs. Your druggist can supply you with Calotabs. The price, only thirty-five cents for a large family package, will be cheerfully refunded if you are not delighted with the results.—(adv.)

and listen to the birds sing—has been promised Atlantans today by C. F. von Herrmann, local meteorologist.

Prospects are that there even will be a slight rise in temperature, with every indication that clear skies will prevail throughout the day. The maximum reading, as shown by the government thermometer Tuesday, was 50 degrees.

PUPILS TO PARADE IN CLEAN-UP MOVE AT LOCAL SCHOOL

Imubed with the spirit of Monday's clean-up and paint-up demonstration, which was participated in by practically every Atlanta organization, the children of the English avenue school today will stage a parade of their own, carrying the message of the big city parade into all that section of Atlanta.

Armed with the posters and banners that featured the big event, accompanied by their own drum and bugle corps and with a variety of original "stunts," the school will turn out en masse at noon.

At 3 o'clock, 75 Atlanta Boy scouts, who have been selected by their scoutmasters for the occasion, will report at the Whitehall street viaduct with buckets and paint brushes to give the weatherworn iron work a coat of brilliant red. First-Class Scout George L. Morton, Jr., of Troop 20, will direct the job. Spaces have been marked off and the work will be apportioned among the boys in such manner as will insure a speedy completion.

A special meeting of all heads of the various clean-up committees has been called by Chairman B. F. Fraser to be held at 4:30 o'clock in the chamber of commerce.

Baptists of Georgia Open Sunday School Convention

Dr. M. L. Brittain, of Atlanta, Makes Opening Address at Meeting in Augusta.

Augusta, April 7.—Delegates from all parts of Georgia arrived in Augusta Tuesday for attendance on the fifth annual Georgia Baptist Sunday School convention which opened its sessions Tuesday night at the First Baptist church, to continue through Thursday evening of this week. It is expected at least 1,500 delegates will be in attendance on the convention.

Delegates registered at the First Baptist Sunday schools as they arrived and are being assigned to homes where they will be entertained during the convention.

Henry G. Howard, in the absence of William P. White, mayor of Augusta, extended greetings to the convention on behalf of the city at the opening session Tuesday and Dr. Edward L. Grace, pastor of the First Baptist church, welcomed the convention on behalf of his church, which is host to the convention.

Dr. J. F. Vines, of Roanoke, Va., spoke on "the Highways of Happiness."

Dr. Brittain Speaks.

Ralph H. Ferrell, of Albany, president of the convention, delivered his address at 8 o'clock, following which there was an address on "Classic and Modern Ideals," by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, Atlanta. Dr. Brittain took his audience back 1,000 or more years to the period of the Roman empire, pointing out that the passion of the Roman was "for the strength of orderly process" and that on that strength he builded a mighty empire which lived for 500 years, but for sheer beauty, however, "of mind and body," no rack has ever equaled the Greeks, said the speaker. Leaders of men, the educator continued, have for 1,000 years turned to these two "classic races for inspiration and ideals."

No nation nor any age, said Dr. Brittain, has ever surpassed or equalled Greece in her passion for beauty, nor Rome for her grasp of the law, and "in art, if not in letters, the Greek is still supreme," he asserted.

Christ As Example.

"Whether Christian or not," continued Dr. Brittain, "the accurate man, if just and fair, must agree that the qualities which we best express by heart and soul were brought to the world by Christ of Nazareth. He was born in an obscure province of a great empire, but two doctrines He taught set Him over all other teachers even from the merely secular view. By the first, He lifted woman to the full stature of her brother, man. Before Him, she was either toy or a slave. In some dim way this was felt, even during the short span of His life on earth. Last at the Cross and first at the grave and with no record of insult or slight, the daughters of Judea sensed as did no others outside of the twelve their debt to their Lord.

"Before His time the classic mind treated the other themes of human life and but little attention even to the best of their pages was given to the sweet love of man for maid. This dates from the Christian era, and in highest and gentlest form is due directly to the teachings of Christ."

But the modern age, said Dr. Brittain, "with the cultured mind and trained body," know too that they must also secure the qualities of heart and soul to complete what he termed the "ideal man." Giving an illustration, Dr. Brittain continued:

"The heads of what we sometime term the soulless corporations of our day know this great truth. Last year a number of them came to the great technical school truth. Last year a number of them came to the great technical school which I represent for graduates to use in their different fields. More than one said that they wanted not only the mental leader of his class, but also the one who had regard for his physical development as well. Leadership in these two fields I expected them to desire.

Business Wants Leaders.

"More than this, however, they wanted. Said they, 'We wish men trained physically and mentally and in addition those who are marked by leadership in school activities.' Pressed for a more accurate statement, the reply was that they wanted men who had enough soul and heart to be admired and loved by their fellow-students as shown by selection to leadership in the different fields of school service. 'If,' said they, 'these young men can sell themselves or make themselves loved by their classmates and friends, the chances are that they will be equally successful in selling our business to the public.'

"In other words, consciously or not, leaders of men today require more than the old classic ideals of supremacy in body and mind. To these there must be super-added the qualities which we term heart, spirit and soul, as well, directly due, whether they know it or not, to the teachings of the Nazarene in the hills of Galilee."

31 CINCINNATI COPS ENTER GUILTY PLEAS

Cincinnati, April 7.—Thirty-one former Cincinnati policemen and rural dry agents entered pleas of guilty to federal grand jury liquor graft indictment charges today. Six of the indicted men had pleaded guilty Saturday.

The pleas of guilty entered today were only with reference to the charges today. Six of the indicted men had pleaded guilty Saturday.

The pleas of guilty entered today were only with reference to the charges of violating the national prohibition law. Attorneys for the men said that guilty pleas would not be made to narcotic act violations, also charged against some of the defendants.

District Attorney H. E. Mau announced that two more former village "dry agents" had entered guilty pleas after the 31 appeared before Federal Judge Hickenlooper.

Trials of the 65 former enforcement officers who had not changed their original pleas of not guilty were to begin today, but Judge Hickenlooper announced a number of the defendants desired to enter guilty pleas. Federal authorities had been prepared to open their case on charges of connection with a graft ring to which "protection money" was paid by bootleg liquor and narcotic interests.

Sentence was deferred and the defendants were notified that they might be used by the government in prosecuting the cases of the remaining officers.

Judge Hickenlooper announced that attorneys for the 32 remaining defendants had asked further continuance, which he granted until Monday.

Masons Meet Today.

GARAGE FIRE BLAMED ON PALS OF CHAPMAN

Steubenville, Ohio, April 7.—That the Stanton Motor company garage fire here this morning, which resulted in the complete destruction of the building and thirty automobiles with an estimated loss of $200,000, was started by former associates of Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit, is the belief of city authorities who are investigating.

The garage is owned by William Snyder and Miss Katherine Bourne, who were state witnesses against Chapman at his recent trial in Hartford, Conn. They testified that the automobile which figured in the robbery the night Patrolman James Skelly was slain was stolen from the Stanton garage here some months previous and both identified Chapman as the man who had made inquiries about the price of the car a few hours before it was stolen from the show window.

It is believed associates of Chapman fired the garage as an act of revenge for the testimony of the local couple at the trial.

Hartford, Conn., April 7.—"The reprisals will begin, I guess," said State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, who prosecuted Gerald Chapman, when told today of the burning of a garage in Steubenville, owned by two witnesses for the state in Chapman's murder trial. Nathan O. Friedman, junior counsel for Chapman, said he could not see what aim Chapman's pals could have in starting the blaze. He said it would be just as reasonable to suspect "some of Chapman's many sympathizrs."

4 KILLED, 20 INJURED IN T. N. T. EXPLOSION

Rio de Janeiro, April 7.—Four persons were killed and 20 injured in a dockside dynamite explosion.

The marine police announced the casualty list and said the property damage was slight. Three lighters were loading dynamite onto the S. S. Portugal when an explosion occurred on one of the lighters, which sank immediately, while the other two caught fire.

RECEIVERSHIP ASKED FOR LOUISVILLE KLAN

Louisville, Ky., April 7.—A petition asking receivership for the local unit of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, alleging funds had been "misappropriated, dissipated and squandered," was filed in circuit court today by Dr. W. H. Morgan and A. J. Owens, insurance agent, recently suspended by the state insurance commissioner.

The petition charged that not less than $20,000 had been collected by A. D. George, kleagle, and by A. W. Hohman, secretary and treasurer, and that no report of the funds collected as initiation fees, dues and through gifts to the local order had been made to the membership at large.

Statements made by klan agents declared in the petition to have been "fraudulent and false" were responsible, it said, for the membership enrollment of 6,000 in the county.

ABBOTT MARTIN ENTERS U. S. CONSULAR SERVICE

Adairsville, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Abbott Martin has re-entered the United States consular service and will leave at once for Vancouver, British Columbia, where he has been appointed vice consul.

During the war Mr. Martin volunteered and served nearly the whole time in France, after which he was appointed vice consul at Bradford, England, where he remained for four years, before being transferred to Beyrut, Syria.

Last fall he returned to Adairsville to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Martin, going from there to the University of Mississippi as instructor in French.

Ensign Jack Martin, his brother, who was graduated from United States Naval academy at Annapolis last June and has been on the U. S. S. Colorado during the maneuvers on the Pacific coast, has been transferred to the U. S. Destroyer J. T. Burns, and will be stationed at San Diego, California.

SUPERINTENDENT SUTTON.

There seems to be no doubt that Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, of the Atlanta public schools, will be re-elected by the board of education.

So far no opposition has developed, and as the board will soon be called upon to name a superintendent for another term, it may be taken for granted that Superintendent Sutton will be asked to succeed himself.

This is not surprising for he has made an admirable record, and under his supervision the public schools of Atlanta have grown faster than for any similar period in their history.

Indeed, the development of the system has been so great during the past few years that the city is now brought face to face with the imperative necessity of enlarging the facilities of the schools so that they can meet the demands made upon them.

Many new buildings have been erected during the past few years and many of the old ones have been scrapped. There remains, however, much to be done to meet the growing demands of the city. Practically all of the new buildings are of unit construction, so built with the idea of adding additional units from time to time commensurate with the growth of the city.

It was thought that in most of these buildings the first unit would supply adequate facilities for several years, but some of them have already outgrown the demands made upon them and it is now apparent that new units will have to be added.

Sooner or later, a new boys' high school must be built on the south side, as well as a new girls' high school on the north side, thus supplying both girls and boys high school facilities on both sides of the city, enabling the boys of the south side to reach their high school without being forced to traverse the city almost to its utmost limit on the north side, the same being true of the girls on the north side who have to cross the city in the other direction to reach their high school.

All this involves a tremendous expansion program and it is fortunate that Superintendent Sutton, whose foresight has contributed so much to bringing the school system to its present state of efficiency, is to be retained in the service so that the city may have the benefit of his experience and his ability in mapping plans for further development.

SOUNDING AN ALARM.

There appeared recently in The Constitution an Associated Press dispatch from Washington of tremendous significance to the cotton growing states. It follows:

"Russia will plant larger areas to cotton and sugar beets this year, the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome today advised the department of agriculture. The institute reported also that Argentina's cotton area this year totals 239,000 acres, an increase of 67 per cent over that of 1923-24.

"Cotton will be planted to 1,515,000 acres in Russia, compared with 1,196,000 acres last year, the institute reported, while sugar beet area will be 1,080,000 acres, compared 852,500 in 1924. The increase in cotton acreage conforms with the expansion of program arranged for the years 1923 to 1927 by the Russian head cotton committee.

"Consumption of cotton in Russia for the year ending last July 31 was estimated at 597,000 bales, of which only 212 bales were American. Consumption during the previous year was 509,000 bales."

This dispatch, making public an official statement of the department of agriculture, confirms to the letter a warning recently sounded by The Constitution, and that is that post-war agricultural reconstruction throughout the world has centered on cotton as a money crop wherever the staple can be grown, and that the American cotton states will not again hold a controlling position in cotton production.

British money is pushing cotton production in Brazil and other South American countries, and the governments of the far east are doing the same thing in their cotton areas.

In other words American cotton cannot control the market in the future, and the fact is that in every nation outside of America the cost of production is infinitely smaller. It is a fact, also, that in no nation where cotton is grown is the acre production so low as it is in America. We averaged in 1924 around 150 pounds of lint to the acre. Georgia averaged around 130 pounds. In 1923 the average of all the cotton states was 132 pounds. As against these low averages Brazil averages 240 pounds, Australia about the same, India a great deal more, and so on.

These are bare facts that must be thought about. The answer is, less acreage but increased production per acre, which alone makes the production possible. This can come only from intensive cultivation. Restricted acreage means balanced operations—the growing of food and feed and live stock and the turning to other commodities for money crops besides cotton.

"LET'S GO, ATLANTA!"

The Constitution republishes on this page an admirable editorial from the Atlanta Journal of Labor, written by its editor, Jerome Jones, well known as a conspicuous leader in the activities of the labor ranks of the city.

The Journal of Labor expresses the attitude of the Atlanta Federation of Trades in the matter of utilizing the bonding credit of the city for the purpose of meeting the extension demands now pressing upon the city from every side.

No city can stand still.

Change is the natural evolution of nature and if a city does not change for the better it changes for the worse.

There has never been a time in Atlanta's history where it has not steadily moved forward. It has never stood still.

There has never been a time in the history of the city when its opportunities for development have been as inviting as they are now.

If there ever was a time when the best thought and the best judgment of the city should be brought together in concerted effort to map out a program along which the city may proceed to take advantage of its wonderful possibilities that time is now.

It is fortunate that the Atlanta Federation of Labor is leading the way for the city's development by the only possible route by which it may grow as fast as it should.

There is no city of its size in America in better financial condition than Atlanta. Its existing bond issue is only a small part of its legal bonding limitation.

As much as approximately $15,000,000 in bonds can be issued and the city will still be within its constitutional limitation. Nobody proposes to issue bonds to this amount, but it is certainly reasonable that the city should take advantage of its opportunity to use at least a part of this credit by which to build for the future, letting later generations who will get the advantage of these extended municipal facilities at least bear a part of the burden of their expense.

The effect at this time of large city expenditures in essential public improvements would react favorably on every business in the city.

It would fill vacant stores, office buildings, dwellings and apartments. It would put tools in the hands of many workmen who are now idle. It would revivify the activity of all building trades. It would put the city on a business quickstep similar to that experienced after the $7,000,000 issue of about a decade ago.

And speaking of that bond issue, it is gratifying to recall that if ever a city got dollar for dollar's worth of a public expenditure Atlanta did from the proceeds of that issue. There were, of course, incidental controversies arising out of these expenditures, but not a penny of graft was ever charged, and no sane man can now deny that the proceeds of that issue were expended in a way that was of incalculable advantage to the city.

The truth is, had it not been for this bond issue Atlanta would have by now reached a stage of intolerable congestion.

The situation now is just as it was then except that it is far more intensive.

The Journal of Labor strikes a keynote which should meet popular accord, and we commend its views to the people of the city.

LET'S GO, ATLANTA!

The Journal of Labor points the way.

The country doesn't need more literary critics, but it could stand a few literary authors.

"Coming Right Along."

Editor McIntosh speaks of the home prosperity The Albany Herald has been such a big factor in helping to make—

"South Georgia is coming right along. Nothing flashy about it. Nothing spectacular. No boom. No free buses to ride the people to land sales, but a steady growth, the hum of business and industry, public improvements on every hand, and plenty of faith of the people in the future of the section. These conditions prevail in this part of Georgia. Another crop year is just beginning, and there is a feeling of optimism in the ranks of farmers. They have profited by experience gained during the last several years, and they are preparing to avoid many of the mistakes of the past. They feel—we all feel—that this is going to be a good year."

This is one of Katharine Tynan's spring love songs:

"This is the time when bit by bit
The days begin to lengthen sweet
And every minute gained is joy—
And love stirs in the heart of a boy.

"This is the time the sun, of late
Content to lie abed till eight,
Lifts up betimes his sleepy head—
And love stirs in the heart of a maid.

"This is the time we dock the night
Of a whole hour of candlelight;
When song of linnet and thrush is heard—
And love stirs in the heart of a bird.

"This is the time when sword-blades green,
With gold and purple damascene,
Pierce the brown crocus-bed a-row—

No Wonder 'Twas Lost.

William Allen White's Emporia Gazette says that "the first honest letter of recommendation ever written in that town" was found on the local postoffice floor the other day, and reads as follows:

"To Whom it May Concern: This is to certify that the undersigned has known the bearer these many years. That on this account it is extremely difficult for the undersigned to say anything good about the bearer and tell the truth. If the bearer should present these lines to any one who may be considering giving the bearer a job, let him beware, for the bearer is not qualified, no matter what the job. As to character, the bearer is not trustworthy, and has no integrity. He is everything that one should not be and nothing that one should be. He would steal should the opportunity present itself. He lies, with or without opportunity. He is, in fact, no good. He is not qualified for any trade or profession. He is lazy, and slovenly. If, after reading these words of warning, anyone should care to give the bearer a job, let him not lay the consequences to the door of the undersigned."

How Other Places Make Traffic Safe

Editor The Constitution: Anent the recent automobile accidents in Atlanta, how would it do to pass an ordinance like Paris has, where every motorist is licensed and must be at least 21 years of age. If he has an accident injuring or killing a person his license is revoked whether he is at fault or not.

Or, take Los Angeles' new ordinance, which requires a motorist to stop at a street crossing where there is no policeman by the pedestrian raising his hand.

What other country of the world but the United States would permit the killing of 15,000 persons annually by automobiles without taking some heroic action to stop so many fatalities?

Nominates C. M. Candler For University Chancellor

Editor The Constitution: The greatest contributor to the civilization of today is an educated liberal-minded educator. A scholar who possesses the advantage of common sense, observation and experience. In speaking of civilization I have only in mind Christian civilization, which so far is the best the world has ever known. Since the resignation of the beloved Uncle David Barrow is to be accepted, because of his advanced age, it behooves us to look well into the qualifications of his successor.

Chancellor Barrow has, as a Christian educator, but few equals and no superiors. It will take an ideal educator to measure up to Dr. Barrow.

The new chancellor must be a man of varied information if he is to be a worthy successor to Chancellor Barrow. There never was a man of greater modesty than Uncle Dave.

In looking over the field for suitable timber for a new chancellor the name of Dr. C. Murphy Candler comes into mind. He is a man of distinguished ability and of ripe business acumen.

I am interested first of all in the university. I plead guilty to partiality for the great and noble university. But I am absolutely impartial as to men. Let the best possible selection be made. I nominate Dr. C. Murphy Candler.

Says City No Place For Cows and Hogs

Editor Constitution: The newspapers urging Clean-up and Paint-up week are to be commended. As stated, the tourist's eye is attracted by cleanliness. Take the health question alone, as referred to by the papers. We are required to have garbage cans that don't leak, and fly-tight, which is right. This in the name of health, which is proper. At the same time, we fight the fly with one hand and feed him with the other. He cannot get into our garbage cans, so he turns right around and goes under the house we live in, where the cow puts in the heat of the day, creating filth, or possibly to the pigpen in the backyard. When a shower comes, so does the fly—to the house to work his way into the kitchen or dining room to leave filth and disease. No use to argue about the peril of the fly—everybody knows about it. Why not have a cow and pig week and put every cow and pig out of the city?

Cows and pigs are not permitted within the corporate limits of any city or village, except in some of the southern states.

We strain at a gnat and swallow the camel, not noticing the hump on his back.

The idea is to look clean and be clean. Cleaning up and painting up the front while the filthy cows and pigs are in the back yard is a little like wearing a coat to hide a dirty shirt. The presence of cows and pigs in the city is intolerable, and should not be treated as members of a family.

Have we a city council and a board of health interested in health?

Commercial Arbitration "Goes on the Air"

BR WILLIAM C. REDFIELD,
Former Secretary of Commerce.

(Leading business men are cooperating through new organizations to strengthen and coordinate commercial arbitration throughout the country. Among these new organizations are the arbitration foundation and the arbitration conference. Their influence will be nationwide.)

Arbitration is as old as the Stone Age, and as new as the day's morn. It has long been the practice and one may say the increasing practice of many leading business and trade organizations. It has has worked so well as to have become a standardized procedure in prominent exchanges and chambers of commerce all over our land. It has become as common as helpful in the field of foreign trade and is a definite objective of the International Chamber of Commerce and of many bodies of more restricted scope that cooperate with it. Arbitration has "taken the air" and speaks through efficient announcers throughout the land and across the seas. Old as it is it is also the most recent illuminant of the shadows of modern trade.

Modern arbitration, however, differs from that which until recently has prevailed both in what it is and in what it does. It is not conciliation; it is not mediation. It contains elements of both and applies successfully the considerate spirit of each, but it goes far beyond them. It is now, under recent state and national statutes, an effective means of doing justice, simply, cheaply, quickly, clearly and finally. One of its most attractive elements is that, because of its simplicity and clearness promptly applied, it succeeds upon the whole in doing justice in such a way as to satisfy all the parties concerned that real justice has been done. Another essential feature is that it permits the settlement of disputes by men specially qualified to pass upon the matters concerned.

The state of New York has the honor of having enacted the first modern arbitration law, followed a year later by New Jersey, and in the present year not only by Oregon, but by a federal statute of prime importance. These laws concur in the feature that, when an agreement to arbitrate has been made part of a voluntary contract, the courts shall enforce that agreement. Having voluntarily agreed to arbitrate the parties cannot refuse to do so. An arbitration clause has, therefore, under these laws the same binding effect as any other contractual agreement. It has not been so hitherto; it is so now. This constitutes the great advance which these statutes becomes a decision of a higher court and is not in practice open to appeal save for fraud and other evident causes. Lists of official arbitrators are provided by various recognized incorporated bodies and even courtrooms are furnished for hearings at a nominal price.

The chamber of commerce of the state of New York has long held an honorable primary in promoting the modern development of commercial orbitration. Quite recently a number of powerful bodies have been created to educate the general public on the application of the new laws and to promote the enactment of similar statutes throughout the country. Among these are the Arbitration Society of America, the Arbitration Foundation and the Arbitration Conference board. These organizations cooperate in a harmonious effort to forward one of the greatest modern steps toward rendering justice between man and man promptly and cheaply.

The attitude of the bar toward this movement has not been so much helpful as creative. A committee of the American Bar association was a potent factor in securing the New York law. Judges of the state supreme court are directors of the organizations named and Justice Stone, recently promoted from attorney general to the supreme bench, was a governor of the arbitration society.

Arbitration is not a panacea. It needs skillful professional guidance to save it from errors. It is, however, a long step forward and should be welcomed as such. With its wide spread use the long delays in doing justice which are familiar to us all will "fold their tents like the Arabs and as silently steal way."

William Redfield

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

"Ninth of November."

A reviewer says of Kellerman's "Ninth of November" that it ranks with Dickens' "The Tale of Two Cities." Such praise is well deserved. For the young German writer depicts with a starkness, fascinating as it is horrible, the events in the great human drama that ended with the flight of Kaiser Wilhelm on November 9, 1918. The world knew, of course, that the central empires were short of food and manpower, but Kellerman, moving behind the scenes, flits from Berlin to the front and tells of the terror that reigned, of the immense suffering, of the death-like silence in the streets, while the bells of victory never stopped ringing and the dead arrived by the trainloads from the slaughter house in France and Flanders. To read this spell-binding historical novel by an eminent artist brings home the conviction of the great courage and steadfastness of the German people. One wonders that the dibacle of the Hohenzollern family and the proclamation of the republic was not at the same time a signal for an unchaining of pent-up passion and misery that might have swept Europe into absolute chaos. It speaks well for the fundamental conceptions of the German nation in freedom and democracy that it did not lose its head and did not give in to the feeling of utter despair that came toward the close of the war. It is wrong to think the German people did not suffer in that great conflict. The two and a half million cards mailed to German homes with the inscription "Your husband or your son has fallen today" in itself is a stupendous burden of grief that might well have robbed a people of its senses.

Admiral With Spurs.

A description of the personal appearance of the regent of Hungary, Admiral Horthy, by a French writer reveals that the gentleman is rather addicted to a great deal of pomp and ceremony, "to a greater extent even than that greatest of formalists, Emperor Francis Joseph." The French chronicler has not omitted a single detail in his pen-portrait and observer that the regent generally wears spurs. An admiral wearing spurs! Perhaps somewhat of an anomaly. But the French historian, Sorel, once wrote when dealing with the question of court etiquette: "It is necessary for men to wear spurs to show what they are, just as other men must wear them in order to show what they are not." The story is told of an English divisional commander telling a Canadian colonel of a mounted unit to ship his horses back and get into the trenches as an infantry battalion. The general added: "But your men better keep their spurs." At this the cavalryman's face lighted up and he asked: "Do you think we'll get our horses back, sir?" "Oh, no," replied the Englishman, "but spurs fastened to one's elbows are so excellent to scratch one's back, don't you think?"

* * * *

"The French Scare."

A discussion on French militarism brings a "neutral" observer in a Swiss journal to remark that France was as war-like as Germany and perhaps even more so, since the defeat of 1871. And he adds: "Since 1871 the French had never any occasion to dread a German attack but they precipitated it in 1914 by partaking in the Anglo-Russian policy of encirclement of the Reich." History does not bear out this contention. Europe was thrown into a panic as early as 1875 by an article in The London Times from the pen of the celebrated De Blowitz entitled "The French Scare." After assuring himself of the authenticity of certain documents, The Times' correspondent threw a bombshell into the world by quoting General Von Moltke's plans for a complete annihilation of the French republic by a second war and by an occupation of Paris and the coast cities in addition to exacting an enormous tribute. Blowitz makes it clear in his "Memoirs" that only a difference of opinion between Bismarck and Von Moltke prevented the immediate "crushing of France." The war supplies had already been moved to the French frontier. Afterwards came the famous Morocco incident, when Germany dispatched the Panther to Angadir. War seemed more imminent then than it did even a week after the murder of Archduke Ferdinant in 1914.

Trotsky as Literateur.

Leon Trotsky living in virtual seclusion in the soviet republic of Caucasia is not altogether inactive. He has written a new book, "Art and Revolution," in which he proves himself a versatile and highly informative observer. The man shows again that he is endowed with exceptional gifts. For his new book is not only a brilliant discussion of all forms of art during the great national upheaval, but it contains flashes of true genius. To the world in general the new volume is of greater value than his previous work, "1917," and even his "Defense of Terrorism," which George Bernard Shaw termed "the greatest polemic of the age." Trotsky cites examples of an awakening in literature, sculpture and painting among the young generation in Russia, which contain the first streaks of a dawn of hope for a country that has been starved intellectually ever since the Japanese war of 1905.

How the Little Red School House Looks to Willie in the Spring

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

MASSAGE OF THE EAR DRUM.

Considerable benefit is often derived from massage of the tympanic membrane—the ear drum—in cases of annoying head noises (tinnitus), vertigo, faintness, and deafness. Impressive apparatus is frequently used for this purpose, the phychological effect being perhaps of some value in the cases of persons who like to try novel treatments. But the actual physical effects of the massage may be obtained nearly if not quite as well by the use of one's own hands as by the use of apparatus. Self massage by hand is more likely to be applied regularly. It can scarcely do any harm.

One method is this: Insert the pulp of the middle finger in the opening of the ear canal (one or both ears), drawing the tragus (that little tab in front of the opening) forward and pressing the finger as deeply into the canal as possible without discomfort. The idea is to get the pulp of the finger firmly seated in the opening of the ear canal. Now, by very slight vibration or pumping movements in and out you furnish a massage which influences the ear drug chiefly by suction. The movements may be carried on as slowly as one in a second or as rapidly as eight or ten in a second, and for a period of one to two minutes, regularly two or three times daily.

Another method not quite so effective, though easier to use, is this: Place the flat of the hand over the ear as you would if you were trying to shut out all sound, and alternately press the hand against the ear and release the pressure with a pumping movement. If the palm is in contact in just the right way this will influence the ear drum, chiefly by air compression.

These methods of massaging the ear drum are not likely to work any miracle and I suggest them only for the use of persons subject to chronic deafness, vertigo, or head noises due to ear trouble.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Carrots Good to Eat.

Is there any harm in eating a pound of carrots a day? I have been doing so for six months. I have gained 10 pounds, which I needed. But I have been told some harm will come of the habit in future. (Mrs. S. R.)

Answer—It is a very healthful habit to eat some raw vegetables every day, any quantity from an ounce to a pound, according to individual nutritive requirements.

Others Get Opposite Effect.

I am a woman 62 years of age. I have been helped through a serious illness from what physicians called a "nervous heart," by Dr. Brady's humor and advice. Would you advise joining the life extension institute? (Mrs. E. H. V. G.)

Answer—I should advise you to stick to the doctor or doctors who called it "nervous heart" yet brought you through all right.

Nervous Breakdown.

Can a person with a well balanced mind have a nervous breakdown? What is the result of a complete breakdown? There seems to be more of this trouble now than formerly. Please give reasons for this. (J. A.)

Answer—"Nervous breakdown" is just a noncommittal term employed for the purpose of concealing the actuality from the public.

Let Chief Be Chief, Says This Engineer

Editor Constitution: I desire to compliment you on your editorial appearing in the April 3 issue of The Constitution regarding the subject of the new rules recently promulgated by the fire board.

One day we read in the press that the council and the mayor of the city plan to invite manufacturers from other parts of the country to locate in Atlanta and as an inducement offer them tax exemption for a period of years.

The next day we read in the press of the so-called "rules" and regulations fostered by the fire board to govern the fire department.

The question naturally arises, How will outside manufacturers feel toward locating in a city where the insurance rates are likely to be raised, thus adding an additional unnecessary burden on such manufacturers simply because a few petty politicians insist on horning in where they have no legitimate business?

Let the chief be chief, as he always has been in Atlanta.

Bits of Ocean Life.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

On the Atlantic.—This evening I watched the Olympic ride gallantly through a squall. The sun was out but ahead were low, lowering clouds. We ploughed into the dark through the curtain of slashing rain. Mountainous waves crashed and the wind shrieked. One wave 70 feet high hit the bridge.

In 30 minutes we were in the sunshine again. Then the sun began to vanish leaving the vague violet of the sea and the pansy dusk of the sky. Suddenly the west went black and stars blazed out against the velvet plush of night. No wonder a seaman never tires of the sea.

I have been doing considerable reading aboard ship. Among the books I found interesting were "Stacey," "Thomas the Lambkin," "Gold," "Beggars of Life" and Gamaliel Bradford's "Samuel Pepys." I commend them all. I also read "White Light Nights" for the second time and found it awful.

On the voyage from Europe, owing to the alteration in time as the ship proceeds westward, it is necessary to put watches back every 24 hours from 35 to 45 minutes. As I have a new watch I fear to tinker with it and never know the time. I see no reason for knowing time on a ship anyway.

It is somewhat like the old yarn of the negro in jail calling out to another negro on the street: "What time is it?" The pedestrian replied: "What difference does it make? You ain't goin' anywhere."

The leading news in the daily gigle or Ocean Times today was from Constantinople. It read: "The Angora assembly has approved of martial law in Kurdistan." Still each passenger welcomes its daily visit. There is much good material in it reprinted from exchanges.

I notice in it an advertisement of the Restaurant Marquery in Paris, which has a line reading: "A Feature: A visit to the cellar." That is also a feature of almost any visit to a home in America.

Ship stewards appear to have names different from the average man. Among those I recall in crossing are Skilling, Tweedie, Light, Mussie, Clout, Pedy and Waser.

In every ship smoking room one finds those tweedy looking habitual voyageurs. They generally have mighty cigars in their mouths and magnums of champagne in ice pails beside them. They are maniacs of motion—never content to be in one spot for long. They seek no casual acquaintance. I sat next to one who was reading the Echo de Paris. A steward evidently knew him from other crossings and they talked. As he told of his travels, the world shrank to the size of a thin dime. Since last they met he had been to islands in the southern Pacific, New Zealand, Central Asia and Thibet. He was on his way to New York. Two days there and then to San Francisco to embark for Japan. He was of enormous build and heavily bronzed and drank glass after glass of champagne with gargantuan gulps.

Then, too, there is usually one of those amiable old gentlemen on every ship who seem to take a philanthropic interest in the ship's management. He brags about the meals and the steadiness of the ship. He is always drawing people into the friendly circles in which he happens to be. The one on this ship is really a good sort, yet it is a strange world and I think most of the passengers look upon him as a trifle ridiculous and wish he were not so affable. I even find myself avoiding him.

A Scotsman parades the deck in kilts and other regalia. His knees are bare but I notice he wears spats. That is perhaps Scotch thrift for spats do save the wear and tear on shoe laces.

Let's Go, Atlanta!

(From the Journal of Labor.)

In keeping with the mayor's dinner at the Biltmore a few evenings ago, we wish to urge upon the City of Atlanta the supplying of its many needs through a great bond issue. The phrase at the top of this editorial takes meaning only as it is backed by the common sense of a great and progressive city.

To build viaducts over Central avenue and Pryor street will be a distinct achievement, tending to unite all parts of the city into one great and militant whole. The idea of a south side and a north side in Atlanta must be eradicated. Atlanta has been and must be one city, and this movement tends more and more to bring us together. The mayor is to be congratulated upon his efforts in initiating this important movement.

But "Let's Go, Atlanta!" means vastly more than the construction of these two splendid viaducts. Atlanta has recently had a survey made and completed, known as the Beeler plan. The Journal of Labor says most emphatically, "Let's Go, Atlanta!" Adopt the Beeler plan and make a progressive and beautiful city. The carrying out of such a plan means that central property and property on the south side will be greatly enhanced in value. Millions of dollars have been invested in central property. These investors have a right to realize on their investments through the years to come.

The interests of the city demand that these central properties shall hold their values. Only through the development of certain great streets, such as Broad street, the building of these viaducts, the development of Peters street, and the widening and lengthening of Madison avenue can bring to these properties the values that those who have put their money in them have a right to realize. Only the development of these great interests can give Atlanta the continued progress and advancement that is due us as a city. By all means let us at once catch the phrase and put it into action—let's do as well as say, "Let's Go, Atlanta!"

Let's go Atlanta means that we shall have a bonding credit of seventeen million dollars and see that no child suffers for an education while the mother city has wealth almost untold. Atlanta needs more and better waterworks, needs a better sewage system, more parks, better street extensions, and above all a comfortable place for every child to attend school. Let us say that we shall have it. Let's Go, Atlanta!

Farm Tenant Who Got His Education From The Constitution

Editor Constitution: The Constitution is more inspiring than any other literature in our family. We have not been able during six months' reading The Constitution to find any hint of it being partial or intolerant politically, religiously, or otherwise. It puts everything on both sides clear before its readers.

I am a tenant on a farm in northeastern North Carolina, living with my small family.

My wife and I particularly enjoy the following features of The Constitution:

1. The high esteem in which The Constitution holds our Governor McLean, suggesting him as a possibility as next presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket. We also like the way in which you commend the liberality of our state.

2. We think Pierre Van Paassen must have an awful large head to hold all the information he gives us. He fascinates with his views of life, and in his reviews of the political condition of the world.

3. We marvel at which The Constitution covers the news of the world.

4. We marvel at your enterprise in receiving photographs by telegraph.

5. We like the Bible Talks of William Jennings Bryan mostly because we are Baptists. We don't know whether he is or not, but his talks are soothing.

6. I remember one night I lay down to sleep and couldn't sleep. I felt like something was missing and it occurred to me that I had missed the entire column where Frank L. Stanton's poetry appears. This is the music of all of my reading.

7. George Matthew Adams' articles lifts our thoughts and makes the plow and hoe a real pleasure.

At 21 years of age I couldn't read a newspaper; but now, thanks to The Constitution, I have a newspaper education which I hope to develop to the extent that I can eventually serve the public as The Constitution has served me.

Unitarian Leaders Appear On Second Day's Program Of Conference Series Here

National Laymen's League Head To Make Address at Opening of Wednesday's Session.

Devotional services under direction of Rev. G. H. Badger, of Orlando, Fla., will open the second day of the three-day gathering of the southern conference of Unitarian and other churches at 9:30 o'clock this morning in the Liberal Christian church, on West Peachtree street.

Charles H. Strong, of New York city, president of the National Laymen's league, will make the principal address, following the greeting ceremony by the Atlanta chapter of the Laymen's league, under direction of its president, W. H. Jones. He will discuss the work of the league.

Three prominent speakers will make addresses during the afternoon session. Rev. Frank A. Powell will speak on "Building the Church." Dr. Plato Durham, of Emory university, member of the commission on international relations, will speak on "The Racial Task of Christianity." Miss Sara Comins, executive secretary of the National Y. P. R. U., will address the gathering on "Youth's Opportunity and How We Are Meeting It."

London Pastor Here.

Rev. R. Nicol Cross, pastor of the Unitarian church of London, England, will preach the conference sermon at the evening service, following an address by Dr. Strong. The preliminary devotional services will be led by Rev. T. B. Byrnes, of Oklahoma City.

Chief Justice Taft, head of the Unitarian association, with the assistance of his committee, arranged for an exchange of four Unitarian ministers in the United States for four from the British Isles. The principal idea of the move was to obtain an exchange in viewpoints in the two countries. Rev. Cross is one of the ministers sent to the United States in response to this arrangement.

The opening address of the conference Tuesday was delivered by Gustave A. Breaux, president of the southern conference. He scathingly denounced "intellectual dishonesty and moral cowardice" and called upon his hearers to instigate a crusade against "religious lying."

Speakers Grow Caustic.

Speaking of "the hold orthodox Christianity has upon the popular mind," M. Breaux said: "Some years ago psychologists worked out the 'Intelligence Quotient' as a means of measuring the mentality of man and it is now pretty well agreed that our mental capacity with variations of some 5 per cent is that with which he or she is born. The mentality tests during the world war disclosed the startling fact that in these United States 41 per cent of our population is moron, and if we include the physical defective, the feeble-minded and the insane, then 79 per cent of our population is moron, with a mentality never above the normal child of 12 years of age. Does not this appalling fact account in large measure for the hold orthodox Christianity has upon the popular mind? Is it not the explanation that explains?

"The line of demarkation between orthodoxy and Unitarianism is apparent to all men," he declared. "I have no patience with these near-Unitarians who won't stand up and be counted. The streets are full of them and so are the orthodox churches. Believe me, this intellectual dishonesty and moral cowardice among men and women is no trivial matter."

Rmong other speakers at the Tuesday gathering were Rev. Cross, speaking on "Unitarianism in England;" discussion on religious education by Rev. Lon R. Call, of Louisville, Ky., and Rev. Fred A. Line, of Tulsa, Okla., and an address by Mrs. Minna C. Budlong, field secretary of the National Alliance of Unitarian Women, on "What Next in Alliance Work?"

floor were crowded by deputies and spectators who felt that almost anything might happen. There were portents of a storm when the time came for the introduction of the bill. De Monzie explained the necessity for stern action and then brought his bill from the cloud of speculation that has surrounded it.

He asked that the measure be sent to the finance committee for immediate action and proposed that debate be delayed until Wednesday after the committee had reported. The chamber agreed to this truce to speed action.

The bill is in two sections. The first provides for the increased note mission from the bank and the other for the forced loan proposed by the government. Three instead of the expected 4 per cent proved to be the interest rate determined upon by the government. The socialists, who made a tactical announcement that they would introduce an unadulterated capital levy in opposition to the government measure, forced the lowering of the rate.

Compel Payment.

Although the government emphasizes that the loan project is to be compulsory, it is to be in perpetuity and De Monzie made it plain that Frenchmen who concealed their wealth or refused to comply with the law, if it becomes such, would be compelled to pay up.

There will be several categories of wealth subject to the enforced loan. Slightly different treatment will be accorded fortunes in the various categories ranging from real estate to agriculture and commerce. Salaried persons would be exempt from the law. No limit was placed on the amount Frenchmen may contribute to restore the franc and their country's credit. De Monzie told the chamber that it was understood that everyone would give at least 10 per cent of his fortune.

Until Wednesday afternoon the situation must be static as the deputies cannot come to grips before then. The cabinet approved the measure before it went into the chamber so the financial committee probably will trail along with Herriot. The real fight will come when the debate begins in the chamber with the climax coming when the senate brings its anti-government guns to bear.

CHANCES ARE EVEN IN HERRIOT BATTLE.

Paris, April 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The political crisis brought on by the extreme measures proposed by the French government to relieve the embarrassment of its treasury is now before parliament, with about even chances that Premier Herriot's cabinet will succumb at the end of it.

The concensus in the lobby of the chamber of deputies this evening, after introduction of bills for a forced loan and for increase of four billion francs in paper money, was that the latter measure would pass because the limit of issues fixed by law already has been exceeded, but that favorable action by the chamber on the proposal for a forced loan was doubtful.

Limit Is Exceeded

The chamber was reported rather non-plussed by the announcement today that the increase in the issue of bank notes was to "regularize an existing situation." This was the first public disclosure of the fact that the authorized limit of forty-one billion francs in paper money had been exceeded, although rumors to that effect have been current on the bourse for several weeks. The French parliament, however, was placed in the face of an accomplished fact. The money is in circulation to an amount of about two billion more than authorized by law, and the situation must be made regular.

Section one of the financial bill introduced in the chamber of deputies this afternoon reads:

The maximum of paper circulation by the Bank of France and its branches, which was fixed at 41,000,000,000 francs in 1920, is raised temporarily to 45,000,000,000 francs. It may be diminished by decree.

The convention made April 7, 1925, between the minister of finance and the governor of the Bank of France is sanctioned.

The first article of Section 2 says: "The minister of finance is authorized to accept subscriptions giving the right to government perpetual stock, which will be inscribed in a special section in the public debt record."

Three Per Cent Issue.

The remaining six articles in this section fix the interest on the stock thus issued at 3 per cent and give a list of securities which will be accepted in payment of the voluntary loan—treasury bonds, short and long-term government stocks and commercial paper with three signatures accepted by the Bank of France.

The third section of the bill defines the classes of wealth which must pay the exception subscription, such as real estate, agricultural profits, industrial and commercial profits, mines and stocks, the text thus confirming forecasts that salaries would not be included in this category.

The bill says that those failing to pay the exceptional subscription to the extent of one-tenth of their wealth will be subject to an exceptional tax to that amount or to the amount they fail to pay.

The preamble to the financial bill admits that the authorized amount of paper currency issuable by the Bank of France has been exceeded, as the bank has made advances to the state beyond the legal limit. The excess in circulation, it is declared, was scattered among various items of the bank's weekly statement.

Legal Limit Exceeded.

The advances made to the state "resulted in January, 1925, in causing the legal limit of issue to be exceeded," says the preamble. "The excess was immediately absorbed provisionally only to reoccur almost at [illegible]. We have not to discuss proceedings which were rendered possible by manipulating different accounts which appear in the bank's weekly statements, but we have to put an end to this state of affairs.

"In so doing, we are convinced we are not delivering the country to unrestrained inflating, the dangers of which we never failed to recognize nor sought to conceal.

"We consider the suppression of all circulation and all advances that are not perfectly legal as a necessary step to place the treasury on a sound footing."

No suggestion is made in the preamble regarding the amount by which the legal limit of issue of paper currency has been exceeded at any moment. The preamble continues that the bank has taken the attitude that the situation must be set in order by law, hence the government is introducing the bill to increase both the issue of paper money and to limit the advances made by the bank to the state.

MARX OPPONENT NOT YET DECIDED

Berlin, April 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Up to a late hour tonight the nationalist-conservative bourgeois bloc was still undecided whether to run Field Marshal von Hindenburg or former Vice Chancellor Dr. Karl Jarres as the opposition candidate to Dr. William Marx in the second and final election for president April 26. (It previously had been reported that Field Marshal von Hindenburg had been offered the nomination but had declined because it was not unanimously tendered.)

Despite the confusion prevailing in the ranks of the united parties of the right it was asserted positively that the opponents of the socialist, center and democratic parties which nominated Dr. Marx still were united in their determination to pick a candidate who would make a strong appeal to the voters and that his identity and platform would be announced Wednesday.

"The situation has been discussed thoroughly the past few days and now is sufficiently clarified so that neither Dr. Jarres nor Field Marshal von Hindenburg will have occasion to be disappointed or to be offended if the choice falls on a third man," said the official spokesman for the bourgeois bloc. "We are looking farther ahead than April 26 in our deliberations."

Numerous organs which supported the united right in the first election, March 29, when the voters failed to make a choice because no candidate was given a majority, are in open revolt because of the dilatory tactics of the bourgeois bloc managers. They are accused of making Dr. Jarres appear ridiculous through the manner in which he is alternately boomed and then retired to make room for some new candidate.

Despite the categorical refusal of Von Hindenburg to run for the presidency, the German nationalists have not abandoned hope of having him enter the contest. Admiral von Tirpitz left for Hanover tonight in a final effort to induce him to change his mind.

CARTERSVILLE HOLDS PURE FOOD SHOW

Cartersville, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—The cooking school and pure food show, which is being directed by Mrs. S. R. Dull, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Alva Moore, of Griffin, opened here Monday afternoon, with prospects of one of the most successful events of its kind ever held in north Georgia.

The enrollment in the cooking school has exceeded all expectations. The program is to continue throughout the week.

PACKER MERGER PLAN DEFENDED

Washington, April 7.—The validity of the purchase by Armour and company of the business of Morris and company, meat packers, was defended today before Secretary Jardine, who is hearing final arguments in the controversy to determine whether the transaction violated the packers and stockyards act.

A. S. Austrian, special counsel for Armour and company, declared that government counsel had produced "not a single fact" to show that either concern had attempted to create a monopoly or control prices under the meaning of the act.

Asks Court Settlement.

Mr. Austrian followed W. L. Fisher, special government attorney, who again stressed the contention set forth by the government yesterday that the case should be settled by the courts. It was a question of law, he argued, and as such should be interpreted by the courts of last resort.

Pointing out that during the hearings in Denver, Omaha, Chicago and Kansas City 322 witnesses had testified, Mr. Austrian asserted that not one of them had said the acquisition of Morris and company by Armour and company had "restrained commerce or stifled industry either in the whole United States or in any community."

These witnesses, he said, included 68 large and small packers, 105 producers, 75 commission men, 303 wholesale meat dealers and others directly interested in the business.

Economic Necessity.

The purchase, he declared, was an "industrial and economic necessity for both companies due to the disastrous conditions then prevailing in the meat packing industry resulting from post-war deflation."

"The bringing together of these two companies," he continued, "would result in savings of many millions of dollars each year and would enable Armour and company to compete more vigorously both in the purchase and sale of meats."

Declaring it was "an impossibility for any packer to control either the movement or price of the basic raw material of the industry," Mr. Austrian asserted that the Chicago packers had as competitors 1,379 slaughtering and meat packing establishments doing a business of more than $5,000 a year each. In addition, he said, local slaughtering by farmers afforded further competition, and "no packer can control the actions of 6,000,000 farmers scattered throughout the United States."

FARMERS OF HANCOCK PLAN BIG CORN CROP

Sparta, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Reports indicate that big results will no doubt come from the drive being made over the county for a larger corn acreage this year. The adult corn club composed of 50 members has been enrolled and the boys' corn club has been filled for some time.

Cash prizes are offered to both clubs by the Hancock County Fair association.

An earnest effort will be made to raise all the corn needed for feeding the stock in this county next year and probably some to sell.

U. S. BID IS DECLINED BY PERU POLICE CHIEF

Lima, Peru, April 7.—President Coolidge's Tacna-Arica decision continues to breed bad feeling in Peru and the situation has led Colonel Cesar Zorrilla Lujan, prefect of police, to refuse an invitation to attend the International Police conference in New York.

"The multiplicity of my labors, and above all, the situation produced by the Tacna-Arica decision, prevent me, to my regret, taking part in the conference," Colonel Lujan replied to an invitation from Police Commissioner Enright, of New York.

NOTED ENGINEER VISITS CITY TODAY

From School Teacher To Great Eminence

A young man who was brought up on a farm in Western Pennsylvania studied diligently and qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save up enough money to put him thru medical college. After the Civil War, he began the practice of medicine in the new oil section of Pa., and often rode horse-back thru the woods to reach and relieve those who were seriously ill. He was a student of nature, knew and could easily recognize most of the medicinal plants growing in the woods.

Later, he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., where he launched his favorite remedies, and, in a short time, they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known blood medicine and tonic. More than fifty million bottles have been sold in the U. S. If your druggist does not sell the Golden Medical Discovery, in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial pkg. of the tablets by sending 10c to the Dr. Pierce Clinic, in Buffalo, N. Y.—(adv.)

Oratorical Contest Finals To Select Georgia Winners Scheduled For This Week

Interest Keen as 12 Districts Plan for Elimination Contests in Statewide Feature.

On the eve of district oratorical contests among high school boys and girls, reports from the 12 districts indicate a degree of public interest never exceeded in any public school event.

These contests are to be held on Thursday and Friday of this week and the 12 winners will not only receive the cash prizes of $15 each, offered by The Constitution, but will be eligible as contestants in the state oratorical championship contest to be held in Atlanta on April 23.

The winner of the state contest then will enter the zone contest at Nashville, on May 1, and winners in the seven zones into which the country has been divided then will go to Washington on May 8 for the national finals.

This oratorical contest among high school boys and girls is sponsored in this state by The Constitution and the State High School association, and nationally by the American Bar association. The subjects of the contest orations, which must be original, deal exclusively with the United States constitution and famous American statesmen who have been vitally concerned with it during its history.

Typical of the preparations which are being made in the 12 districts are those at Warrenton, in the 10th district. There the contest will be held on Thursday evening and reports state that praticelly every high school in the district will send its champion to orate for the honors of the district. Among the high schools which will be represented at the Warrenton meet will be Louisville, Lincolnton, Harlem, Wrens, Stapleton, Hephzibah, Stephens Institute, Gibson and Warrenton.

Negroes Lay Plans For Reorganization Of Christian Group

Reorganization of the Christian council will feature a meeting Thursday, April 30, at 8 o'clock of members of various negro churches of the city, to be held at the First Congregational church, corner Courtland and Houston streets. Two delegates from each negro church are expected to be present.

Karolyi To Tell Story In Canada Barred By U. S.

New York, April 7.—Before leaving for Canada tonight, the Count and Countess Karolyi, of Hungary, issued statements thanking the public and the press for their courtesy to the count, who was admitted to the country by the state department on the stipulation that he refrain from any mention of politics while here.

Tomorrow morning the first president of Hungary and his wife will arrive in Montreal. The state department's restrictions will not be in force there and the count said tonight, "When I arrive in Canada I shall be pleased to tell the story I should have told here had I been free to tell it."

Tells of Call.

Speaking of her call this afternoon on William Castle, Jr., chief of the western Europe division of the department of state at Washington, the countess said:

"I went to see Mr. Castle to find out the reasons why my husband was not permitted to speak on politics while he was in this country and to explain our attitude in the case. I did not ask that the restrictions on him be lifted, as we are leaving for Canada in a few hours. I was received very courteously."

Asked if she had been told the state department's reasons for its action in regard to her husband, the countess answered:

"Our conversation was private and I feel that if anything is given out about it, it should come from Mr. Castle."

The newspapers, the count said, "have been not only just but generous. When I arrive in Canada," he added, "I shall be pleased to tell the story that I should have told here had I been free to tell it."

Leaving Montreal tomorrow, the Karolyi's go to St. John's and will said from there for England on Saturday.

Texas Co. Elects Officers.

New York, April 7.—C. E. Woodridge, of New York City, today was elected treasurer of the Texas company, succeeding W. W. Bruce, who was elected vice president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of C. E. Herrmann. Other officers were re-elected.

CHARLES PONZI FIGHTS DEPORTATION ACTION

Washington, April 7.—Attorneys for Charles Ponzi, Boston "financial wizard," today appealed to the labor department for cancellation of the warrant under which he is to be deported.

Ponzi's attorneys, appearing before the board of review, contended that he had been in this country for more than five years since conviction in Canada, and therefore, under the law, may not be deported.

JUDGE BEN LINDSEY LEADING IN RECOUNT

Denver, Col., April 7.—Judge Ben B. Lindsey, nationally known juvenile jurist, today took the lead in the recount of votes cast for juvenile judge in last November's election which is being conducted in the district court as a result of a contest suit brought by Royal R. Graham, defeated candidate.

Making a net gain of 36 votes during today's recount, Judge Lindsey led Graham by 28 votes when 71 out of the 211 precincts of the city were retabulated.

4 out of every 5

Those are the odds you fight in the battle against Pyorrhea. Four out of every five over 40—as well as thousands younger, too—are afflicted with this sinister disease. Will you be a victim?

Protect your gums and save your teeth

Just as a ship needs the closest attention under the water-line, so do your teeth under the gum-line. If the gums shrink, serious dangers result.

The teeth are loosened. They are exposed to tooth-base decay. The gums themselves become tender and bleed easily. They form sacs which become the doorways of organic disease for the whole system. They often disfigure the mouth as they recede.

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. Forhan's is safe, efficient and pleasant-tasting. It preserves gum health, corrects tender gum spots, hardens gum tissues so they will offer proper support to the teeth, and keeps your mouth fresh and healthy.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

"Own Your Home" Officials Lauded for Great Success Of Atlanta's Big 1925 Show

With finishing touches having been added to all of the exhibits long before the opening hour Tuesday, exhibitors and visitors alike at the 1925 "Own-Your-Home" exposition, which is being held in the city auditorium, declared it the most elaborate ever staged in Atlanta, and congratulations were showered upon Clyde C. Stogner, director, for his successful staging of the event.

The exposition opened formally Monday night at 6 o'clock and will continue throughout the week, opening each afternoon at 1 o'clock and closing at 10:30 o'clock. Records indicated that the attendance on Monday night was the largest ever recorded on opening night, but the attendance of Tuesday far eclipsed that of the opening day, according to those in charge. Indications are that all attendance records will be broken by the end of the week. Mr. Stogner stated Tuesday night that an attendance in excess of 75,000 was anticipated.

Many Women Attend.

A feature of the Tuesday afternoon session was the large attendance of women, a large percentage of whom spent sometime studying various exhibits and seeking information relative to building, buying or improving homes.

The Atlanta "Own-Your-Home" movement has a twofold purpose, Mr. Stogner said. "The first is to stimulate greater interest in home ownership and the second is to encourage better, more attractive and more livable homes. In keeping with this aim, exhibits at the auditorium are of a wide variety, appealing not only to those who are planning to build or buy homes, but to those who already own homes. The large array of attractive exhibits include not only real estate, building materials and so on, but conveniences, art work and decorative accessories as well," he said. "In this connection, one of the most interesting exhibits is that of the Atlanta Electrical association, which is an education itself in modern methods of wiring a home for best lighting and efficiency. Another equally interesting exhibit is that showing the artistic possibilities of tile. So perfect has this industry become that it is now possible to reproduce human faces and features in tile," one of the exhibitors said.

Outstanding Features.

One of the most valuable features of the 1925 "Own-Your-Home" exposition, it was pointed out by Mr. Stogner, is the fact that every effort has been made to make the exhibits really instructive as well as artistic, the aim being to give genuine assistance and information to those who are planning to buy or build. To this end most of the exhibits are arranged in such a manner as to enable visitors to study, behind the scenes, so to speak, just what goes into the making of a home, from the selection of the lot to the final decorating and furnishing.

In addition to the many beautiful exhibits and attractive displays, the center of the auditorium has been beautifully landscaped and gardened, this final touch to the general beauty of the exposition having been finished Tuesday morning. The scene that now meets the eye of the visitor upon entry into the main auditorium is one of beauty indeed, according to all who have seen it, the entire front having been beautifully landscaped in living flowers and shrubbery, with an artistically-laid off lawn, walks and so on.

Equally beautiful is Taft hall, where one of the largest exhibits of the exposition is to be seen. A large crew of decorators, under the supervision of Virgil Sheppard, one of the country's best-known decorators, worked several hours Tuesday morning putting final touches to this exhibit.

Among those who congratulated the director upon the remarkable beauty and success of the exposition were G. F. Willis, Charles N. Walker, J. L. Turner, W. R. Sheppard and Roy Donaldson.

"This is the most remarkable exposition I ever saw in the auditorium," Mr. Willis declared. "It is truly beautiful, and I think it would be an inspiration for everyone in Atlanta to see it."

BODY OF DR. LOGAN IS ON WAY HOME

Gainesville, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—A message was received here today by Rev. John G. Logan, Methodist minister from the Near East Relief office in New York, stating that the body of his son, Dr. John Logan, who died in Greece March 18, from injuries received when he was shot 8 days earlier by Greek bandits has left Athens, Greece, aboard the steamship, King Alexander, due to arrive in New York on April 20.

JOHN W. LOGAN.

It is announced that the Near East Relief will meet the body upon its arrival in New York and that a representative of that organization will accompany the body to Gainesville, where interment will take place.

The Logan family here state that funeral plans will be announced later.

Dr. Logan was shot through the right lung by bandits, who were holding up the automobile in which he and three other Americans, all students of the American School of Archaeology, were traveling in southern Epirus, Greece.

His companions escaped injury. They were Charles Alexander Robinson, of Peekskill, N. Y.; Helen Virginia Broe, of Portland, Me., and Dorothy Cox, a Bryn Mawr student of New York.

Logan, who was 26 years old, sailed from New York on September 9 for Athens, Greece, to spend a year or more in the study of archaeology and Greek.

He graduated at Emory university in 1918 with an A. B. degree. He was a master of Greek and Latin langauges and made high marks at Emory. He was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

He also graduated from the University of Wisconsin with a Ph. D. degree, and at the time of his graduation, was said to be the youngest man in the United States to hold that degree.

He has two brothers who are now students at Emory university, Gordon and Thomas Logan.

Prior to going to Greece, Logan taught Greek and German at Randolph Macon college for boys, at Ashland, Va. He was unmarried.

shot last January 13, after a quarrel over the girl's night life.

McAtee wanted to know whether the alienist considered normal a girl who could kill her mother on such a pretext, and Dr. Twitchell said he did not hold it necessarily evidence of insanity. The attorney then repeated incidents of the girl's arrest and her interest, when she was brought to police headquarters in newspaper accounts of the tragedy and in "a bum picture" an artist had drawn of her.

A question about her behavior at headquarters was interrupted when the girl seized the paper cup full of water and threw it. The courtroom was thrown into confusion as women attendants rushed forward to quiet the girl.

GREATEST AIRSHIP LAUNCHED BY U. S.

the cheers of the throngs on both shores of the river as the Saratoga glided into the water.

A score of navy and marine aircraft swooped and soared over the New York Shipbuilding corporation yards during the christening. A bevy of carrier pigeons, too, winged their way southward as the Saratoga took the water, bearing the tidings to President Coolidge.

Evidence of Fact.

Speaking at the launching of the aircraft carrier Saratoga here today, Secretary Wilbur declared that the ship "is not only a concrete evidence of the effect of the agreement limiting naval armament, but is also concrete evidence of the fact that at the Washington conference the question of aircraft was under consideration and that one of the methods adopted for limiting the effect of aircraft in transoceanic warfare was by limiting the size and number of aircraft carriers."

The Saratoga, he added, "is significant because it is a concrete evidence of the existence and purpose and effect of the agreement for the limitation of naval armament, and also because of its scientific equipment.

"The mortal mind," he declared, "has conceived and put into execution nothing which embodies more of the accumulation of human knowledge than the vessel being launched today."

Speaking of the historical significance of the event and mentioning the four ships of that name which have preceded her in the American navy, the secretary mentioned particularly the Saratoga which participated in the war of 1812, "which was to determine whether or not there should be free men and free speech upon the international highways," and added:

"Incidentally, it may be noted that our participation in the world war was also the result of a firm conviction on our part that this nation had a right to the free and unrestricted use of the high seas for transportation of commerce except as that right was limited by international law."

Cost of Air Force.

From the Saratoga's 33,000 tons displacement, her complement of 72 planes of which 31 will be bombing planes, or about one bombing plane to about 1,000 tons shipweight, and her total cost of about $45,000,000, the secretary drew some conclusions as to what an increased air force requires in complementary carrier construction.

"Thus for each bombing plane," he said, "she will have to have more than one thousand tons of displacement costing over a million dollars. As an illustration of how these facts may be overlooked, in a recent examination a retired naval officer was asked 'would you rather have a forty-five million-dollar battleship or a thousand bombing planes?'"

The questioner undoubtedly assumed that a bombing plane cost $45,000 and you could build a thousand of them for the cost of a battleship, but the admiral may have made a calculation something like this:

"It takes a thousand tons of an aircraft carrier costing a thousand dollars a ton to carry one bombing plane; to carry a thousand bombing planes would require a million tons of shipping, this would be almost equal to the combined tonnage of Great Britain and America in capital ships under the treaty for the limitation of armament. It would require in addition to the 135,000 aircraft tonnage authorized by the treaty, eighty-six aircraft carriers of 10,000 tons each. Thus, to take care of 1,000 bombing planes we would have to add 91 aircraft carriers to the navy. * * * The addition of the ninety aircraft carriers to the fleet would require substantial addition to the shore facilities, probably not equal in value to the cost of all of the carriers, that is, a billion dollars, but at least a substantial addition to the present facilities. To man these ninety-one ships would also require that the personnel of the navy be about doubled and the annual appropriations increased by about one hundred million dollars.

"After this hasty mental approximation, the witness who believed in both a surface navy and in the expansion of the naval aircraft program, answered that he would prefer the 1,000 bombing planes. I do not say I have correctly portrayed the mental operations of this witness, but the suggestion illustrates the implications involved in a substantial addition to the naval air forces."

today than the proper working out of this process of contraction so that the result will be an equitable distribution of the synthetic organic chemical industry in many lands."

Chemistry Frees America.

Dr. Herty also declared that chemistry has forever freed America from the possibility of sugar famine by the discovery of a dextrose.

"A brilliant technical achievement now brings on to the market in practically unlimited quantities a white, crystal-like dextrose of 99.85 per cent purity on dry basis," he said. "The future of this remarkable products is unlimited, as approximately three parts must be used to obtain the same sweetening effect at a more or less correspondingly lower price."

Among other reports and papers on scientific subjects was one by C. Francis Jenkins, of Washington, inventor of what he calls the "prismatic ring," which he declared will transmit the vision of happenings by wireless as sound in now transmitted. Radio fans may, in the future, sit at their firesides and see as well as hear what is going on in distant parts of the country or world, he prophesied.

Millions of dollars will be saved to industry, shoes will be less ugly and discomfort of walking will be cut down through revolutionary processes worked out in the nation's chemical laboratories, notably at Columbia university and in Wisconsin, other papers predicted.

M'LENDON SUGGESTED TRIAL IN WASHINGTON.

Secretary of State S. Guyt McLendon is credited with first suggesting the idea that the city of Washington be the arena of drastic experiments in the problem of traffic control.

Some six months ago, Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, called a traffic conference to discuss the growing casualty list from traffic accidents in the big cities of the country. Secretary McLendon was invited to attend the conference by Mr. Hoover and in accepting the invitation, made the suggestion in regard to Washington traffic which, the above dispatch indicates, now is being carried out.

Secretary McLendon pointed out that before a uniform traffic control system could be adopted by all cities of the nation, it would have to be successfully demonstrated in some one city. He suggested that Washington should be this city, inasmuch as it is the only city in the country without representation in congress and therefore there would be no members of the national legislative bodies who would fear reprisals at the polls should any of their constituents run foul of the traffic laws.

rary permit will be granted for ten days, during which time the driver's record will be carefully examined. If he meets the qualifications, he can get a permanent permit.

There will be no one-arm driving either and both hands and both feet must constantly be ready to meet emergency conditions.

"I dont care about the love-making—that's not my business," Eldridge said. "Making the streets safe is my business, however, and I can't see how anyone who cannot keep his arm from around a girl while driving along the streets can give attention to driving."

Lovers Hard Hit.

Lovers, by the way, were hardest hit at the first session of the "night traffic court," where 23 citizens learned that there was no joke about the new traffic war here. Three who stood before the court were given jail sentences.

Several young lovers were caught speeding on the way to meet their "dates." Love had to wait. In some cases, the young men were short of cash to meet the fines imposed, and had to call father, mother, or friend. One man borrowed from a court official whom he knew. In some cases, both the young man and his girl friend were brought to court.

The court probably will pay its way. On the first night, a total of $300 was paid out by offenders.

As yet, no congresman or government officials have been brought into the net. If they do, they will have to stand before the judge, and pay their fines like the rest.

be for the city of Atlanta, former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, state chairman, said Tuesday night.

Leaders Confident.

With the letter received from Mr. Montgomery late Tuesday night, leaders of the endowment fund drive began to feel more optimistic and hope that they will be able to report to the public at an early hour that the drive has gone over the top and in honor to the city of Atlanta.

Dr. M. Ashby Jones urged Rotarians at Tuesday's luncheon to rally to the support of the fund and said that Atlanta could not afford to fail in doing its share in such a worthy cause.

The largest contribution to the fund which was reported Tuesday came from "Atlanta's Own" service company, of the 122nd Infantry, national guard. The sum was $500. Other subscriptions received included those of John W. Grant, Samuel C. Dobbs, Hollins Randolph, C. V. Rainwater, Harold Hirsch, J. B. McCrary, Henry C. Heinz, Fain-Logan company, Moline Stewart company, James Kempton, Roy Dorsey, W. D. Thompson, Charles A. Bowen, T. C. Erwin, A. M. Bergstrom, M. L. Hirsch, H. G. Hastings company, Piedmont Laundry, Southern Banker, and Nat Kaiser and Company.

Information received at state headquarters Tuesday afternoon was that Columbus subscribed over $2,000 to the endowment fund.

Dawson went over the top Tuesday with its quota of $600. Cedartown put Polk county over the top early Tuesday morning with its quota of $1,000 after a rousing meeting held Monday night at which W. A. Barbre, regional director of the drive, was the principal speaker. The citizens of Cedartown subscribed over $700 at the meeting under the leadership of Paul A. Merriam. Georgia as a whole has contributed about 50 per cent of the quota of $75,000.

Gainesville reported to state headquarters that that city expected to have its quota completely raised by Thursday night.

BAD FIRE RAGING IN VIRGINIA WOODS

Blacksburg, Va., April 7.—Forest fires which have raged uncontrolled for four days in Bush Mountain have passed along toward the east in the general direction of the James river in Craig county.

V. P. I. cadets and citizens of Blacksburg who went to the mountain in trucks this morning to render assistance in fighting the flames returned tonight when they were unable to help as the blaze had passed out of their range.

Battery G, 246th coast artillery, was authorized by Admiral General W. W. Sale to assist fire fighters in bringing the flames under control and left today for the mountains where the fires are raging along a five mile front.

A number of mountain cabins and saw mill plants in the path of the blaze are said to be in danger but no reports of destruction of any of them have been received and no estimate of the damage being caused by the fires has been made.

POTASH PRICE LOWER IMPORTER DECLARES

New York, April 7.—E. K. Howe, president of the Potash Importing corporation of America, today asserted that import cost of potash for American farmers has been lowered rather than increased as a result of the combine of German and French potash interests, reported recently in Washington and Berlin dispatches.

Mr. Howe based his statement upon cabled dispatches from Berlin and Paris announcing that the combine had fixed prices on potash for American export at substantially the same figures that have prevailed since May 1, 1923. A ton of miruate of potash which cost the American manufacturer of fertilizer $32.35 in 1913 will cost him $31.10 next year, Mr. Howe said.

"During the war years, when German importers were out of the market," Mr. Howe said, "the price of domestic potash rose to a high point of $500 a ton. A comparison of this figure with the $32.35 price of 1913 and the price of $31.10 quoted for the next year, charts the story."

Despite increased cost of production and increase in transportation rates and notwithstanding the existence of an understanding between French and German producers, prices remain the same as prior to the recent agreement, Mr. Howe asserted.

"In fact, potash is the only fertilizer ingredient priced lower today than prior to the war," he said, "and it is significant that most of the other ingredients are produced in America. The tendency of the French-German agreement is to stabilize market differences rather than to increase prices. The object is to develop a wider application of potash by farmers in the United States. No intention to alter this policy exists today.

The only price increase announced, Mr. Howe said, was on manure salts which will amount to about 10 cents a ton to the farmer-consumer.

During 1924 the United States consumed 7,000,000 tons of mixed fertilizer, of which North Carolina, with 1,189,000 tons was the leading consumer.

Big Plane Falls.

Birchington, England, April 7.—A large bombing airplane crashed into the sea off the Kentish Coast today. Two injured men were brought ashore from the wrecked machine and two others are missing.

Hundreds Seek To Join Roosevelt Hunting Trip

:: PREACHERS AND PRETTY TYPISTS WISH TO GO ::

New York, April 7.—Hundreds of applications have been received by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and his brother, Kermit, from persons wishing to accompany them on the James Simpson-Field Museum game hunting expedition into Turkestan. They sail Saturday.

Colonel Roosevelt said today that the adventure hunting applicants ranged from preachers, with missionary intentions, college graduates, hunters and trappers to feminine typists.

Colonel Roosevelt also received many letters of advice together with an assortment of such gifts as special oil for guns, radio equipment and books. But no radio goes along, he said.

Tentative Itinerary.

He announced as a tentative itinerary, subject to change:

The Leviathan to England where the party will spend a few days, completing arrangements and visiting the British museum for geographic materials; thence to Marseilles; by P. and O. boat direct to Bombay; and rail to Rawl Pindi in India.

The expedition will proceed by motor transport to Srinagar where it will make the "jump off." Packing in by yak and pony, the hunters will enter through the Leh and Karakoram passes, turn due west to the Pamirs and then strike north toward Yarakhand. He said their subsequent course was problematical.

Colonel Roosevelt said their arsenal would consist of rifles exclusively. They will carry no revolvers.

The rifles Colonel Roosevelt said, were somewhat lighter than those his father carried in Africa for rhinoceroses. They are equipped with telescope sights and army slings. Two thousands to three thousand rounds of ammunition will also go from here, he said.

Four Cougar Hounds.

Four cougar hounds, trained to cougar and bear trails, were sent ahead with the first detachment which sailed last Saturday in charge of G. K. Cherrie, Field museum expert, who is to accompany the expedition.

Two of the hounds came from Montana, and two from the Paul Rainey pack in Mississippi.

The Leh pass route, it is estimated, will add ten days' extra marches over the Hunza pass to which the British authorities were unable to issue a permit on the ground that all available native carriers had been engaged by another hunting expedition.

It was learned today that the earlier party comprised two Dutch explorers, the Visser brothers, who were accompanied by two Swiss Alpine guides and a French diplomat-sportsman.

COOLIDGE BACKING INTERSTATE PACT

extended to a large variety of sectional problems which hitherto have been carried to Washington for attention. It is a revival of the old states' rights theory with a modern twist. It harks back to the early days of the republic when the nation resembled a federated group of small nations instead of one large nation subdivided into minor units. Senators were regarded somewhat as ambassadors from their states. Men resigned from the supreme court to become candidates for state governors. One member resigned to sit on the supreme bench of his state—illustrating the relative importance of the state and federal governments then.

Now the interests of the nation cut across state lines at so many points that the federal government must be dominant. But to check the tendency to overload it, the federal government, has in self defense, at last turned back to the states with the plea that they cooperate among themselves more to solve their mutual difficulties. It is a significant swing away from the drift toward intense centralization at Washington, and one which many students of government believe offers the most practical way to relieve both Washington and the country of unnecessary burdens.

ROTARY MEMBERS HEAR TWO SPEAKERS

Mr. Atkinson read a paper on the newspaper business while Mr. Norcross explained briefly the profession of a civil engineer and the great strides which have been made in the late generations.

BOBBED HAIRED BANDIT CAUGHT IN KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, April 7.—A woman who declares herself to be the widow of "Diamond" Joe Sullivan, electrocuted in Arkansas, was identified today by H. H. Southward as the bobbed haired bandit, who yesterday kidnapped him and took him out into the country where he was robbed.

Suffered for 15 years with constipation—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings relief in 3 weeks

Constipation paves the way to many harrowing diseases. But Mr. Williams' letter carries a message of cheer:

I have been using your ALL-BRAN for the past three weeks and it has done more for me than anything I have tried in the past fifteen years. . . . I was troubled with hemorrhoids for years. About 18 months ago I was operated on with very little relief. I tried everything under the sun. Then my wife suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and I say truthfully that it is the only thing that ever gave me relief.

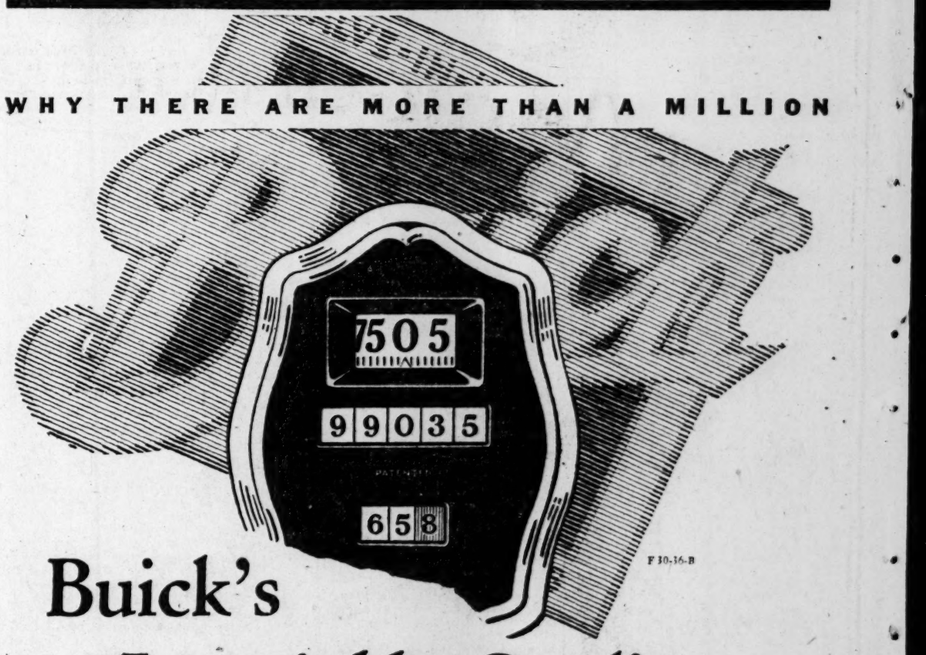

Yours truly,
L. T. WILLIAMS,
1808 Broadway, Indianapolis, Ind.

Cleanse your system of constipation's devastating poisons with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a bulk food that passes through the system, sweeping the intestine clean, stimulating normal, healthy action.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer returns the purchase price. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in Battle Creek, Michigan. Sold by all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

CRACKERS HOLD DETROIT TIGERS TO 6-4 VICTORY

Slappey Hurls 4 Frames Allowing No Hits; Locals Score Three Runs in 9th

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit American League club and the title of the premier hitter of all time, yesterday at Spiller's used everybody but his trainer and club physician in the game that ended in a 6-to-4 victory for the Tigers. Even Cobb, himself, took a whack at the apple but flied to Frankie Zoeller in left field.

The fact that the Tigers won doesn't mean much. The kind of game the Crackers put up showed that the boys of Bert Niehoff have more than caps on their minds. They also showed the kind of scrap that made the Washington Senators champions of the world in 1924.

After fighting for seven innings again a 6-to-1 score in favor of the Detroit outfit, the Crackers came back in the ninth and, thanks somewhat to the weakening of Johnson, Tiger flinger, knocked off three more runs. Two were on bases when Good came up, but the Cracker rightfielder popped to Blue at first and the game was over.

Crackers Show Courage.

All the way through, the tussle was an exhibition of outright gall by the Crackers. They couldn't do much with Collins, former Yankee slinger, who started in the box for Detroit, but at the least sign of weakness in Johnson they came up with three singles that, coupled with a pair of passes, resulted in the final three counters for the home crowd.

Let it be here recorded, also, that Atlanta's temperature is rising with the rapid approach of the baseball season. No cold, indifferent crowd will greet the Crackers on opening day here. Where a week ago a dozen bad passes by an umpire would hardly have stiffened the hair on the back of the necks of the rabid, crowd, yesterday the raspberry patch produced a full, ripe crop—first of the season—when Umpire Jorda called Collins safe at home after he literally ran over Joe Jenkins, who came up, feeling funny in the head, but still holding the onion.

The first two innings, frames when George Pipgras, former teammate of Collins on the Yankee lot, was a bit afraid of turning loose his fast ones, were the Cracker hurler's worst. Niehoff has steadily coached Pipgras into control, but Pipgras yesterday apparently feared to step on the gas at the possible expense of putting them over.

Tightens In Third.

In the first two innings, when Detroit scored all of its six runs in what looked like the start of the stampede, Pipgras was hit for six safeties. In the third, he tightened and gave up only a pair of singles in the remaining three stanzas he slung them. In the whole time he walked only four, which is accomplishment supreme for a fellow who was as wild as Pipgras in the Winter Park training season.

The pitching sensation of the day was Jack Slappey, long and left-handed, who held the Detroit club hitless for the four frames he hurled. With this record, he walked one man. Slappey apparently gave up the ghost of a no-hit session in the ninth when Tyrus came up for his turn with the stick. Slappey grinned in sickly sort of way. When Cobb flied to Zoeller, Slappey, last year the despair of Niehoff and this year the pride of the Cracker boss, heaved a long and audible sigh.

Nick Cullop, outfielder whose name slipped from the Yankee payroll to the Cracker feed file last week, did plenty of disappointing yesterday—that was all. He fanned twice, walked once and grounded to Jones for his share of the entertainment. Cullop, however, has plenty of time to hit his stride on the local lot, and he wouldn't have lasted as long as he did with the Yankees, nor would Huggins tie strings to him when he left him here if he couldn't wallop the pill.

Cobb Switches Lineup.

The lineup that wound up the game for Detroit was entirely different with the exception of two positions from that which started. The only two men to go the distance were Harry Heilman and Red Wingo.

Neun started work for the Tigers in the first by cracking out a double to left. Jones sacrificed him to third and he scored on Manush's single. Heilman walked and Red Wingo followed with a hot one past Red Smith that scored Manush. Heilman tried to take third on the hit, but was caught at third. Wingo went to second on the throw to third and scored when Rigney singled to center.

Pipgras walked Collins to start the second. Neun, next up, grounded to first, but when Rod Murphy tried to make it a double play, Krehmyer dropped the perfect throw to second and both Neun and Collins were safe. Both runners advanced a base on Jones' single to right and Collins scored, Neun took third and Jones second on Manush's sacrifice fly to Zoeller. Heilman's single to center scored both Jones and Neun.

When their half of the ninth came up, the Crackers were on the short end of the 6-to-1 score, with only four scattered hits to their credit. Smith went out to Blue, at first, unassisted, but Rod Murphy knocked a single into left field. Krehmyer smashed a single to right sending Murphy to second and Gazella, hitting for Slappey, walked, filling the bases.

Johnny Brock, taking over the catching work, socked a long sacrifice fly to center that scored Murphy with the first run of the ninth-inning rally. Zoeller walked, filling the bases again. Niehoff, called on in a pinch, waited for a good one and drove the onion into center field to score both Krehmyer and Gazella. Good popped to Blue to end the game.

Babe Ruth Suffers Nervous Collapse at Asheville

Bambino May Be Unable To Start 1925 Campaign; Becomes Delirious on Train

Asheville, N. C., April 7.—Babe Ruth, home-run champion, will probably not begin the season with other members of the New York Yankees, his manager, Miller Huggins, said this afternoon following a nervous collapse of the slugger at the Southern Railway station on his arrival here this morning.

Ruth this afternoon was under the care of physicians who said that he had been unconscious a part of the day. He was said to be suffering with the grippe following an attack of influenza earlier in the spring. Huggins expressed the belief that the player would not be in condition to play for 10 days or more. "Ruth has been playing in these exhibition games simply on his nerves." Hug-

BAMBINO LEAVES FOR NEW YORK.

Asheville, N. C., April 7.—Babe Ruth, the home-run slugger of the New York Yankees, who collapsed Tuesday from a joint attack of indigestion and influenza, will leave here at 3:15 Wednesday afternoon for New York, where he will arrive Thursday.

GIANTS LOSE TO SENATORS IN AUGUSTA

Augusta, Ga., April 7.—A wild relay by George Kelly of a throw from Ross Young to the plate in the tenth inning allowed Goose Goslin to score with the winning run in Tuesday's game between the Giants and Senators. The count was 5 to 4.

Goslin had been on first base and Judge had doubled to right. A good throw would have held Goslin up at third base. In fact, he had stopped there but made a fresh start when he saw Hartley could not handle Kelly's throw.

A home run by Kelly in the sixth inning had tied the score after the Senators had held a one-run lead from the second inning and in the seventh the Giants scored three more runs, all their scoring being done at the expense of Joe Martina, in the last half of the seventh. Kent Greenfield, however, who had relieved Jack Scott in the box for New York, was tapped for three runs. Greenfield was permitted to remain in the box for the remainder of the game but Martina was taken out for a pinch hitter in the seventh and Harry Kelley finished up for the Senators.

BAM CONTRACTS THIRD CASE OF "FLU" WHILE IN TRAINING

YANKEE BUSINESS MANAGER KEPT BUSY WITH RUTH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, April 7.—When there's nothing the matter with Babe Ruth, Ed Barrow wonders what's the matter with Babe Ruth. When the Babe is entirely well, when he hasn't a split finger, a strained ankle or a sliding bruise on his hip at least as big around as a man-hole cover, Mr. Barrow shudders for his precious and ponderous pet.

Barrow was the Babe's governess up in Boston when the vehement infant was first beginning to play the pranks with a baseball bat which have since made him so rich and famous. Then Barrow came down to New York as business manager of the Yankees, whose greatest asset, aside from the real estate and concrete structure comprising the Yankee stadium, is now Babe Ruth.

So Barrow knows Babe Ruth and he wasn't much alarmed to learn Tuesday that the Babe was entertaining another rally of flu germs at Asheville, N. C.

Best When Ailing.

One would not jest about the wounds and sprains and fevers that torture Babe Ruth from time to time between spring and October every year. Yet, he has always come through without permanent damage, and he has played his hardest and best when in disrepair.

This is the third consecutive spring season in which Babe Ruth has incurred the flu in the south. In 1923 and 1924 he fell sick at Hot Springs, Ark., and after a few days in bed, got up shaky and wan but lean and eager. The flu had melted away the blubber that simply wouldn't melt away in the baths and the hot rooms. This year the Babe had no flu in Hot Springs and he was much overweight, therefore, when he reported to the main camp of the Yankees at St. Petersburg.

In the world series of 1921 the Babe's right arm was swollen to almost twice its normal immensity through the infection of a sliding blister on the elbow. Yet he played five of the eight games and made a desperate one-hand swing at the ball in the ninth inning of the last game when Miller Huggins sent him in, crippled as he was, to try his bat as a pinch hitter.

Physical Grief a Habit.

The Babe hit .313 in that world series but the next year when he was without a bruise he made only two hits in 17 times at bat and came out of the series with a grand average of .118.

Physical grief is almost a habit with Babe Ruth. Once he and his wife both went to St. Vincent's hospital and had an operation apiece, an unusual if not unique family adventure. A few weeks ago the Babe took a fly-ball on the tip of one of his fingers and cracked the bone, but within four days Huggins had him back on the campus hitting long flies, as usual, with the finger in bandage and splints. Then there's his performing knee, too, which sometimes becomes restless and pops out of place to wander about his bloomers until the Babe can knead it back into place.

Of course, flu is flu and not a matter for hilarity. But the Babe is Babe Ruth, who is never so interesting as when he is ailing.

MIKE M'TIGUE RESTORED IN N. Y.

New York, April 7.—The state athletic commission today lifted the suspensions of two world's champions and another former champion, and officially approved the Tunney-Gibbons match at the Polo grounds June 12. Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, was reinstated when he promised unconditionally to meet Dave Shade, Pacific coast welterweight in a title match. Mike McTigue, world's light-heavyweight champion, was restored to good standing on his promise to meet any title contender the commission selects within the next 60 days.

Johnny Dundee, former featherweight and junior lightweight champion, who had been suspended indefinitely on the recommendation of the French Boxing federation for his failure to meet Fred Bretonnel in a match in Paris, January 27, was reinstated after a hearing on his case.

No date has been set for the Walker-Shade match, but the managers of the two principals were told to get a promoter to stage the contest. Leo P. Flynn, manager of Shade, told the commission that Shade could make the welterweight limit despite reports to the contrary.

McTigue, who was suspended October 24, 1924, for his refusal to meet Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, informed the commission that an injured hand, suffered when he won the world's title from Battling Siki in Dublin, March 17, 1923, had entirely healed and that he would be in shape to fight within the 60-day period.

TECH AND JOINT TERMINAL MEET CRACKERS TODAY

Jacket Contest To Start At 3:30; Clarke, Courtney And McLaughlin To Pitch

Plenty of action is on the program today for Bert Niehoff and his ambitious crew of baseball artists. The Niehoffians meet the Atlanta Joint Terminal nine at Spiller field at 2 o'clock and will play that team until 3:30, at which time the game, if not completed, will be called and Georgia Tech's gallant Yellow Jackets will swarm in to furnish opposition.

The hurlers for the Crackers in the twin engagement will be Clarke, Courtney, McLaughlin and another moundsman yet to be selected by the skiper—probably Bedient or Fittery.

On the other hand, Kid Clay will more than likely send all three of his hurlers in for three innings each against the Southern leaguers, letting Johnny Conn, Scroop Enloe and Snead divide the duties.

Divide Assignments

Johnny Brock and Joe Jenkins will divide the catching assignment for the professionals, but Joe Palmisano, Tech's doughty captain who was recently signed for professional duty by Tris Speaker of the Cleveland Indians, will have to work all the way for the Jackets.

Of course the Crackers cannot be expected to take the Joint Terminal game seriously. It will just afford them some good practice, but the Jacket game will be a different proposition.

If any of the Cracker hurlers get careless and drop one or two in without much pains, with Wycoff, Tom Angley or several others of the more prominent Jackets at bat, they are liable to bust the old apple on the nose and lose it over in the African bleachers.

The game is slated to start at 3:30 and a lively contest is anticipated.

KELLY SENT TO GREENVILLE

Francis Kelly hard-hitting outfielder who has been with the Cracker club during the spring training season, was farmed out to the Greenville club of the South Atlantic league, according to an announcement made Tuesday by President Michalove.

Kelly was obtained from Waco in the Texas league during the winter months and has shown much promise during the spring training. He leaves, but with a large bundle of strings attached to him.

Nurmi Declines One-Mile Challenge Hurled By Ray

Detroit, April 7.—Paavo Nurmi does not care to run the mile against Joie Ray because such a race "would not be of interest to the public," his manager, Hugo Quist, said tonight, replying to repeated requests for such a match race at the Michigan A. A. U. relay carnival here.

"Nurmi will race Ray at two miles, three miles, four miles, even one-half mile," Quist said, "but a race between these two at the mile would not be interesting."

Ray said he is anxious to meet the Finn over the mile at any time. "The race might or might not be of public interest," was Ray's comment, "but I am sure I would make it extremely interesting for Nurmi."

Nurmi and Ray are joint holders of the world's indoor record for the one mile, their time being 4:12.

Paavo Nurmi had competition from Emil Krogh, Illinois Athletic club, and Jimmy Connolly, former Georgetown university star distance man, for the first 2,000 meters of the 3,000-meter feature of the night, but finished fresh and 100 yards ahead of Krogh. His time was 8 minutes and 56 seconds—nearly half a minute behind his best American time for the distance.

Ray Dodge, Illinois A. C., won the 880-yard dash in 2 minutes 8 5-10 seconds. Charles Reinke was second.

Joie Ray, beaten last night in the mile by Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A., tasted defeat again tonight, Hahn winning the three-quarter mile run in 3 minutes 17 seconds.

TECH-MERCER NET STARS TO MEET

Macon, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Jimmie Sharpe, manager of Mercer's 1925 tennis destinies, announced tonight that arrangements had just been concluded for a series of six matches for bear net teams with Georgia Tech to be played in Atlanta next Saturday afternoon.

The contest will divide itself into four singles matches and two doubles. Mercer's representation will consist of four men, these to be picked from the winners of the singles and doubles tournament now in progress here.

For the doubles it is likely that Andy and Emory Heyward, brothers of Macon, will enter for the Bears, this pair having been through several years of experience in playing together. These will enter the finals in Mercer's doubles tournament Wednesday and are listed among the college's likeliest raquetters.

Bob Bivins, of Forsyth, who won Mercer's singles championship last year probably will face the Yellow Jackets on Saturday, as will either Jimmie Sharpe, the manager who hails from Macon, or "Bo" Burns, also a local boy who swings a mean raquet.

Mercer also is to be represented in the state meet in Atlanta May 16. Week-end engagements are being sought with other state teams and tours into Tennessee, North and South Carolina and Florida will offer one of the best net aggregations Mercer has ever put out for intercollegiate chances.

BY GORDON KEITH

Tech High went into undisputed leadership of the prep league baseball race Tuesday afternoon when the Smithie diamond stars conquered the G. M. A. cadets out at Almand Park by a 3-1 score in one of the greatest pitchers' duels local clubs have produced in many moons.

In the Tech High game, Lefty Hill, supported by a great club, managed to best Red Ragsdale, the cadet moundsman, in nine innings of fast baseball despite the fact that his team-mates were outhit by the G. M. A. batsmen 7-5.

Boys' High showed no mercy on the Typist nine and pounded in a 24-2 victory, at Piedmont Park, while Decatur staged an eighth-inning rally to beat the visiting Marist nine 4-3 in a game featured by hard hitting and splendid pitching Murdock retiring 17 men by the strike-out method.

G. M. A. Starts Scoring.

G. M. A. drew first blood in the third when Ragsdale tripled and scored on O'Neil's infield out, but the Smithies took the lead in the fifth on a pair of hits, two wild throws, and a fielder's choice. McDevitt opened the inning by singling, and taking second on Mathews' wild peg to the keystone. Manning's sacrifice hit advanced McDevitt to third, with Manning going safe at first. Manning stole second, and McDevitt scored when Mathews threw the ball away. Manning took second on the play, and crossed the plate with the winning run when Clinkscale hit a slow roller to the infield

The Smithies added another in the sixth to be on the safe side, but Hill kept the cadet hits scattered and aided by excellent fielding held the College Park nine under control.

Ragsdale struck out 12 men and walked two, while Hill retired 14 by the three-swing route and gave up no free passes. The feature hitting of the day was done by the cadet pitcher, Red Ragsdale, who got three hits, one a triple, out of three trips to the plate. Eaton connected for two singles out of four attempts. Manning was the star batsman for the Gold nine, getting two hits, one of them a double. Allen and McDevitt did the rest of the Smithie stick work.

Strikes Out 17 Men

Murdock's strike-out record was the feature of the Decatur-Marist game, the Decatur hurler sending seventeen batters back to the bench by that method.

Marist went into the lead in the fifth inning as a result of two runs garnered off Murdock's delivery, but the home club made two, one in the 6th and in the 8th, that sent Decatur into the lead again and won the game. Fee pitched his second full game for the cadets in as many games played, and the right-hander is anything but weakening under the strain of hard work.

Decatur scored in the first, but was tied in the second when Marist pushed a counter home and took the lead in the fifth by scoring two more. Decatur made its second run in the sixth, and won the game by grabbing two more in the eighth. With one out in the fifth Brooks singled and stole second. Dicey singled, sending Brooks to third, and stole second. Dare's single scored both runners. Decatur counted twice in the eighth when Walker doubled, Murdock walked, a double steal was successful, and Lyle singled.

Lyle, with a double and a single, and Walker with a double and a single, were the hitting stars for Decatur, while Brooks was the leading hitter for Marist with two singles.

Batteries—For Marist, Fee and Logamarsino; for Decatur, Murdock and Lyle.

Purple Runs Wild.

Boys' High, playing the only game on the Purple schedule this week, evidently thought a great deal of exercise was needed Tuesday, for the Hurricane players ran several hundred yards each rounding the bases after a form of setting-up exercise at the plate had sent a Typist scurrying to far corners of the outfield after the elusive pill.

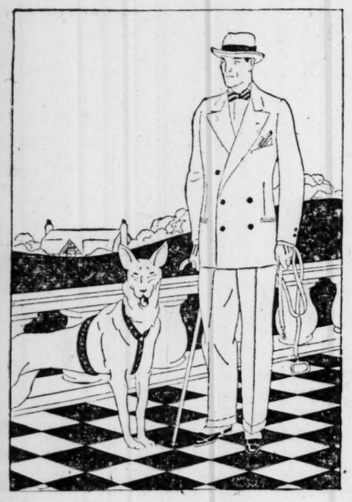

Four home runs and a flock of extra base knocks in the 20 safe hits credited to the Hurricane batters showed to the staisfaction of all that Boys' High can hit hard. Williams, a Hurricane pitcher, hurled his first game Tuesday and showed up well although his opposition was not the strongest in the league.

Stith, Purple second baseman, was the slugging star of the game, connecting for two home runs and two singles out of four times up. McCleskley was not far behind with a four base slap and three singles out of five. Ford was the player to get the other home run, and Stevens found Whitfield for four hits out of six times up.

STRIBLING IS AWARDED DECISION OVER WALKER

Augusta, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Young Stribling the idol of Georgia's boxing fans, won a referee's decision over Hughie Walker, the Kansas City iron man, in ten rounds of furious boxing here tonight.

Stribling pounded Walker mercilessly for the full period of the fight, but the iron man withstood the attacks of the Georgia fighter's terrific pounding. Stribling's left punches came thick and fast during the entire fight, but, for the most part, were ineffective on the tough Kansas boxer.

There was no doubt as to the superiority of Young Stribling. The worthwhile blows that Walker struck him could be counted upon the fingers of a single hand, and not a one had any serious effect. But despite the punishment that the iron man took he was on the offensive a great deal of the time, rushing into his opponent only to receive a shower of left jabs and an occasional stiff blow from the shoulder.

Much Infighting.

The bout was featured by a great deal of infighting, Stribling always getting the better of his opponent in this style of boxing. At the conclusion of the fight the only disfigurement that either man showed was a great deal of blood spattered over the bodies of the two men which flowed from the mouth of Walker as the result of a blow he sustained in the early part of the fight. Walker and Stribling are distinctly different types of fighters. Stribling's skill and cunning stand out in sharp contrast to the give-and-take style of the Kansas man, who rushes at his opponent with deadly intent, no matter left punch was put into use with telling effect, the Georgia boy bounding five, six and seven of his short jabs off Walker's face on many occasions.

The Stribling-Walker fight was the wind up of a sporting festival which was staged in Augusta today. In the afternoon the stands at Warren park were crowded to capacity by approximately 6,000 persons to see the world's champions, the Washington Senators defeat the New York Giants, 5 to 4. Thousands of out-of-town persons streamed into Augusta to see the two great sporting events.

MASCART ASKS TOO MUCH CASH

New York, April 7.—Negotiations for the featherweight title match between Louis (Kid) Kaplan and Edouard Mascart of France, which had been tentatively arranged for Madison Square Garden on May 5 as the final attraction for the historic arena have been discontinued, Frank Flournoy, match-maker at the Garden, said today. Mascart's financial demands, which Flournoy said he considered exorbitant, caused the match to be dropped.

Flournoy said he was looking for another match for that date.

CHAMP MEETS MEDALIST IN NORTH-SOUTH

Pinehurst, N. C., April 7.—Playing a steady brand of golf throughout the 18 holes today, Parker W. Whittemore, Boston, won the medal round of the united north and south amateur tournament here with a score of 76-68—144 for the 36 holes. Tomorrow the second round will get underway with Whittemore drawing Fred C. Knight of Philadelphia, present titleholder as his opponent.

Perfect weather conditions today made the playing ideal and the scores were generally better than those of yesterday which were erratically played due to the high winds.

T. B. Wooten, of Atlantic City, was unable to hold the pace today after he had jumped into the lead in the first eighteen holes in shooting a 74. He required 78 strokes to go around in the second 18 and was runner-up in the first round with 74-78—152. Knight improved his score seven strokes today by shooting a 75 and interest is centering in his play tomorrow against the medalist.

Out. . . . . 444.344.455—37
In . . . . . 335.343.433—31—68

Another to finish well up in the first flight was F. C. Newton, of Brookline, Mass., holder of the title in 1923. He scored a 156 for the 36 holes.

P. W. Whittemore, Boston, 76-68—144.
T. B. Wooten, Atlantic City, 74-78—152.
Richard S. Tufts, Pinehurst, 77-75—152.
Arthur Yates, Rochester, N. Y., 75-78—153.
Malcolm N. Johnson, Cleveland, 81-75—156.
Frank C. Newton, Brookline, Mass., 78-78—156.
Fred C. Knight, Philadelphia 82-75—157.
W. C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburg, 81-76—157.
J. A. Gammons, Providence, R. I., 81-79—160.
M. Ridley, Atlanta, 80-80—160.
P. S. P. Randolph, Point Judith, R. I., 81-81—162.

Business Men's Club Gets Permission To Stage Bouts

The Atlanta Boxing commission yesterday gave permission to the Business Men's Athletic club to stage boxing contests at the club rooms, 38 1-2 Decatur street, every other week. The first one will be staged Tuesday night, April 14.

The matchmaking for these boxing contests will be in charge of R. B. (Stormy) Mott. Mott plans to put on for the first bout Irish Bennie Kline and is dealing with several good men of the same weight to meet Kline in a ten round bout. This will probably be Kline's last fight in Atlanta for some time as he leaves for New York April 15 to meet some of the best welterweights in that section.

Announcement of Kline's opponent will be made in the next several days.

The Business Men's Athletic club, now under new management, plans to hold contests at popular prices of $1 and $1.50 for ring-side seats, plus war tax. In addition to the main bout featuring Kline there will be a semi-final and three preliminary bouts.

Battling Barnett, who has been in Florida all the winter, will return to Atlanta Wednesday. He is open to meet any one at his weight in Atlanta.

BOSS OF VOLS WITHHOLDS VIEWS

Nashville, Tenn., April 7.—Manager James A. Hamilton, of the Nashville Volunteers, frankly doesn't know where he is going but declared that he is on his way, in telling of his baseball prospects in the Southern association about to open.

"I am beginning my 20th season in professional baseball," said the Volunteer pilot, "and experience has taught me that when a manager begins to predict he is handing out a lot of bunk.

"The failure of one of your best players to have a good season and the sudden development of some rookie that was not figured, will mean the difference between finishing high up in the race or down near the bottom. Sickness and accidents decide more positions at the finish than anything else.

"I believe my club is much stronger than in 1924 and I hope to make a lot of trouble for the other seven clubs. My aspiration is to have my players give the fans a good ball game every day."

Nashville offers some interesting players, it was pointed out. Fred Toney, the veteran major leaguer, has emerged from retirement to try his hand again on the pitching mound, and "Yank" Davis, touted as a great slugger, has come out of the west to try to hit home runs in the Southern association. Supporters of the Vols expect Parkinson, former Phillie, to be one of the best infielders in the circuit.

BABE RUTH BREAKS DOWN

gins said. "He has not been physically able to participate in them."

Huggins was tonight considering sending Ruth on to New York tomorrow, provided the latter is found able to make the trip.

The Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, who played here today, the former winning, 16 to 7, leave tomorrow morning for Greenville, S. C., for an exhibition game.

The newspaper baseball correspondents traveling with the teams said that Ruth fainted and that he apparently was suffering from influenza. He has been ailing for the past few days of the strenuous barnstorming tour.

Ruth had complained of a headache and a fever as the players' special train left Nashville, Tenn., the dispatch says. On the trip to Asheville he took some medicine given him by the Yankees' trainer, but this did not relieve his complaint and when he stepped from the train he collapsed in the arms of John Levi, the Haskell Indian. He was rushed in a taxicab to the Battery Park hotel and was carried to his room unconscious.

The Bambino was delirious on the train ride from Nashville to Asheville, the dispatch adds, and quotes him as saying: "I want to go back to New York; if Hug (Miller J. Huggins, the Yankees' manager) doesn't send me I'll hire an airplane."

ILLINI NINE TO MEET AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., April 7.—(Special.)—Despite the cold wave that swept over the Auburn baseball fort the Tiger diamond outfit was busy Monday afternoon, making ready to meet "Red" Grange and his University of Illinois teammates in their two-game setto Friday and Saturday, April 10 and 11, which is booked to be played at Cramton Bowl, in Montgomery.

While the pair of games last weekend with the University of Georgia Bulldogs resulted in as many victories for the visitors, both were real games and the band of Athenians were handed some real opposition throughout the entirety of both contests. In the first affair the visitors got away with an early game lead that was never overcome by the Auburn team. Despite this fact the game proved to be almost errorless and a thriller throughout.

In the second it was a combination of errors on the part of the Auburnites, coupled with a bunched lot of Georgia bingles that came in the eighth inning that untied a two and two draw of long standing and robbed the Tigers of at least a draw. In both contests it was demonstrated that the Orange and Blue were finding the twisters offered by the Georgia pitchers.

Monday afternoon was spent in a 12-inning game with the Tiger Yannigan outfit. As the scrap rounded the ninth inning mark the varsity held a 9 to 8 lead over the second stringers but as the sun rolled around to call it a day the Yannigan tribe had managed to even the count in a 9 to 9 draw.

The varsity line-up was practically the same as has started in the recent games. McDonald was catching, Williams, appeared in right field instead of Market, and Maury, who played centerfield Saturday but who had formerly worked behind the plate was seen in centerfield. The line-up included Hines, pitcher; McDonald, catcher; Wallis, first; Griffin, second; Allen, short; Stewart, third; Williams right; Maury, center, and Self, left.

Slugging of Gillis, Barnes And Tight Hurling by Lewis Too Much for Bulldog Team

BY BOB MATHERNE.

University, Ala., April 7.—(Special.)—Three big league scouts watched the Alabama Crimsons hammer their way to a 7-3 victory over Georgia here this afternoon. Alabama's second consecutive victory came from hitting Thomason when hits meant runs. Eddie Herr, of the Detroit Tigers; Pat Monohan, of the St. Louis Browns, and Charley Hickman, of the Cleveland Indians, watched the game.

Grant Gillis and Red Barnes carried off honors for the day, although Lewis' pitching must figure when honors are given out. Gillis tripled twice and doubled once and accepted two chances with ease. Barnes banged out only one blow, but accepted six chances in the field, making one of the prettiest catches seen this season. Lewis allowed the Georgians only six hits, widely scattered, but was somewhat wild. Two runs were scored on wild pitches and he walked two men and hit one. After settling down in the second when Copen's error started a rally, the youngster retired them in order in almost every inning.

The Georgians weakened their club when they pitched Thomason, shifted Moore to first, and placed Hollis in the outfield. They played a good game of ball, but were simply unable to do much with Lewis' offerings. Of the six hits they garnered, two went to Satloff and two to Arnowitch. Thomason allowed the Crimsons ten hits but forced seven of them to whiff the air.

The Georgians scored their runs in the second and third innings, the runs in the second came as a gift after two were out. Copen banged Arnowitch's grounder and Lewis hit Johnson. A wild pitch sent them a bag farther and Middlebrooks bingled safely, scoring both. One came in the third on Thomason's bingle, theft of second plus a fielder's choice and a wild pitch.

A walk to Rosenfeld, followed by Gillis' triple and an error gave 'Bama two runs in the first. Four were added in the fifth when Gillis doubled and singles by Barnes, Hubert, Propst and Cohen followed. The last tally came in the sixth on Gillis' second triple following Lewis' single.

New York, April 7.—The cotton market was quiet today with fluctuations attributed chiefly to the evening up of old commitments in preparation for the approaching Easter holidays. After selling up from 24.69 to 24.87 July contracts broke to 24.63 and closed at the lowest, the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 3 to 5 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 6 points. The market showed considerable firmness in early trading on covering promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and continued dry weather in the southwest. The latter appeared to be attracting more bullish comment than previously, and some trade buying was reported as well as rebuying by recent sellers on the forenoon advance which carried prices about 16 to 20 points net higher. At 24.56 for May and 24.52 for October, however, the more urgent demand from shorts appeared to have been supplied and afternoon prices eased off under liquidation through commission house and local selling.

Some sound selling here was attributed to hedging against spot holdings or transactions in the south and the late afternoon decline was accompanied by bearish comment on the smaller exports combined with private reports of rain at a couple of points in Texas. Prices made new lows for the day, selling off to 24.34 for May and 24.30 for October, net losses of about 3 to 6 points on active positions. Later rallies of a few points on covering were not maintained, last prices being within a point or two of the lowest on all positions.

A private cable from Liverpool stating that there had been slight improvement in the cotton goods trade at Manchester, helped to steady the midday market, but it looked as if the technical position had been eased by the early covering, leaving comparatively few buyers to absorb the realizing sales later.

STODDARD TO ERECT NEW $350,000 PLANT

Plans for the investment of $350,000 in a new plant for the Stoddard Cleaning and Dveing company were announced Tuesday with the sale of property at 55 to 61 Houston street to W. J. Stoddard, owner of the concern. The sale was handled by Ralph B. Martin, well-known Atlanta realtor, and carried with it a consideration of $50,000.

A new building with 65,000 feet of floor space will be erected shortly at a cost of $150,000 and equipment will cost another $150,000, it is announced. Mr. Stoddard will leave Atlanta for a tour of northern and eastern plants and will embody in his new building all the modern methods found on his tour. The present plant of the Stoddard concern has a floor space of 15,000 feet. The lot purchased for the new building is 117x150 feet, and is located between Ivy and Courtland streets.

SAUNDERS SEEKS TO CHANGE HOUR OF COUNCIL MEET

A motion to hold council meetings every Monday afternoon and another resolution asking that members of council be limited to a five-minute speech on each subject, will be introduced by Councilman W. E. Saunders Thursday when council meets in adjourned session.

At present, Mr. Saunders explained, many adjourned sessions are necessary and by meeting every week members instead of attempting to finish all business on the calendar at each session would be able to give proper time and attention to each matter.

The other measure, he said, would save much time and still would give each member sufficient time to state his arguments on any subject. Under the present rules, members are allowed ten minutes on any subject.

Mr. Saunders also will recommend that Whitehall, Peachtree and Forsyth streets be made one-way streets for vehicular traffic. The measure would confine northbound traffic to Peachtree and Whitehall, and permit only southbound traffic on Forsyth. It probably will be referred to the traffic committee.

TECH HIGH UNITS TO STAGE PARADE AT NOON TODAY

Tech High school will hold its first regimental parade today at 12:30 o'clock on the school campus. The parade will be held in connection with flag-raising ceremonies which Parent-Teacher association of the school is sponsoring. The regiment will form at the military building promptly at 12:15, and will march in formation to the parade ground.

Following the parade, Company "D" will drill Company "A" for the honor of wearing the stars, now on collars of members of the latter. This will make the second time that the two companies have met in the last month. At the last drill Company "A" won by a two-point majority.

The two companies have been coached up to their present standing by Sergeant Tyroff, army instructor on duty at Tech High.

All parents and friends of the Tech High School are invited to attend these formations and witness some of the work students are doing along military lines.

'WillComeBack,' Says Defeated Woman Mayor

Iowa City, Iowa, April 7.—"I'm not through yet, and you can bet your boots on that," declared Miss Emma J. Harvat, as she celebrated her first day in private life Tuesday after holding the office of mayor here for almost two years.

Miss Harvat, who was the chief executive of the largest city in the United States under petticoat rule, had just finished the term to which she was appointed in 1923. In recent elections she was defeated by J. J. Carroll, democratic candidate, by a scant margin of 95 votes.

The woman mayor is a republican, and Iowa City has been traditionally a democrat stronghold. But some observers declare that the fact that the mayor was a woman may have had something to do with the defeat.

One fact which is thought to have told against her in the vote is the vigorous clean-up campaign waged by Chief of Police John Lorak, under the woman mayor's instructions.

"I stood back of him, although I knew it would cost me votes," Miss Harvat declared Tuesday. "The only trouble with him was that he was too honest for some of the politicians."

Carroll declines to comment on his victory beyond saying that he thinks women should make as good executives as men.

ARREST IN LIQUOR ROUND-UP REVEALS IDENTITY OF MILLS

But for the discerning eyes of Detectives A. E. Davis and Louis Zehl, a man who gave his name as B. F. Miller, of 295 Jones avenue, when taken in a liquor raid Tuesday morning, likely would have escaped any different identification. Fate was against him, however, when he strolled into view of the aforesaid officers they recognized him, they said, as M. F. Mills, who is under a $5,000 bond in connection with the wounding of a negro, Herbert Lawson, on January 30, last.

Mills, alias Miller, as the police docket now records him, was arrested Tuesday morning with Luther Russell, whose address was given as 128 Pine street, by Call Officers J. G. Bowman and W. A. ("Bill") McKinney, while the two were busily engaged in unloading 200 gallons of corn whisky in a garage in the rear of 585 Highland avenue, they reported.

When arraigned in police court Tuesday afternoon, both were held to the state court under bonds of $1,000 each.

Officers Bowman and McKinney received a "tip" that a large roadster was unloading the contraband fluid and, so quietly did the uniform men work their way to the garage, that their presence was not discovered by Mills, or Miller, and Russell until McKinney stepped into plain view and ordered the men to surrender.

Officer McKinney drove the liquor car and its contents to the station house, where it was confiscated.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, April 7.—Call money ruled at 4 per cent during the entire day. The market presented a cheerful appearance, even when prices were reacting in the middle of the day. Bad news seems to have very little effect on the market since brokerage accounts are well fortified. The closing tone was optimistic, although a number of scattered losses were apparent throughout the list, and most of them were for the most part of a fractional character; total 1,227,400.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, April 7.—The market withstood another attack this afternoon when severe selling of Northwestern and Savage Arms brought the market down a trifle, only to have it recover again in the last hour. Closing prices as the result of the mixed movement were irregular. The feature of the last hour was several gas stocks, Columbia Gas and Brooklyn Union, both of which made new highs for the recovery. Norfolk & Western was another strong issue. For some time this stock has been in demand whenever the market is weak, indicating that someone is picking it up whenever the opportunity presents itself. Studebaker was the leader among the motors on the president's remarks to stockholders, which again painted a bright future for the company. Trading was again rather dull and may remain so for some time.

JNO. F. CLARK & CO.

New York, April 7.—From an investment standpoint it must be admitted that the market as a whole is at a reasonable level. With many sound stocks at prices yielding incomes at from 7 to 9 per cent, the criticism of inflated values is hardly tenable. We would, therefore, use recessions from present prices to purchase the sound issues.

Grain Letters.

JNO. F. CLARK & CO.

Chicago, April 7.—WHEAT—The Liverpool wheat market produced the initial strength here, which was added to later by a better tone to private cables and more inquiry from importers. The amount of business reported closed its not large, but there is evidence of a complete shaking off of the recent panicky feeling, in fact, a growing confidence in values. The domestic situation is improving, principal milling centers showing independent strength with cash wheat firm and a better premium.

FENNER & BEANE.

Chicago, April 7.—WHEAT—Locals showed a disposition to accept profits on the upturns, but commission houses took the offerings on the breaks. The character of the trade was really best noted in some time, with indications of broadening outside interest. Omaha reported an exporter bidding five cents under May for No. 2 hard wheat, which was equivalent to 5½ over Chicago. We feel that the markets have definitely turned and that purchases can be made on all setbacks. Liverpool due 2⅝ up on Chicago and 2½ up on Winnipeg.

CORN—Shorts and new investors were good buyers, the latter centering their purchases in July and September, selling was scattered and largely in way of accepting profits on bulges. Country offerings light. Cora shows a decidedly better undertone and heavy short covering was in evidence.

Cotton Letters.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, April 7.—While average sentiment is rather bearish and speculation is slow, the market acts well sold out and oversold and seems in a position to have a good recovery with any fresh bullish incentive. We believe it should be bought on soft spots for a turn at least, as the bearish factors in the situation have in our opinion been pretty fully discounted. Unless Texas gets badly needed rains are nothing to cause any material decline.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, April 7.—The market continued a listless dull narrow affair with no feature. Buying from Liverpool caused a small advance during the first hour, which advance was lost when some small hedge selling appeared from the south with liquidation of a few local contracts. No rains were reported from Texas or Oklahoma. The market ruled steady in sympathy with the recovery in grain and the belief that no rains developing over holiday would attract some buying and possibly some short covering.

H. & B. BEER.

New Orleans, April 7.—(A. V. Curran & Co., correspondents.)—Cotton now is selling slightly above the cost of production; the unprecedented boost to business the country was assured of as a result of Coolidge's election has failed to materialize, though with a reasonable economical improvement there should be a corresponding improvement in prices.

Therefore for the immediate present it looks like a weather market, influenced also of course, by the trend of general business.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, April 7.—We see nothing on which to bull cotton at the present time, therefore favor sales on slight rallies. May Liverpool, due 13.27.

POST & FLAGG.

New York April 7.—The cotton situation looks thoroughly sound with a very healthy technical condition in the various contract markets only waiting for some development to makeit effective. The trade demand may not be able to follow prices closely above 25c but the shorts will follow to whatever point may be necessary to get what they must have and on a scale down there are more waiting to buy than to sell.

Daily Cotton Review

Washington, April 7.—On the New York cotton exchange today cotton prices opened from 3 to 6 points higher. May future contracts on that exchange opened at 24.34c, were 24.63c at 11 o'clock and closed at 24.35c, as compared with 24.39c yesterday and 31.10c, one year ago. May futures on the Liverpool cotton association closed today at 13.33d compared with 13.25d yesterday and 17.78d last year. New Orleans cotton exchange, holiday. May future contracts on the Chicago board of trade closed at 24.48c, compared with 24.47c yesterday.

The average price of middling spot cotton in nine designated spot markets today was 2456c per pound compared with 24.56c yesterday and 31.33c last year.

Sales of spot cotton reported from nine designated spot markets today were about 4,000 bales, compared with 3,761 bales yesterday and 5,584 bales one year ago.

Exports today were 9,247 bales.

Effective yesterday, Savannah narrowed strict low middling from 75 to 63 points off middling and low middling from 175 to 150 off, making the average of the 10 designated markets for these grades 60 and 143 points off, respectively.

Reports from the Atlanta territory indicated that strict middling 7-8 inch was quoted at about 50 points on July future contracts at New York, delivered Carolina mill points.

Daily Stock Features.

STUDEBAKER plan to enter the motor bus field according to President Erskine. The Studebaker engine has been found to be particularly suited for bus demand and company plans to put into production a specially built wheel base chasis for bus work.

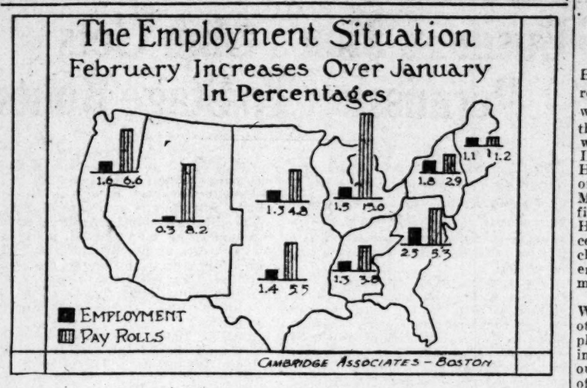

SINCLAIR common was active today as a result of statement that company had brought in a new well at its field at Garber, Okla., now flowing 3,000 barrels daily. The well is 4,392 feet deep and is probably the depeest producing well in the mid-continent district. Sinclair is well protected having probably two-thirds of the oil prodncing area in the Garber pool which has been producing oil from 13 producings for nine years. The crude oil from this new well is a very high-grade and brings $2.70 a barrel. Another deep test is being made about a mile further south and this new field should result in considerable revenue during next few years.

Chicago Cotton.

Chicago, April 7.—Cotton today closed 1 to 15 points higher. Offerings were light and demand better.

Employment and Pay Rolls Show Increase Generally

Country-wide reports on employment and wage conditions, as gathered by the United States department of labor, reveal that increases in employment as well as in payrolls were very general and pronounced during February by comparison with the preceding month. The map shows the improved demands of the industry for labor by revealing that in every section of the country except the so-called mountain district, which is of no great significance industrially, February employment advances over January amounted to more than one per cent.

Payroll increases during the month were even more pronounced, ranging from 1.2 per cent in New England to 13 per cent in the east north central district, which contains the highly important manufacturing states of Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin. For the nation as a whole, February payrolls were 6.6 per cent greater than those of January, while February employment showed an increase of 1.6 per cent.

If February employment is compared with that of a year ago, however, there is a different story to be told. For employment was 4.5 per cent below the 1924 level and payrolls were 4.8 per cent smaller. There has, nevertheless, been consistent improvement during recent months—in fact since late last summer.

Interesting in connection with the employment and wage situation are some figures, which appeared recently, relative to several leading corporations. The United States Steel corporation now employs 243,776 workers at a total annual cost of $444,662,000—an increase of 81 per cent in employees over 10 years ago and an advance of 265 per cent in recompense. Similarly, by comparison with a decade ago, the American Telephone & Telegraph company employs 96 per cent more workers and pays them 290 per cent more. Increases of other leading corporations in number of employees range all the way up to 100 per cent and over. Payrolls of these corporations have advanced, meantime, from 100 per cent to 250 per cent and above.

Prices Mixed in Stocks; Coca-Cola Sees New High

Coca Cola common showed real strength Tuesday. Opening at 92 1-2, it reached 95 1-2, a new high, selling off near the close to 94 1-4 for a net advance of two dollars on the day. The gain in Coca Cola is said to reflect greatly increased earnings.

New York, April 7.—Stock prices opened strong today with the general list moving upward under the leadership of the motor and oil shares, turned reactionary around noon when weakness cropped out in the northwestern rails and steadied again towards the close when bullish operations in the motors were resumed. Final quotations were mixed but mostly lower, the recessions in the active issues ranging from fractions to four points.

Selling pressure against the northwestern rails centered on Chicago and Northwestern, which was hammered down more than five points to a new 1925 low record at 49 1-2 on rumors, later officially denied, that the $4 dividend was in danger. The stock rallied feebly at the close on publication of a statement by President Finley that March showed considerable improvement over February and that April returns were proving satisfactory.

Net losses of one to two points were recorded by Great Northern preferred, Union Pacific, Lackawanna and Delaware and Hudson. Norfolk and Western showed independent strength, closing 2 3-8 points higher at 130 after selling nearly a point above that figure.

Trading was largely professional in character, the day's sales again approximating one and one-quarter million shares. With the short interest materially reduced by the brisk rally in the closing days of last week, bear traders taking advantage of today's reduction in refined sugar and eastern gasoline prices, sold stocks freely to test the market's position.

Although they succeeded in bringing about substantial recessions in a number of the popular issues, they failed to dislodge much long stock. Most of the pivotal industrials lost ground. U. S. Steel common showed a net loss of 3-4 at 114 3-4. The recent decline in this issue which carried it from a high of 128 5-8 on January 23 to a low of 112 3-8 on March 30 was explained by the statement of Chairman Gary, issued after the market closed, that there had been a sharp reduction in bookings during the month of March. April tonnage to date has shown some improvement he said.

Baldwin, which sold as high as 115 3-4 in the early trading was hammered down to 112 3-4 and then rallied to 113 3-8, off 1 3-4. American Can closed a point lower at 165 1-2.

Among the many other issues to show declines of a point or more were General Electric, Mack Trucks, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Pan-American B., U. S. Rubber, American Car and Foundry, Central Leather preferred, Goodrich, Ludlum Steel, National Lead, Pullman and Woolworth.

Maxwell Motors A. and B. touched new high records for the year at 95 3-8 and 64 1-2, respectively. Nash motors duplicated its record high at 340 and Packard touched a new top at 22 5-8.

United States Realty soared more than 6 points to 130 and then fell back to 128 5-8. Independent strength also was shown by Brooklyn Union Gas, Coca-Cola, the Commercial Solvents issues, Mexican Seaboard Oil, Remington Typewriter, Simmons company and Willys-Overland preferred.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent. All day. Time money rates relaxed slightly, all maturities being on practically a 4 per cent basis. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling ruled slighly lower around $4.78 1-4. French francs held relatively steady around 5.16 cents. Local bankers confirmed reports that little use has been made of the $100,000,000 credit recently granted to France by J. P. Morgan & Co. Norwegian kroner responded to the announcement of new financing for the City of Oslo by touching a new high record at 16.00 cents.

DR. CHARLES J. HILKEY EMORY LAW HEAD

Emory University, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Dr. Charles Joseph Hilkey, of Des Moines, Iowa, has been elected dean of the Lamar School of Law, of Emory university. Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of the university, announced today. Dr. Hill has accepted the post and will assume the duties of his new office in September.

Vacant Since June.

The deanship of the law school has been vacant since the resignation last June of Judge Samuel C. Williams, of Tennessee. Judge Williams had piloted the school through its infancy until its tenth birthday, but was forced to give up his work here on account of the pressure of business. The Lamar law school has one of the highest ratings of any other school south of the University of Virginia, and is regarded as one of the strongest schools in the south.

Paul E. Bryan, secretary of the law school, has been serving as dean since the resignation of Judge Williams.

"We have spent more than a year in a careful survey of the legal field in our search for a dean," Dr. Cox said, "and we feel that Emory has acquired a lawyer, a scholar and a well-equipped administrator in Dr. Hilkey.

"His scholarship includes doctors' degrees from three leading American universities. He is a member of the bar in Michigan and Iowa. He formerly was dean of the law school at Drake university and his record there is one of brilliant achievement."

Southern Family.

Although born and reared in the west, Dr. Hilkey comes from distinguished southern ancestry. On his mother's side he is a direct descendant of Colonel William Fleming, of Virginia, who was a captain in General Washington's regiment, a member of the continental congress, and for a time acting governor of Virginia. His great-grandfather, Rev. George Addison Baxter, was the first president of Washington college, now Washington and Lee university, a position which he held for 30 years. A daughter of Rev. Baxter, Mary Anne, married Jacob See, another Virginia pioneer, and one of their daughters, Margaret Elizabeth, was the mother of Charles Joseph Hilkey. Jacob See and three sons served in the Confederate army, one of the sons, Rev. C. S. M. See, being a chaplain in Stonewall Jackson's brigade. Numerous relatives of Dr. Hilkey on his father's side also saw prominent service in the southern cause during the war.

He was graduated from the College of Emporia (Kansas) in 1905, and during 1906-07, the future Emory dean specialized in history at the University of Kansas and received his A. M. degree there in 1907. The following summer he spent in the law school.

The new dean is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, the Gamma Eta Gamma legal fraternity, the legal honorary Order of the Coif. He is a Mason and a Presbyterian. In Des Moines he is a member of the University and Frontier clubs.

10 Years Old.

The Lamar School of Law, although only ten years old, is already one of the few southern schools to be admitted to membership in the American Association of Law Schools, and under Dr. Hilkey's administration it is expected to advance to a position of national leadership, according to officials.

'DUMMY' IN STREET RESULTS IN CRASH OF POLICE MOTORS

The crushed and mangled form of what seemed to be a man, legs and arms sprawled grotesquely, all but caused the death of two motorcycle policemen just after midnight Tuesday.

Hamilton, seeing his partner's move, turned also; crashed into Jones' machine, and both were hurled to the ground several feet away.

HOLDER MAY FILE AN APPEAL TODAY

An appeal in the case of John N. Holder, deposed chairman, against the remaining members of the state highway board, probably will be filed in the state supreme court today. This was indicated Tuesday when Sam L. Olive, leading counsel for Mr. Holder, went to Macon to have a bill of exceptions to the ruling of Judge Malcolm D. Jones, last Friday certified. Judge Jones ruled against Mr. Holder on his writ of mandamus to compel the board to recognize him as chairman, ruling that Governor Walker was authorized in revoking his commission.

It also is reported that attorneys for W. T. Anderson and S. S. Bennet, other members of the board, also are planning an appeal from another ruling by Judge Jones. This ruling threw out of court the C. R. Dawson audit of the highway department, as evidence. It was presented by defendants as containing the reasons for which the governor had discharged the chairman.

Clothing Thieves Obtain Valuable Loot From Store

Merchandise valued at several hundred dollars was taken from the general merchandise store of Philip Glass, 29 Kennedy street, about 5 o'clock Friday morning by two youthful white burglars, according to information given Call Officers Wade H. Dodd and J. F. Nance by Lula Sims, negro woman, who lives at 40 Emmett street.

Lula discovered the robbers at work, she told police, and saw them remove a quantity of clothing from the large window after they had smashed the glass.

"They must have seen me as I ran to get to a telephone," Lula said as police arrived to find that the thieves had escaped.

The negress said she was not sure that she would be able to identify either of them as it was dark and she could not clearly distinguish their features.

In the robbery of a pressing club at 160 Luckie street just before dawn Tuesday, five suits of men's clothes and one woman's suit were taken, Acting Captain G. T. Butler stated in his report to Chief of Police E. L. Jett.

The club, according to the police, is operated by a negro, William Range.

UPSHAW DELIVERS FAMOUS LECTURE THURSDAY NIGHT

United States Senator Walter S. George, of Vienna, will preside at the meeting to be held in the Baptist Tabernacle Thursday night, when Congressman W. D. Upshaw will deliver his famous lecture, "Schools and Fools." Senator George will introduce the speaker, and, in addition, prominent men who will occupy seats on the platform will be Governor Clifford Walker, Mayor Walter A. Sims, Attorney-General George M. Napier and others.

The lecture is being delivered under auspices of the Junior Order and is for the benefit of the Junior Order hospital, recently established in Atlanta. Music will be furnished by several leading band organizations of the city.

Mr. Upshaw is spending this week in Atlanta and Fulton county, speaking every day before student bodies of city and county schools. On Tuesday he made five such speeches, appearing before the East Point High school, Hapeville High, Perkerson school, Mount Vernon school and the Parent-Teacher association at Peachtree Heights. Today and tomorrow he will speak in the various high schools of the city and at Oglethorpe University.

NEW 'CITY BUILDER' CONTAINS ARRAY OF FINE FEATURES

Stanton, Frances Newman, Mary Brent Whiteside, Gladys Morgan, Lulu Vollmer, Arthur Crew Inman, Agnes Gray, Corra Harris and Nan Bagley Stephens.

Walter G. Cooper writes an interesting tribute to Ivan E. Allen, prominent Atlantan, with an account of Mayor Walter Sims' "Let's Go" dinner several days ago at the Biltmore hotel.

There is a varied and interesting selection of articles by George M. Sparks, Dr. A. B. Henry, Fred Houser, Roscoe S. West, Armand May, D. Leon Williams, Fitzhugh Knox, Jr., Miss Nana Tucker and Ernest Rogers. "Uncle Silas On the Weather," is a refreshing bit of verse by Platt Young.

ACCUSED YOUTHS FILE CERTIORARI IN VENUE APPEAL

Application for a writ of certiorari in the appeal on the change of venue motion on behalf of F. W. McClellan, S. J. Scarborough and Ted Coggeshall, charged with the murder of Professor W. C. Wright, of Eatonton, has been filed in the supreme court, it became known Tuesday.

This move will act as a stay of proceedings, though Branch & Howard, counsel for the defense, have indicated that an agreement under which the trial may proceed at once may be reached.

The three men were indicted some three weeks ago by the Putnam grand jury. When the case was called for trial a motion for change of venue was filed on the ground that feeling was so high in Putnam that an impartial trial could not be granted. The motion was overruled and an appeal carried to the court of appeals, where the ruling was upheld.

Chicago, April 7.—Assertions that Italy is trying to purchase 20,000,000 bushels of wheat did a good deal today to bring about a lively fresh advance in grain values. Wheat ran up 5 1-2 cents a bushel in some cases and corn 4 3-4 cent. The wheat market closed unsettled, 2 to 4 3-4 cents net higher, May 1.50 3-4 to 1.51; and July 1.39 1-4 to 1.39 1-2, with corn showing 3 7-8 to 4 3-4 cent gain, oats at 7-8 to 1 1-2 cent upturn and provisions unchanged to 30 cents lower.

An unexpected rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool helped to give an early upward slant to the wheat market here and so likewise did reports that extensive hedging sales at Winnipeg for a Canadian pool had been completed. Later persistent reports of crop damage in Ohio and Indiana tended also to stimulate price advances. The day's top level was only reported, however, the late dealings and after word was received that all wheat offered for export had been promptly accepted abroad.

Reports current as to big requirements of wheat for Italy were to the effect that the need was immediate and that some number two hard winter wheat from the United States was sold today to Italy at the full prices asked. More active demand from domestic millers was also an outstanding feature in the wheat market. Meanwhile commission houses kept steadily absorbing the surplus supply of speculative offerings of future deliveries here, and throughout the day sellers found themselves on the defense.

Corn displayed independent strength, owing chiefly to indications of good cash demand both here and in other cities. Scarcity of offerings accelerated the upward swing of prices and the close was at the best figures of the day, 12 1-2 cents above last week's minimum. Oats followed corn and wheat. Provisions declined with hog values despite the grain bulge.

The Day in Finance

BY R. L. BARNUM

A trader's market is the outlook for some time to come.

New York, April 7.—The movement of prices on the stock exchange was disappointing generally, not only for the rank and file, but also for many of the professional traders. When the stock market yesterday carried through the strength which developed during the closing days of last week and recorded the sharpest gain since the recent downward movment halted, the general feeling in the street was that the market would continue strong until later in the week, when the usual irregularity prior to a holiday was expected to develop.

During the forenoon trading prices in general were strong and all indications pointed to the realization of Wall street's expectation. A broad advance developed in which many prominent specialties as well as many of the standard issues participated. Gains of a point or more were numerous among the better grade of issues, while larger gains were recorded in specialties. In the early afternoon, however, weakness broke out in one or two of the vulnerable issues and this caused a revival of speculative activity on the decline.

The first sign of a break in the upward trend yesterday developed in Chicago & Northwestern. This stock suddenly broke more than four points. At first the general market ignored the drop in this issue, but it was not long before other northwestern rails and industrial stocks, including Steel, Baldwin and other leaders, were selling off with the general list.

So far as could be learned there is nothing new in the northwestern situation to account for the renewed weakness in this stock. In connection with the decline the professionals dragged out some of the reports which were circulated about ten days ago when the company issued its February earnings statement. That report was decidedly disappointing and caused an open break in the stock at that time. It will be sometime before the March earnings statement of the road will be made public. This, like the February statement, is expected to make an unfavorable showing compared with the same period last year. But at the time the February report was issued, near the close of March, executives predicted that a poor statement for March may also be looked for by stockholders. From March on, however, an improvement in earnings was expected.

Periods of alternate recovery and reaction with trading on a more moderate scale as compared with recent months is the outlook for the stock market over the next few weeks, according to the opinion of some of the most influential members of the stock exchange. It is now generally admitted, despite some statements to the contrary, that large blocks of stocks were liquidated on the advance which ended early last month. Since then there has been a sharp break which carried many issues down from 10 to 30 points or more from recent high levels. Following this break it is reported that some pools are again buying on the scale, but it is too early to make predictions that a resumption of the major upward movement may be expected soon. Hence a trader's market may be in force for some time to come. Business generally, as indicated by the numerous earnings statements coming to hand, continues good, but there must be further developments concerning the future course of business before a resumption of the advance in prices, if it actually develops, may be expected.

Many reports are heard about the street to the effect that the Steel Corporation on Friday will issue a statement showing a sharp decline in unfilled orders. One estimate published recently calls for a drop of more than 200,000 tons. According to reliable information, this is now considered an exaggeration and some prominent interests would not be surprised if the report is a stand-off, or even if a slight gain is recorded. Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem, told stockholders at the annual meeting today that the company's plants were operating at 77 per cent of capacity. This dispells the recent reports that the independents were not doing so well. Regarding future business, however, new buying has slackened considerably.

Total bonds, par value, $11,597,000.

New York, April 7.—Bond prices forged slowly ahead in today's dull trading. French obligations held firm despite misgivings over the government's new financial bill with other foreign issues marked up fractionally.

While trading interest in domestic bonds could not be characterized as lively, a steady demand for railroad liens held prices steady. Selling of the western carrier stocks had no apparent effect on the bond list. Chicago and Northwestern refunding 5s moved slightly lower but Great Northern 5s and several other western railroad securities advanced. Gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Norfolk and Western, Seaboard and Florida, Western and Northern issues.

With a slight relaxation of time money rates, investment bonds resumed their upward trend. Some of the Liberty issues held around the high levels of the year and fractional advances were registered by several of the high grade rail mortgages, including Atchison 4s, Baltimore and Ohio 4 1-4s, and Delaware and Hudson 5s.

Preparations of Dillon, Read and company for offering a large block of securities under the Dodge Brothers recapitalization plan countined to arouse lively interest. The new financing is expected to exceed $100,000,000 and probably will be placed on the market late this week.

MONEY AT WORK

BEHIND MUNICIPAL BONDS

A man said yesterday that municipal bonds were the safest investment for the average man, because they are a first mortgage on all the property in the town. Was he right?

As is true in most cases when a man makes a general statement, he was partly right and partly wrong. Municipal bonds are one of the safest investments for the average man, but not for the reason our friend gave.

Municipal bonds are not a first mortgage on all of the property in town. Assume for a minute that they were. Then if you wanted to mortgage your house, the banker would have to check over the present and future expenses of the city to determine to what extent the city had already mortgaged it. Again, suppose that the city defaulted and the bondholders foreclosed. Whose property would they sell first to satisfy their claim?

No, municipal bonds are not secured by a first mortgage on all of the property. They are not even a first mortgage on the property which the city owns, such as schools, parks, etc. They are secured by tax power. If the bonds are legally issued, taxes must be raised ugh enough to take care of the charges on them.

Is that good security? An old familiar saying indicates it is. "There are only two sure things, death and taxes."

SLAMS AND SALAAMS

By Louise Dooly

THE thin woman feels in her heart that no woman but the slender woman can possibly have any style.

The fat woman knows in her heart that everybody who has a real eye for beauty prefers curves to straight lines.

ONE woman's patriotism—or good sense—made her question why Gloria Swanson should have selected for a husband a Frenchman, even though a titled one.

"Why could she not have picked out some American?"

"But," somebody retorted, "she did try that kind!"

It made us think of the smiling remark of a rather cynical woman concerning the marriage of rich American girls to titled foreigners.

"You can't altogether blame them," she said. "All American husbands are not good husbands. And when an American girl marries a title, at least she gets the title."

AFTER seeing the pictures of the Marquis whom Gloria married, we must say we can't altogether blame her. We don't even pity her—yet.

The new husband will never be known as the marquis.

He'll be just Gloria Swanson's husband.

The tone of the castigation, it is true, was one of sorrow more than anger.

But we differ with its reasoning.

It was founded on a poem by one of the modernists, a woman who, we think, was a bit jaundiced. Maybe the cards had gone against her that day. For the other woman's hands on the card table she sees only as "creeping like puffy spiders on green baize."

Now that's not our experience at all.

"Puffy spiders on green baize."

The most inveterate card playing hands, as we have seen them, are not puffy. They are thin and curling.

In other words they are acquisitive hands.

MOREOVER, there is no method superior to a card game to exploit pretty hands and expensive rings.

And why do husbands, why do lovers, give women expensive rings? To hide their light under a bushel? Not a bit of it.

They give them rings to give them pleasure. And it is the natural joy of a woman when she possesses beautiful things to share their beauty.

And did the editor, we wonder, stop to think how many women play cards to please their husbands? to amuse their husbands?

If he questions that, let him watch the average married woman when she is her husband's partner at a slow game of bridge, and count how many times she has to hide her yawns behind her hand.

SOME husbands, too, are so cross at bridge when their partners make ill-judged plays, that one is obliged to be convinced that only the utmost wifely devotion would induce their wives so to suffer.

TO return to the aforesaid poem: the lady who writes it must be one whose "morals" are quite as advanced as her poetic style.

It's all right of course when she'd rather see a woman glean in the fields as Ruth did, although that is not done nowadays in the circles with which Ruth would move if she belonged to the present day.

But we do think it's going some to advocate that it would be better for a woman to sit and wait for the fate of a Lady of Shallott. Or worse still, to choose the idleness of a Francesca, to a game of cards. And we all know what the devil found for Francesca's idleness. A wholesome game of rummy with Paolo might have saved them both. In the case of the Shallott lady, we consider that solitaire would have been a more sensible resort than poison, although not so dramatic. (Or was her diagnosis a "decline?")

(N. B.)—This is no personal defense. We don't play cards. Our rings don't warrant it. Besides, cards bore us. And we are not keen about conciliating partners, male or female, who can't play amiably.)

We smile, we highly evolved Americans, over those races which still believe in ancestor worship; like the Chinese, who thus pass on from generation to generation reverence for qualities like honor and integrity and loyalty to country and family in their forefathers.

SPEAKING of clothes—most women are anyway, these days—that woman is most fortunate, maybe, who cannot afford to experiment; who must select the colors, the styles, which she is sure are becoming.

She is not liable to make the mistakes of the woman who buys a thing just because she likes it in the shop; but who can then throw it away when she finds it clashes with her looks.

Sometimes, of course, it does not work out that way.

We thought until recently we couldn't wear yellow, and we could never afford to buy a yellow gown just to find out.

Well, we got one at a sale, reasoning that whether we could wear it or not, it was economy to buy it, since it was reduced in price!

And we have been unhappy ever since to think of the good-looking yellow gowns we passed up in former sales we have known.

OUR correspondents ought to feel more flattered when we delay answering their letters than when we answer promptly. In the former case, we think of them a lot more constantly because they are on our conscience.

THE most trying type of woman there is: the super-virtuous who concedes nobody's else virtue that happens to be different from her own.

(We have written that "nobody's else virtue," which we admit is awkward, even though correct. The mechanical department of the paper, however, will probably save us from awkwardness, even at the price of correctness, and change it to "nobody else's virtue." If the change is not made, it will be about the first time.)

Of all things in life, vanity dies hardest.

"I HAD an awful time with my first baby," writes Mrs. Theo. Willey, 431 E. Ohio St., Indianapolis, Ind. "They had to give me chloroform and use instruments. They thought I would die. I was only sick a little while and she also was born before the doctor arrived. I cannot praise 'Mother's Friend' enough. I tell every one I see who is expecting to become a mother about 'Mother's Friend.'"

The Story of the Easter Egg and the Rabbit

So lost in the annals of the long ago, is the origin of the colored egg at Easter, 'twould be hard to tell or to claim which is the authentic story.

There's one as good as another, or probably better because so pretty, that goes like this:

Many, many hundreds of years ago, a good and noble lady, on account of a cruel war, was forced to fly from her beautiful home land, finding refuge in a remote mountain village. These simple folk did all they could for this noble lady, but their fare was very poor—no meat, no eggs, for hens were unknown!

Now the great lady was touched by the kindness of these people, and determined to do something for their happiness, so she sent a faithful servant who journeyed back to the home land and returned with a coop of fowls. Soon, to the great joy of the village people, there appeared a brood of bright-eyed, downy chicks. Words could never express their delight at these!

When Easter approached, our lady was anxious to do something for the pleasure of the children. But what could she do? Her resources were exhausted. She had nothing but eggs. Then the happy thought of an egg as "the first gift of a reviving spring." And then the clever idea of boiling them with mosses and roots to give them a variety of brilliant colors, as the earth reviving anew, decorates herself with colorful blooms.

So she had the children to go into the garden and make nests of straw or moss. Then she led them away to the house for a little feast of egg—cakes and simple dainties. When the children returned to the garden they found to their great joy that every nest held a number of beautiful, colored eggs, and on some, short verses were written.

"Surely no hen could lay such beautiful eggs," said a little girl. "It must have been the little rabbit that jumped out of the bush where I wanted to build my nest!" And all the children then, and ever since have said, "the dear little rabbits lay the beautiful eggs!"

With just four more days till Easter many are taking advantage of this opportunity and choosing the many pretty garments for Easter wearing, offered during

THREE GENERATIONS OF WOMEN

Since the humble origin of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in 1881, made on a kitchen stove, three generations of women have used this old-fashioned root and herb remedy for their ailments with wonderful success. Very often we hear of families where the grandmother, mother and daughter testify to its virtue. This accounts for the astounding growth and demand for this dependable medicine from all over the United States and from many foreign countries as well.—(adv.)

Woman's Club to Hear "Tales of Hoffman" Thursday Afternoon

The beautiful "Tales of Hoffman," will be given Thursday afternoon, April 9, instead of Tuesday of next week as formerly planned by the music division of the Atlanta Woman's club with Mrs. W. O. Chears, as chairman. The change was made because some of the artists, taking part on the program, are leaving the city the last of this week.

The resident artists participating in this delightful interpretation of "Tales of Hoffman" are: Miss Ada Evelyn Lewis, dramatic reader; Miss Minna Hecker, soprano; Miss Bertha Sims, contralto; Byron Warner, tenor; C. D. Kimbro, baritone; Mrs. Charles Chalmers at the piano.

Miss Minna Hecker and Byron Warner are pupils of Miss Margaret Hecht, one of Atlanta's most prominent vocal instructors and both artists possess voices of rare qualities of tone. Miss Sims and Mr. Kimbro are well-known in the musical circles of the city for their splendid talents and Mrs. Charles Chalmers, who will be at the piano during the entire program of each musicale, is conceded one of Atlanta's most accomplished and artistic musicians.

Miss Ada Evelyn Lewis, the reader for the operalogue Thursday afternoon, delighted an audience Tuesday in her interpretation of Lohengrin, that beautiful and fascinating legend of medieval times, where the bridal chorus is introduced, one of the most popular selections ever known. This was rendered Tuesday by Mrs. Alex Keese, Mrs. Eunice Curry Prescott, Walter Herbert and Byron Warner. The aria and quintet from Lohengrin was sung by the four mentioned artists, with Preston Enns carrying the solo part of the cantata, and received an ovation from the audience.

Other beautiful selections, which proved very delightful were the aria, "Elsa's Dream," by Mrs. Keeses; Aria, "I Give Thee Thanks My Trusty Swan" and "In Distant Land," by Byron Warner. Lohengrin is one of Wagner's earlier operas and because of its tuneful music, is one of his best loved. The beautiful wedding march, which is a selection from Lohengrin, has been more generally used than any other to precede the marriage ceremony.

Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, vice president of the Atlanta Woman's club, announced the change of date for the operalogue, at the entertainment Tuesday, and also announced that on Thursday afternoon, single tickets could be secured at the door for 50 cents, thus enabling any lover of music or drama to enjoy these beautiful interpretations of the operas, so soon to be given by the Metropolitan Opera company in this city. The stage setting was especially artistic, with quantities of wild flowers forming a beautiful background of pink and white.

Junior League Will Aid Good Samaritan Clinic

As a result of the complete success scored by the Junior League in their recent production of the "Follies of 1925," the members voted Tuesday afternoon at the April meeting, which was held at the Piedmont Driving club, to concentrate their work and efforts in establishing a Junior League Child Welfare clinic in connection with the Good Samaritan clinic.

The Good Samaritan clinic is located on Linden street and is sponsored and maintained by a group of Atlanta's most prominent citizens, with the assistance of some of its most noted and ablest physicians. A committee from the league has done splendid work there since last September under the chairmanship of Mrs. Hunter Muse and Mrs. Ralph Ragan and through this committee many wonderful cases have been reported and made normal.

The Junior League feels very fortunate in being able to have a part in this work, and athough it is by far their largest undertaking, it is the belief of the members that the league is strong enough now to lay aside some of their smaller efforts and concentrate on this one work, which undoubtedly will expand and prove to be a wider field for service

A group of men representing the Good Samaritan board of directors and each department of the clinic, spoke to the league and their talks were intensely interesting, concerning the marvelous work being done by this organization. Dr. Arch Elkin introduced the speakers, who were Forrest Adair, Dr. Charles Boynton, Dr. T. C. Howard, Dr. Floyd McRae and Dr. George Cook.

Mrs. Lott Warren, Jr., president, presided at the meeting, which was opened by the reading of the minutes, followed by the treasurer's report.

A rising vote of appreciation and thanks was given to Mrs. Eugene Harrington, who as chairman of the Junior League Follies, deserves the praise and credit for the complete success of such a mammoth production as that staged by Ned Wayburn.

Those present were: Mrs. Lott Warren, Jr., Mrs. Charles Freeman, Mrs. William Huger, Mrs. Eugene Harrington, Mrs. Robert White, Jr., Mrs. Frank Owens, Mrs. Ralph Ragan, Mrs. Walter Welborn, Mrs. Willis Ragan, Mrs. Wayne Martin, Mrs. W. E. Campbell, Jr., Mrs. Jack Disosway, Mrs. Frank Carter, Mrs. Lawrence Willet, Mrs. George Raine, Mrs. Jack Simpson, Mrs. Walter Elcock, Misses Harriett Shedden, Will Hawkins, Louise Nelson, Margaret Nelson, Marion Darrah, Jean Darrah, Ida Sadler, Mary Ann Epscomb, Callie Orme, Margaret Whitman, Jennie Robinson, Catherine Murphy, Louise Cramer and others.

Violin numbers will be played by Jamie de la Fuente, pupil of Mr. Frost at Marist college; Deneen McCormack, pupil of Mrs. M. E. Patterson; Elizabeth Norman, of Griffin, pupil of George Linder; George Connerat, flutist, pupil of Mr. Wilhoit, and Kermit Ward, clarinetist, pupil of M. E. Correa, will play groups. Those winning in musicianship, who will also appear on the program, are Eunice Howsmon, pianist, pupil of Miss Evelyn Jackson; Elizabeth Skeen, clarinetist, pupil of Miss Jackson.

Director Plans Program.

Mrs. Thad Morrison, director of the Junior club and fourth vice president of the Atlanta Music club, has the program in charge. Miss Elinor McDonald is the efficient president of the Junior club.

With such a galaxy of young musicians, the state first prize winners, this concert promises to be one of the most significant given by the club. There is no admission charge, but those interested in the "medal fund" may make their contribution at this time.

BEAUTY CHATS
BY EDNA K. FORBES.

STYLES IN HAIR DRESSING.

The woman who has long, healthy and beautiful hair is very foolish to cut it, even though the rage for the bob and shingle goes on with increasing enthusiasm. There are two questions to answer before cutting the hair short, one is—will it benefit the hair? The other—will be it be prettier?

Many women have no idea as to how to wear their hair; as a result the proportion of young and pretty faces has greatly increased since short hair came in style. A good barber can cut the hair to lines that will stay once they are put in, lines that awkward fingers at home could never achieve. And, of course, short hair makes everyone look younger and we are in a period when the desire for youth is almost a mania. Even middle aged women with thin faces have a half-grotesque youthfulness about them in these slim frocked, bobbed hair days, a not unpleasing grotesqueness.

But if the hair is pretty and healthy and can be combed becomingly, don't sacrifice it. The bob will not stay forever, periodically in history women have cut their hair, the fashion comes and goes. And it takes many months for it to grow in again.

Try parting the hair simply in the middle, like a Rosetti drawing, with a knot in the back, if you have a nice looking and chubby face. Brush it always to glossy smoothiness, otherwise it will look carelessly done up. Part it to the side, fluffing the thicker side so it covers the forehead a little, and part of the ear, and pulling it all gently into a knot about level with the nose. This is a simple, easily done, universally becoming way of combing the hair. Part in the middle, waving only the strand of hair against the cheek, and comb it back into a knot if your face is thin, this breaks the thin lines and still gives you a classic, simple style to follow. A very faint wave around the face is always to be recommended for thin or homely faces.

Anxious: If you build up your weight to normal, as when you had the dimples, the lines will disappear and the dimples return just as they were before you were ill. Most people lose their dimples because they become too thin or too stout.

Mrs. Mary J.: It is risky for you to experiment any further with the dark spots on your skin. You had best consult a doctor. It is possible that you have a condition in your system that affects the blood, and that the salve that you think caused it had nothing to do with it.

Tomorrow: Protecting the Skin.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be inclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Fine Arts Chairman Has Arranged Interesting Program

Mrs. George B. Hinman, chairman of Fine Arts at the Atlanta Woman's club, has a hobby which she rides so hard that she was presented on her birthday recently with a fine toy hobby horse! This hobby is the correlation of the arts, music, painting, sculpture, literature, etc., and this is the keynote of the program which the fine arts department is to present to the club at its regular bi-monthly meeting next Monday, April 13.

The first number on the program, the reading of Browning's "Abt Vogler," by George Hinman, with piano accompaniment, illustrates this idea. Abt Vogler was an 18th century inventor of a new style of organ, and was famous for his improvisations on this instrument. Around this character Robert Browning has woven a peculiar philosophy and mysticism which governed his thinking at the time he wrote the poem. In it he exalts music to the highest place in the arts, as expressing the spiritual without the aid of material form.

Miss Sarah Moss invited Miss Ruth Hinman to Athens last winter to assist her in a program which the Athens Woman's club was giving at her home. Among the numbers on this program was a reading of "Abt Vogler" and Miss Moss asked Miss Hinman to play a succession of chords which had been written to illustrate the last stanza of the poem. This left the greater part of the poem without music, and the inspiration came to improvise music throughout the reading as a background. Because of the enthusiasm with which this number was received by that audience and because of its harmonious blending of two of the arts, "Abt Vogler" has been chosen as a fitting opening for the program to be presented at the Atlanta Woman's club meeting on April 13. This program will begin at 3:30 o'clock and is open to all interested in the Fine Arts without charge.

The convention received several invitations to meet in various states next year but this matter was referred to the executive committee.

Resolutions were adopted unanimously at the closing session Tuesday morning appointing a committee of five to work in cooperation with a committee on "American Cooperation" which has established and is maintaining a museum to the memory of Gutenberg, the inventor of printing. The federation also passed resolutions expressing appreciation of entertainment provided by the Biltmore hotel and organizations of the city.

Reports from the state vice president and an address by Roy F. Williams, of Nashville, Tenn., president of the Southeastern School of Printing, who spoke of the work of the institution, featured the session.

Pictures Taken 30 Minutes Apart

Time me bring like changes to you
By Edna Wallace Hopper

Then she used my White Youth Clay and Youth Cream—a single application. The picture at right shows the changes which 30 minutes brought.

I have searched the world since girlhood to find ways to such results. Those helps made me a famous beauty, won me a glorious career. They have kept my youth and beauty to a grand old age.

Now I am offering those matchless helps to all girls and women. Toilet counters everywhere supply them. A trial of any will come free if you mail the coupon to me.

My Youth Cream

Is a remarkable creation, combining many factors. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also the best helps science gave me to foster and protect the skin.

It comes in two types—cold cream and vanishing. I use it as a night cream, also daytime as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. My velvet complexion shows what that cream can do. The cost is 60c per jar. Also in 35c tubes.

My Facial Youth

Is a liquid cleanser I owe to France. Great beauty experts the world over now advise this formula, but their price is too high for most women.

It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. My Facial Youth will bring you new conceptions of what a clean skin means. The cost is 75c.

White Youth Clay

A new-type clay, white, refined and dainty. Vastly different from the crude and muddy clays so many have employed.

It purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. Removes the causes of blackheads and blemishes. Brings a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights. Combats lines and wrinkles; reduces enlarged pores.

No girl or woman can afford to omit it. It multiplies beauty. White Youth Clay costs 50c to $1.

My Hair Youth

The cause of my luxuriant hair, thick and silky, finer far than 40 years ago. I have never had falling hair, dandruff or a touch of gray.

A concentrated product combining many ingredients. I apply it with an eyedropper directly to the scalp to tone and stimulate. No man or woman will omit it when they see what Hair Youth does. The cost is 50c and $1 with eyedropper.

My Face Powders

They are supreme creations. No face powders you have used can compare. Mine are exquisite. They come in two types. One a heavy, clinging, cold cream powder, in square box, $1. I like that best. The other is light and fluffy, in round box, 50c.

All toilet counters supply my beauty helps. Send the coupon and I will mail you a sample of any one you choose. Also my Beauty Book,

Little Theater Guild To Star Atlanta Actors in 'Interlude'

In addition to regular members of the Little Theater guild who will present Mary Brent Whiteside's poetic religious drama, "Interlude," on Good Friday evening at 8 o'clock, at the Liberal Christian church, Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson, director, announces that a leading part will be taken by Windsor Dixon, formerly of the Carolina Playmakers. The performance will be free to the public.

Mr. Dixon will be seen as the sculptor, one of several symbolic characters representing human groups touching Christ's life during that unrecorded interval between the ages of 12 and 30, which Miss Whiteside has treated with fine spiritual perception and delicate imagery.

George Bush, a capable actor with broad experience in amateur work will appear as the thief, a character of sardonic mirth and tragic intensity, who is brought under the healing influence of love as exemplified by Christ. Rev. E. J. Bowden, pastor of the church, will read the prologue and take the poet role. Arthur Coddington, who has given readings for the Drama league and Fine Arts club, will be seen as the philosopher.

The alchemist will be played by J. P. Flynn, and Edward R. Austin will be heard as a voice, off stage. Miss Mathilde Garber, at the organ, will give an accompanimento t the lines in keeping with the medieval tradition of the piece

Miss Ellen Lightfoot, as the mourner, is cast for one of the two women's roles, the princess to be played by Mrs. Roger Wilson. The latter is a graduate of Emerson school and one of the guild's most talented members. Miss Lightfoot studied at the King school of oratory in Pittsburg, and elsewhere, preparatory to teaching expression, and her sympathetic characterization in "Interlude" is one of the high lights of the forthcoming production.

Alliance Francaise To Meet Thursday.

The regular weekly meeting of the Alliance Francaise will be held on Thursday at the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel at 3:30 o'clock. The following is the program: Second and last installment of the reading of "The Life of Sarah Bernhardt," by Mrs. Hal Davision, recitation by Madame Laure Lenoir, "Des Nouvelles," by Alphonse Daudet.

A splendid work, in memoriam, is now being done by the French alliance which is the collection and installation of French books in Carnegie Library to perpetuate in this tangible form the work done by various French persons and French speaking persons who have rendered valuable contributions to our city in past years. Each book bears individual bookplate of the person in whose honor it is given.

Matinee Program Is Announced.

Four pictures, each one answering a different need of young people, form the elaborate program of the better films matinee Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Howard theater.

In the first place, there's Tom Mix's horse, Tony, who is the star actor in his own picture, called "Just Tony." Of course Tom Mix "assists" but Tony himself is the lead, and a most delightful picture is the result. No one who has ever seen this will ever forget the picture of the wild horse, looking anxiously after the first human being who has been kind to him, his heart telling him to follow this man, but his experience warning him against it.

Preceding the feature film Saturday is "Sons of Swat," showing the athletic training two twin baby boys, receive from their father. The life of Thomas Edison, with a study and explanation of his wonderful inventions, will be of interest to all, and has been a picture asked for repeatedly by matinee audiences. It is contributed by the General Electric company. Last, but not least, on the program, taking place before the prologue, is everybody's favorite, "Felix, the Cat," in "Felix Finishes First." All this, including a beautiful prolog, is available for 10 cents, to Atlanta's young people.

Information about the Easter egg party at the matinee will be given in tomorrow's paper.

Business Women Will Hold Meeting Sunday.

The Business Women's league will hold its regular monthly meeting at 3:30 o'clock Sunday, April 12, in the Sunday school auditorium of the Second Baptist church.

Miss Mary Ella Yancey, chairman of Circle F, has arranged the program, which is well worth while.

Judge W. F. Jenkins, a most distinguished Baptist, who teaches a large class at the Ponce de Leon church each Sunday and is a most brilliant speaker, will give an address.

The public is cordially invited.

"La Juive" Will Be Presented on Thursday.

Halvey's "La Juive" will be presented Thursday morning at 10 o'clock before the 1925 opera class at the Henry Grady hotel in the lounge room.

The Atlanta Music association predicts that "La Juive" will take its place in the foremost rank of favorites. This delightful opera is a revival of a very ancient French work. It was produced in 1919 by the Metropolitan Opera company and no one hearing the late Enrico Caruso sing that wonderful role of Eleazar can ever forget it. Rosa Ponselle will sing the part of Rachel, and the role Eleazar will be sung by Martinelli.

The comprehensive study of the operas to be given here this season has proved to be a most wonderful success. Many who have had the privilege of being members of the 1925 opera class have so thoroughly enjoyed the operas as presented by Atlanta's very gifted artists, Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson and Hugh Hodgson, have declared themselves more anxious to attend grand opera this season than ever before. The reason they assure you is the more perfect understanding of the operas following the delightful interpretation of both the reconteur and pianist.

In these readings Mrs. Jackson wears most bewitching costumes of the period in which the operas were written, making it a joy both to see and to hear her as she interprets the leading roles. Single tickets are on sale at the door for $1.

SUFFERED FROM BAD HEADACHE

Lady Says She Found Black-Draught Helpful and After Long Use Recommends It to Others.

Berea, Ky.—"I have known of Black-Draught about all of my life," says Mrs. W. G. Pigg, of this place. "My mother gave it to me when I was a child, for colds or when I would come in feeling bad from overeating or from childish ailments.

"After I was grown, I had very severe headaches and suffered intensely. So many times headache is from the disordered stomach or liver. I found that when I took Black-Draught, it would help me—just a few doses and it seemed the headache was less and less.

"I have used Black-Draught all during my married life.

"When I would have indigestion, I would take a dose of Black-Draught. It will help the sour, bitter taste in the mouth and tightness after meals.

"It is good to take for a cold. It will cleanse the system and make one feel like new.

"I don't know of any better medicine than Black-Draught. I have recommended it to others and will continue to do so for it has proved very satisfactory."

Thedford's Black-Draught is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, carefully mixed in proportions which have been determined by long experience and scientific research.

The Love Cycle

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

Who, except the Marlowes, scrimp and sacrifice to made the project a success.

YOUNG HAL MANSFIELD gives up the thought of college.

LITTLE HELEN WESTON wears made-over clothes, but—

THE END OF A DREAM.

The morning after Henry Mansfield's funeral, his widow sat at the breakfast table, dry-eyed, a trifle white-lipped, and wondered silently from where the food was coming to feed the three hungry children who bolted their oatmeal with an eye on the clock which was approaching perilously close to the school hour.

With the buoyancy of youth, they had already begun to cast off the awe and depression occasioned by the presence of death in the household. Only Hal—eighteen and looking twenty—was fully cognizant of the calamity which had befallen them. His awkward efforts at comfort touched his mother deeply, but she knew that youth, which cannot conceive of death, would soon make even him forget and she would be left alone in her sorrow.

Later in the day, when Weston came and told her the full extent of her late husband's obligations, she realized that sorrow is a luxury she could not afford to indulge.

The estate of Henry Mansfield amounted to practically nothing, according to Weston. Mansfield had put less than the other two men into the founding of the Weston Motor and he had been forced frequently to draw on his capital. There was a small bank account, some worthless stock in the safe deposit vault and a small interest in the Weston Motor company. This latter, in the form of stocks, Mrs. Mansfield wished to sell because of her pressing need for ready money, but Weston advised against it.

"You'll make a mistake if you do it," he told her, towering big and forceful above her as she sat quietly in a chair in her darkened parlor, wearing the simplest of mourning.

She had always been in awe of Edward Weston, but that day, he dominated her completely. She felt helpless and bewildered by the absence of the husband on whom she had leaned trustingly for 20 years.

"I strongly advise you, Mrs. Mansfield, as your late husband's friend, to leave your affairs in my hands. It may take some time before your stock pays worthwhile dividends, but mark my words, the Weston Motor company is going to boom and pretty quick at that. If you stick with Marlowe and me, we'll all be rich yet and rich in a way you never dreamed of."

"But in the meantime, how will I live? Remember I have three hungry children to feed. I can't go out to work and earn money, because I have never been trained to do anything but manage a house."

"Hmm," Weston stroked his mustache thoughtfully, "it's a pretty tough situation. You have my sympathy. How old is Henry Junior?"

"Eighteen last month," she answered proudly.

"Indeed! Then it is he who should be talking of going to work instead of yourself."

"Oh, Mr. Weston, no!" there were actual tears in the widow's voice. "I have my heart set on his going to college. He is so bright. I want him to have a profession—law, or medicine, or something—not to be just a clerk."

"But surely you realize the absurdity of that ambition—with your finances in the state they are?"

"He could work his way through college," she suggested falteringly.

"He'd a sight better work for you," said Weston grimly, "besides, college education is all nonsense. Look at me, for instance. I never got further than grammar school because I had to go to work selling newspapers to support the family and you would not call me exactly a failure, would you? Marlowe went to prep school but never reached college and you'd hardly find a man better informed. He can carry himself well in any society."

"But Henry was a college man," insisted Mrs. Mansfield, "and he did so want Hal to follow in his footsteps."

"Much good Henry's college education did him," muttered Weston. "Now, listen—I'll tell you what I will do: If you'll be sensible and give up this college idea, I'll make a place for young Henry in my office and teach him something that will do him good in the future. My secretary is getting pretty old, he needs an assistant and young Henry, if he proves worth his salt, can work into his job in time."

Mrs. Mansfield was silent. It was a bitter moment of renunciation of a long-cherished dream. She was not sure she could do it. She glanced up at Weston appealingly, hoping for a little sympathy and understanding

But he was all the man of business, eyes flinty, lips compressed. His fingers impatiently twirled the heavy gold watch-chain across his waistcoat. His manner said distinctly that by her hesitation she was wasting his valuable time.

But when he had gone, she wept as she had wept the night Henry Mansfield died. Her tears were the tears of Rachel. She wept over the departure of the first fledgling from the next.

BROKER GIVEN YEAR ON BUCKETING CHARGE

New York, April 7.—John F. McMasters, 63 years old, who was head of the brokerage firm of R. H. McMasters & Company which failed for $1,250,000 in 1923, today was sentenced to serve not more than one year in the penitentiary for bucketing customers' orders. He was convicted last week. Roy H. McMasters, stepson of the defendant, who is under indictment on the same charge, was one of the state's principal witnesses. He will be tried after the elder man's case had been disposed of in a higher court to which an appeal has been taken.

Waynesboro Chautuaqua.

All the churches of the ceity are cooperating with the revival. Easter Sunday will bring it to a close.

COLOR CUT-OUTS

Three Spinners

THE THIRD SPINNER.

Today you will read one chapter of the story of "The Three Spinners." Have you been following this fairy tale? If you have, you will soon have a whole set of "Three Spinners" paper dolls.

The fairy spinners then took their places in the second room and began to spin. It seemed to the girl that they spun even faster than they had the first day. And indeed so fast did they spin that long before the evening of the next day when the queen came again all the flax in the second room had been spun.

When the queen saw all that had been done she was filled with wonder. She had never heard of any one who could spin so fast.

"Tomorrow," she said, "you shall spin the flax in the third room and the following day you shall be married to my son."

(The dress and hood of the third spinner should be colored tan. Now we have all of the drab, homely spinners and tomorrow we shall meet some one more exciting.)

WASHINGTON DEFERS DUNS ON WAR DEBTS

Washington, April 7.—Diplomatic inquries at the state department have disclosed that the Washington government has deferred indefinitely any plans it may have for calling attention of debtor nations in a formal way to its desire that war debt refunding agreements be taken up for serious discussion.

The inquiries were prompted by circulation in congressional circles of a rumor that notes of this nature would soon be sent to the debtor powers. Assurances that no such step was in immediate contemplation were forthcoming, it being added that such a project would be talked over with the debt funding commission before the state department took action. Several members of the commission are out of Washington.

The diplomatic callers have gained an impression that the present financial crisis and accompanying political situation in France have been given due consideration by Washington officials as it bears on any present discussion of the deft settlement question.

It is believed to be recognized here that France is not now in a position to give favorable reply to suggestion that refunding negotiations be initiated.

In the Garden With Burbank

As Reported by Elizabeth Urquhart
And Edited by Luther Burbank

Foreword from Mr. Burbank

This series of articles has been prepared by Mrs. Urquhart by my aid and permission for the benefit of all who may not know how to proceed in the delightful health giving pastime of home gardening, and to relieve me of thousands of letters to which I have no time for reply.

Luther Burbank

THE MASTER GARDENER.

There are gardens east and west, gardens great and small, gardens made by wealth and gardens made by love, and who shall measure the joy in the making?

But as the man of wealth builds a house in the country and surrounds it with lawns and flowers and pools and terraces, so the everyday garden lover, who goes by the name of Amateur, longs for a bit of ground whereon to plant growing things, and as all doors open to love, he too may have a garden that shall be a fulfillment of his dreams.

But this amateur does not always know how to go about it, much as he may long to find the best way and how to take the first steps.

In his search for information, however, he will not go far without learning something at least of the work of the Master Gardener, Luther Burbank, who has done more than any other man to breathe new life into gardens and has given to the world new forms of beauty and use in plant life.

This great breeder of plants and creator of new forms has never sought to keep to himself the great truths he has learned by years of patient labor, but has looked upon his work as a service to humanity and has always been ready, as now, to share with others the fruits of his discoveries and to set all aspiring beginners on the right road to success.

Luther Burbanks belongs neither to the east nor to the west, but to all the world; he has worked not for one section or for one country alone, but for all mankind and with the spirit of the true scientist his valuable gifts have been as generously dispersed as his contributions to science itself.

In Massachusetts, where he was born and where he passed his early life, he produced his well-known Burbank potato which has always remained connected with his name, and there his fame is as great as in the west, where he has spent many years of his life and where he has conducted the majority of his experiments.

These experiments have ranged over wide fields of research from trees to vegetables, from grains to flowers, and the many perfected forms and new creations have found homes all over the world.

Mr. Burbank, although working under a favorable climate in the west, has always sought to adapt the plants he has produced and modified to other climates and to fit them for usefulness in as many parts of the world as possible.

His seeds are widely scattered and from near and far come recognition and reports of successful culture. The chorus swells from Alaska to South America, and from Siberia to India and South Africa, to say nothing of the South Sea Islands; and if these magic seeds can establish themselves so successfully in foreign parts, surely the home gardener may hope for success by faithfully following directions and by building his garden along the lines of Mr. Burbank's methods and instructions.

Mr. Burbank emphasizes the fact that these methods, which have been tested over a period of many years, may well be applied to garden work in general and to the growth of everyday plants, so that into any garden, anywhere, if only the gate be opened, the spirit of Luther Burbank may enter, creating new beauty and inspiring new enthusiasm for perfection.

In such a garden this everyday amateur need not fear to walk and to work; he will find the Master Gardener and then, if he be wise, proceeds to carry out instructions.

Luther Burbanks in one of his extensive gardens.

In this series of articles Mr. Burbank not only will help you to develop flower and vegetable gardens, lawns, shrubs, orchards and other products of nature, but will tell of his many plant creations and how the laymen may carry on the great work, interspersing his talks with stories of his life and with thoughts that have made him famous as a philosopher as well as a scientist.

Tomorrow—Mr. Burbank Tells The rist step.

CHAPTER 37—IS IT WORTH WHILE?
The World Would Be Duller Without It.

A new Manhattan town house, one of the most exquisite in America, was recently opened. The family moved in from the big rambling mansion that had been the old home.

I said to the mistress of all that grandeur:

"You must feel at peace with the world in a beautiful place like this."

"Yes, I am," she said. "I am much quieter. The house has a soothing effect on me."

But the effect on her daughter was different.

"Can you see me walking around here in a shirt waist and skirt?" she demanded. "No, I ought to be dressed like the classic Greeks!"

The mother indulgently smiled away the objection. She was, sincerely and deeply, happy.

Yet I doubt if many of my women readers would change places with that blissfully contented society woman, with the many responsibilities and demands of her life. Even as she talked with her daughter and me she was counting minutes, for the elevator on her boudoir floor was waiting for her and down below was the limousine in readiness to hurry her to one of the routine luncheon engagements.

After all, whatever one has in abundance brings satiety, and even society people themselves become totally "fed up" at times and long for the freedom and comfort of solitude.

I have been very close to New York society folk, and in mid-season I don't believe I would care to exchange my quieter, more normal way of living for all the dazzle of the society machine. Perhaps I would think differently if I were on the inside looking out.

It must be a great satisfaction to to have everything one can buy.

It undoubtedly is a great pleasure to be in the swim and to know that, at least so far as entertainment is concerned, you are at the limit of human attainment. There must be a kind of ecstasy in the homage everyone gives to you as an "uppermost class" person.

And, when one is raised above nearly all the cares of this world, it would seem that the intercourse of an exclusive society is the best activity available.

The great expense necessary to maintain a society household keeps currency in circulation and gives congenial employment to thousands and throws off a prismatic glitter that probably inspires many in the community.

It certainly would be a duller world without our "highest society," without the beautiful mansions of Fifth avenue, without the great country places, without the opera (for society maintains the opera), without the colorful glimpses of society people and without everything that they mean in limousines, private cars and yachts.

But the society machine does grind exceedingly fast!

CRAIG LOSES PRESTIGE ON ULSTER ELECTION

Belfast, April 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—In the parliamentary elections just held, the government of Premier Craig, while retaining a solid majority, suffered a serious decline of prestige in the loss of seven seats—three to labor and three to independent unionists in Belfast, and one to the farmers', or tenants' nominee in Antrim.

All of the cabinet ministers were re-elected, but some minor governments were defeated.

The new house will consist of 32 unionists, 10 nationalists, two republicans, four independents, three laborites (socialists) and one tenants' party.

The republican candidates cut rather a sorry figure; they had six members in the old parliament, and have only two, including Eamon de Valera, in the new. The nationalists, on the other hand, scored a triumph, Joseph Delvin receiving the biggest vote of any candidate. The nationalists, in addition, gained four seats from the republicans, and thus have 10 members in the new parliament, as compared with six in the old.

Socialism for the first time was represented, in the persons of three laborites, who were elected. In consequence Belfast today witnessed a triumphal procession in which red flags were carried. Such a demonstration until recently would have caused a riot. The procession was for William McMullen, elected from West Belfast.

Natives Acclaim Prince of Wales As 'King Pikkin'

Freetown, Sierra Leone, West Africa, April 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Prince of Wales embarked this morning after farewell ceremonies ashore, and the Repulse sailed at 12:10 o'clock for Takaradi on the Gold coast. This port has been developed recently and the Repulse will be the first large vessel to enter the new harbor.

The British heir arrived in Freetown yesterday on his South African tour and was the guest of the governor last night. He was loudly acclaimed by the natives of the province, who called him "King Pikkin," meaning the "king's baby son."

CONVICT ESCAPES COBB COUNTY GANG

News was received Tuesday by the state prison commission that Cicero Jones, a negro, had escaped from the Cobb county chaingang. Jones was serving a term of from two to five years for burglary and is recorded in the files of the commission as being a desperate character. He is described as black, weighing 140 pounds and 22 years of age.

Numerous efforts to escape have been reported to the commission in the last few days. In one case the man had only 12 days more to serve. If he is recaptured he will have to serve over a year more by reason of losing his good conduct credits because of escape.

THALEAN ACADEMY WINS CONTEST

Americus, Ga., April 7.—(Special.) Thalean academy won the silver trophy offered by the county board of education to the high school scoring the highest number of points in the annual contest staged by the 10 consolidated schools of Sumter county at the Third district A. and M. school, Friday and Saturday. Huntington school tied with Thalean for high honors but the latter academy won the trophy, which was decided on the toss of a coin.

A crowd of approximately 2,000 was on hand to witness the athletic events in which 150 students participated.

4 WOMEN AND 1 MAN INDICTED FOR THEFT

Four women and one man Tuesday were indicted by the Fulton county grand jury on charges of larceny from the house in connection with a series of alleged thefts from large downtown department stores. The total amount of loot alleged to have been obtained by those indicted is approximately $2,500.

Those indicted are Bessie Russell, Mrs. Josephine Richardson, Mrs. J. D. Bridges, Mrs. Cassie Wood and E. C. Burton.

BLUE LAW OPPONENTS SCORE IN TENNESSEE

Nashville, April 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Opponents of "Sunday blue laws" scored in the Tennessee legislature today when the house, by a vote of 50 to 33, concurred in a senate measure to permit the city commission of Memphis to regulate its own ordinance as to the operation of moving picture houses and theaters in that city on Sundays.

LEADER OF TENNESSEE ASSEMBLY RESIGNS

Nashville, Tenn., April 7.—(By the Associatd Press.)—Sam R. Bratton, the administration floor leader in the house of representatives, Tennessee general assembly, today announced his resignation from the legislature. This announcement came after Mr. Bratton had won his fight to prevent the recall of the Reelfoot Lake fishing bill which previously had been tabled.

He thanked the members for upholding himself and the governor and said that he was leaving.

Haynes, from the chair, denied this charge.

The choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church will render the cantata, "The Seven Last Words of Christ," at 8:15 o'clock tonight. 6 BANDITS GET $2,000 IN LONG ISLAND BANK

New York, April 7.—Six robbers held up the Bank of Manhattan company branch in Astoria, L. I., this afternoon and escaped with $2,000 taken from the paying teller's cage. One of the robbers fired a shot at a detective who attempted to prevent their escape.

Several customers were in the bank when the robbers entered with drawn revolvers. The robbers escaped in an automobile which they had left standing at the bank's doors. Policemen answering an electric alarm arrived at the bank too late to intercept the holdup men.

There's No Warning Before an Accident

"No man or woman receives a warning before he or she is killed or maimed in an automobile accident."

That was the statement of a man who recently was listed as a casualty in an automobile crash when he came to The Constitution Tuesday and asked for a $5,000 Travel Accident insurance policy offered its subscribers by this paper.

"I've found out to my own cost," he continued, "that it pays to look forward in this matter and be protected at all times against emergencies that cannot be foreseen and that may cause loved ones who are dependents to suffer want and privation."

The Constitution's new $5,000 Travel Accident Insurance offer gives you the opportunity to invest the small sum of $1, in addition to the regular subscription rates of The Daily and Sunday Constitution, and get the following protective benefits:

$5,000 travel accident death, the policy increasing 10 per cent per year to $7,500 in five years; $2,000 automobile death, the policy increasing 10 per cent per year to $3,000 in five years; $1,000 pedestrian accident death, the policy increasing 10 per cent per year to $1,500 in five years; large sums for permanent injuries and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability for a period of 15 weeks resulting from certain specified accidents.

You can't equal this protective opportunity in the insurance offer of any southern newspaper. Wait no longer to secure your protection. Phone, write or visit The Constitution's insurance department today.

RIVERSIDE ACADEMY TO BE INSPECTED

Gainesville, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Colonel Sandy Beaver, president of Riverside Military academy, is in receipt of a communication, stating that a board of army officers from Washington will visit Riverside on April 19-20 for the purpose of inspecting the school to determine its rating for the year.

According to Colonel Beaver, there are about 40 schools in the United States that are classed as essentially military institutions. An act of congress requires the war department to inspect these 40 schools annually and to designate as honor schools the 10 which are found to be doing the best work. Riverside won this distinction in 1923 and was the first Georgia school to ever thus be honored. Riverside also won the designation in 1924, and is now the only honor military school in the south.

This year Riverside has registered nearly 400 boys from 25 different states. It is now the third largest school of its kind in the country.

Colonel O. R. Horton, the superintendent, was for sometime the president of the Georgia Military college at Milledgeville, is now a major in the officers' reserve corps and president of the Georgia department of the reserves. Major W. D. Mooney, the head of the academic department, was the founder and for many years the head of the Mooney School for Boys at Murfreesboro, Tenn. Captain W. A. Cunningham, professor of military science and tactics, is a Vanderbilt alumnus and was the head coach at the University of Georgia for many years.

More than 20 faculty officers are on the staff of the academy. Captain A. T. Beaver, the quartermster, is a Clemson graduate, was a civil engineer for many years and later a captain in the U. S. Army from which he retired in 1919.

RUSSIAN PRINCESS COMING TO AMERICA

Geneva, April 7.—A distinguished member of the former Russian house of Radziwill—Princess Gabrielle Radziwill, who is attached to the secretariat of the League of Nations—will visit the United States next month.

The princess has been given a special mission to attend at Washington the quinquennial session of the International Council of Women.

With the birth of the republic of Lithuania, the Radziwill family passed from Russia to the new Baltic state. The princess now represents Lithuania in the league's information section.

GASOLINE MARKETERS MEET IN CONVENTION

Chicago, April 7.—The National Petroleum Marketers' association met here today and in the first session of the three-day convention discussed behind closed doors some of the problems facing the industry.

After an address by the president, L. V. Nicholas, of Chicago, the members in general discussion took up two of their problems: "Is Our Industrial House In Order, and If It Is Not What Steps Must We Take To Put It In Order?" and "How Can We Best Answer Those Who Attack Our Business?"

The subject of tonight's session, regarded as one of the most important to come before the meeting, was gasoline taxes for road building. "Are We For or Against Them, And What Do They Actually Mean?" was the question debated.

In sessions tomorrow and Thursday other matters of outstanding importance to the association will be discussed, with a collective national advertising program one of the important subjects.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN UNDER WAY IN DEKALB

Decatur, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Hundreds of citizens of DeKalb county today were industrially at work in an effort to make DeKalb county's paint-up and clean-up week the biggest success in the history of the community. While cities are having such campaigns, DeKalb is enlisting the whole county in the biggest drive for sanitation and beauty ever launched here.

School children, housewives, business men—all are wholeheartedly enlisted in the cause. Students of Agnes Scott, Emory university and Oglethorpe university also are included among those of DeKalb county who are intensely anxious to make this the banner year for beauty and cleanliness.

The committee under the direction of Charles D. McKinney, general chairman, his distributed posters and literature asking all the citizens of the county to participate actively in the campaign.

Mr. McKinney also is expected to appoint a committee to investigate the cost of planting trees and shrubs along the highway leading from Decatur to Stone Mountain. This committee is expected to report favorable, according to indications tonight, and the woman's club probably will push the work to completion in the next few weeks, leaders of the movement announced.

Many posters have been entered in the poster-prize contest, and students of the public schools of the county are now actively engaged in writing essays for the prize contest. The essays will deal with the clean-up movement of the county.

At a mass meeting called by L. T. Y. Nash, county commissioner held in the courthouse Monday night, every community and town in the county sent representatives, who entered into a general discussion as to what each locality would do to "clean-up."

The meeting was addressed by various leaders from Decatur, Chamblee, Lithonia, Stone Mountain and Clarkston.

REPUBLICANS WIN AT MICHIGAN POLLS

Detroit, April 7.—Tabulation of returns on yesterday's biennial state election for minor state officers was ended late today when returns from slightly more than half of the state showed the overwhelming election of all republican party candidates. The returns indicated that less than 390,000 persons voted.

Mrs. Hughes Soon Will Know Result Of Plea for Life

Cheered by assurance from Governor Clifford Walker that he will pass upon recommendations of the prison commission as soon as they are submitted to him, and by generally-accepted belief that mercy will be urged in her behalf, Mrs. Ida Hughes Tuesday night sought rest on her iron cot in Fulton county tower with the realization that in only a few days she will know definitely whether she must pay the extreme penalty for slaying her mother-in-law, or serve life sentence.

Members of the prison commission devoted Tuesday to consideration of the voluminous record in the case, after hearing arguments of attorneys for Mrs. Hughes on Monday. They also inspected numerous petitions, asking clemency for the condemned woman, which were filed with the mercy plea.

Governor Walker, in whose hands the fate of Mrs. Hughes rests after the commission has made its recommendation in the case, indicated Tuesday that he would dispose of the case as rapidly as possible after it reaches his hands. The governor stated that he would make a careful survey of the record in the case and give both prosecution and defense an opportunity to be heard.

Solicitor General Boykin, prosecutor, has stated that he favors life imprisonment for Mrs. Hughes, provided the sentence shall never be reduced, and Judge G. H. Howard, who presided at the trial, also has recommended clemency. Eight of the 12 trial jurors also are reported as signatories of a petition for commutation of the woman's sentence.

Twenty-five star salesmen of the Atlanta branch of the Delco-Light & Frigidaire company were entertained with a banquet Tuesday night preparatory to their trip to the annual convention at the factory in Dayton, Ohio, at the company's expense.

This is the largest delegation ever taken to the convention from Georgia. It was stated that the Georgia sales organization was one of the six organizations in the country to secure 100 per cent of their assigned quoto of 1924 business.

More than 2,000 salesmen will gather at the Dayton convention Thursday for the largest gathering of its kind ever held in the United States. Delegates leaving from the Atlanta branch office this morning are:

NEGRO MAN FREED OF MURDER COUNT BY FULTON JURY

Homer Plummer, negro, Tuesday was freed in Judge H. G. Howard's division of Fulton county superior court, on charges of murder, growing out of the death of his wife, Bessie, who several months ago was burned to death in her own home.

Plummer told the jury that his wife came home in an intoxicated condition and that he quarreled with her. A lamp on a table in the room ignited her clothing. She died several days later in Grady hospital. He claimed he was no more responsible for it than she, since they both were fighting at the time.

Joe Ewing defended Plummer.

THE GUMPS—BE IT RESOLVED, ETC.

the last thing, you, young fellahs think of learnin'. You're all bees without stings, so far as lookin' after the hive goes. You'll look silly, some o' these days, when someone comes along an' sneaks the honey. But you'll need to hold your gun straight in South America, for unless our friend the Professor is a madman or a liar, we may see some What gun have you?"

He crossed to an oaken cupboard, and as he threw it open I caught a glimpse of glistening rows of parallel barrels, like the pipes of an organ

"I'll see what I can spare you out of my own battery," said he.

One by one he took out a succession of beautiful rifles, opening and shutting them with a snap and a clang, and then patting them as he put them back in the rack as tenderly as a mother would fondle her children.

"This is a Bland's .557 axite express," said he. "I've got that big fellow with it." He glanced up at the white rhinoceros. "Ten more yards, and he'd would have added me to his collciton.

'Tis the weak one's advantage fair.'

Hope you know your Gordon, for he's the poet of the horse and the gun and the man that handles both. Now, here's a useful tool—.470, telescopic sight, double ejector, point-blank to three-fifty. That's the rifle I used against the Peruvian slave-drivers three years ago. I was the flail of the Lord up in those parts. I may tell you, though you won't find it in any blue-book. There are times, young fellah, when every one of us must make a stand for human right and justice, or you never feel clear again. That's why I made a little war of my own. Declared it myself, waged it myself, and ended it myself. Each of those nicks is for a slave murderer—a good row of them—what? That big one is for Pedro Lopez, the king of them all, that I killed in a backwater of the Putomayo river. Now here's something that would do for you." He took out a beautiful brown-and-silver rifle. "Well rubbered at the stock, sharply sighted, five cartridges to the clip. You can trust your life to that." He handed it to me and closed the door of his oak cabinet.

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Joy of the Something.

Life seems to be saturated in mystery. Every day brings us new questionings. And when we get particularly discouraged with our small lot of knowledge and understanding, we wonder what it's all about anyway.

Then we glance about us. We see the gorgeous colorings in lovely works of art. We get up from our seat and walk to the window. Spring is just opening its eyes and will soon be with us in all its glory of birth. Happiness pours forth from the throats of a score of birds, and as we try to recall the names of our feathered friends in the concert, we wonder again about the strangeness and sweetness of human life, and all life.

Where did all this color come from? Who planned the sunrise so that it might tread as softly into the new day as one would feel velvet under foot?

Who taught the birds their wonderful songs? What makes them happy—for they surely must be?

What a gray, drab and colorless world this would be if we understood everything. I am glad that we are constantly questioning. For in everything there is that joy of the something whereby we are lifted up, stimulated and heartened, even though we do not understand.

It is enough to know that there is something very wonderful in life that urges us on, even though we have no idea of our destination.

We cannot even understand why we are so happy when we have made someone else happy. Yet we are. The joy of the something is everywhere. The ever-changing color of the sea holds a peculiar fascination for me. I do not know why. I love the hidden mystery of beauty and power that is so inseparable there. I never tire of it or of calling the attention of others to it. But I do not understand the sea.

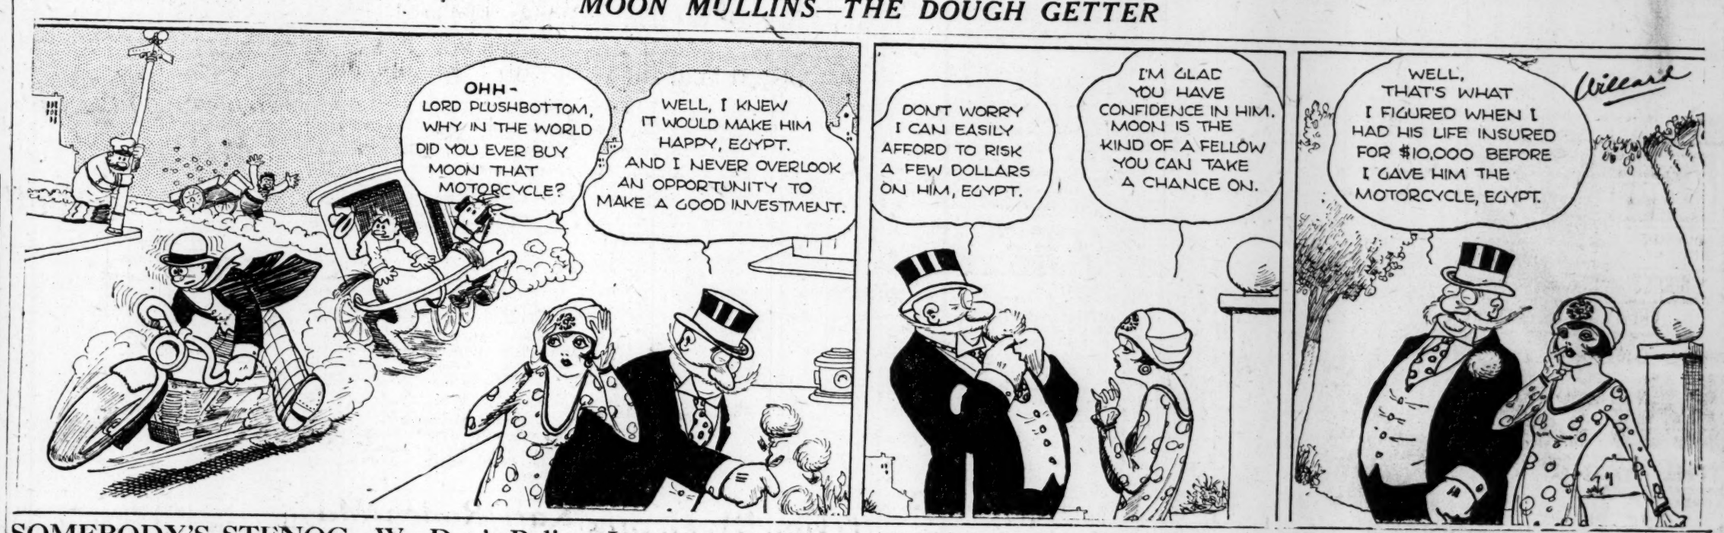

There is this joy to be found almost anywhere—even in the silent, unexpressed thoughts of the one you love, or of those who occasionally come into your heart for a bit of laughter or understanding.

The Lost World

BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

SYNOPSIS.

Malone, a London newspaper reporter, rejected by the girl he loves because he has no heroic deeds to his credit, appeals to his editor for a dangerous assignment, and is sent to interview the irascible Professor Challenger, who has recently returned from an expedition to South America with an amazing story, which no one believes, of the existence on a great plateau there of many forms of prehistoric life. By way of proof he exhibits to Malone two sketches—one showing the cliffs beneath the plateau, the other a monstrous animal resembling the stegosaurus—which he had found among the possessions of a dead explorer, Maple White; some blurred photographs; and a piece of the wing of a huge flying serpent, or pteradactyl, which he says he shot down. Malone is convinced of the professor's sincerity. At a scientific lecture that night which he invites the reporter to attend Challenger creates an uproar by constantly interrupting the lecturer, denying his assertion that mastodon life is extinct, and challenging the audience to send out an expedition to test the truth of his own theories. There are three volunteers: Professor Summerlee, a scientist, and long a bitter enemy of Challenger's; Malone, still in quest of adventure, and Lord John Roxton, well-known sportsman and explorer. After the meeting Malone accompanies Lord John to his rooms to make plans for the trip.

CHAPTER VI (Continue!.)

"Well," said he, at last, "we've gone and done it, young fellah my lad." (This curious phrase he pronounced as if it were all one word —"young-fellah-me-lad.")— "Yes we have taken a jump, you an' me. I suppose, now, when you went into that room there was no such notion in your head—what?"

"No thought of it."

"The same here. No thought of it. And here we are, up to our necks in the tureen. Why, I've only been back three weeks from Uganda, and taken place in Scotland, and signed the lease and all. Pretty goin's on—what? How does it hit you?"

"Well, it is all in the main line of my business. I am a journalist on the Gazette."

"Of course—you said so when you took it on. By the way, I've got a small job for you if you'll help me."

"With pleasure."

"Don't mind takin' a risk, do you?"

"What is the risk?"

"Well, it's Ballinger—he's the risk. You've heard of him?"

"No."

"Why, young fellah, where have you lived? Sir John Ballinger is the best gentleman jock in the north country. I could hold him on the flat at my best, but over jumps he's my master. Well, it's an open secret that when he's out of trainin' he drinks hard—strikin' on average, he calls it. He got delirium on Toosday, and has been ragin' like a devil ever since. His room is above this. The doctors say that it is all up with the old dear unless some foo. is got into him, but as he lies in bed with a revolver on his coverlet, and swears he will put six of the best through anyone that comes near him, there's been a bit of a strike among the serving-men. He's a hard nail, is Jack, and a dead shot, too, but you can't leave a grand national winner to die like that—what?"

"What do you mean to do, then?" I asked.

"Well, my idea was that you and I could rush him. He may be cozin,' and at the worst he can only wing one of us, and the other should have him. If we can get his bolster-cover around his arms and then 'phone up a stomach-pump, we'll give the old dear the supper of his life."

It was a rather desperate business to come suddenly into one's day's work. I don't think that I am a particularly brave man. I have an Irish imagination which makes the unknown and the untried more terrible than they are. On the other hand, I was brought up with a horror of cowardice and with a terror of such a stigma. I dare say that I could throw myself over a precipice, like the Hun in the history books, if my courage to do it were questioned, and yet it would surely be pride and fear, rather than courage, which would be my inspiration. Therefore, although every nerve in my body shrank from the whisky-maddened figure which I pictured in the room above, I still answered, in as careless a voice as I could command, that I was ready to go. Some further remark of Lord Roxton's about the danger only made me irritable.

"Talking won't make it any better," said I. "Come on."

I rose from my chair and he from his. Then with a little confidential cackle of laughter, he patted me two or three times on the chest, finally pushing me back into my chair.

"All right, sonny my lad—you'll do," said he. I looked up in surprise.

"I saw after Jack Ballinger myself this mornin'. He blew a hole in the shirt of my kimono, bless his shaky old hand, but we got a jacket on him, and he's to be all right in a week. A say, young fellah, I hope you don't mind—what? You see, between you an' me close-tiled. I look on this South American business as a mighty serious thing, and if I have a pal with me I want a man I can bank on. So I sized you down, and I'm bound to say that you came well out of it. You see, it's all up to you and me, for this old Summerlee man will want dry-nursin' from the first. By the way, are you by any chance the Malone who is expected to get his Rugby cap for Ireland?"

"A reserve, perhaps."

"I though I remembered your face. Why, I was there when you got that try against Richmond—as fine a swervin' run as I saw the whole season. I never miss a Rugby match if I can help it, for it is the manliest game we have left. Well, I didn't ask you in here just to talk sport. We've got to fix our business. Here are the sailin's, on the first page of the Times. There's a Booth boat for Para next Wednesday week, and if the Professor and you can work it, I think we should take it—what? Very good. I'll fix it with him. What about your outfit?"

"My paper will see to that."

"Can you shoot?"

"About average territorial standard."

"Good Lord! as bad as that? It's

"Up in Mabel's Room."

(At The Lyric)

One of the season's best farce comedies is being presented at the Lyric theater this week, with "Up In Mabel's Room," the hilarious comedy success by Wilson Collison and Otto Harbach, as the current offering.

"Up In Mabel's Room" is a medley of laughs at the expense of a young husband who once sent a lady a bit of Parisian lingerie and who now wishes to recover it to keep the dark secret from being discovered by his wife. The scene where he attempts to steal it from the canny Mabel, to whom it belongs, is one of the best seen here in a long time.

"Seminary Scandals."

(At Loew's Grand.)

Bubbling over with good humor that spreads to the audience with the warmth and crackle of a prairie fire, Miss Tommy Allen and her good looking "students" in the "Seminary Scandals" are proving a knockout at Loew's Grand this week. Romance in a girl's boarding school, a burst of song from a most unlikely looking source, brings storms of applause. Sandy Shaw, the Scotch comedian, is scarcely less popular He brings laughs and tears with an ease and a certainty that makes the crowds love him. Mademoiselle Ivy and her athletic partner in a whirlwind of artistic dancing is a real climax a's a closer. She is good looking and dances like a fairy. Matt Moore and Dorothy DeVore in the photoplay feature "The Narrow Street," is another feature.

Rita Gould.

(At Keith's Forsyth.)

Patrons of Keith's Forsyth are awarding to Rita Gould, famous prima donna and comedienne, the reception that befits one of her entertaining powers in her act that is the headlining attraction on an entirely worth-while program at the popular theater the first part of the week.

The Lovenberg Sisters and Neary are a special added attraction. Slim Grindell and Coryl Esther in their "Study in Thinology" and Lorainne and Ritz entertain highly in their "Broadway Controversies." Watson's trained dogs present a really unusual canine divertissement.

"Dressmaker From Paris."

(At the Howard.)

"Take Chance Week."

(Howard Next Week.)

"Take Chance Week" is scheduled for the Howard next week. The event is the first program of its kind ever staged at a local picture show and in fact the first time in this part of the country. Not a number on the program will be advertised. Although notices have it that the program will be one of the most elaborate staged at the local theater this season. Many surprise stage acts will be one of the many features.

"Code of the West."

(At the Rialto.)

"This story is exactly the kind I have always hoped some day to make. I never thought, however, it was possible for anyone to write one like it." Thus commented William K. Howard, Paramount director, after he had finished reading Zane Grey's famous story, "Code of the West," at the Rialto this week.

Rollicking Mitzi in "The Magic Ring" at The Atlanta Theater

After seeing Mitzi, the rollicking star of "The Magic Ring," in one of her musical comedies, Barrie, the noted English novelist and playwright, exclaimed: "Mitzi is the Peter Pan of the musical stage!" And this describes this much beloved little lady's personality more than any other phrase that could be coined. Mitzi, the adored of theater patrons the country over, is just that—an elfin little sprite whose sense of humor bubbles over every minute she is on or off the stage. Her present vehicle, "The Magic Ring," now being shown at the Atlanta theater, where it will remain throughout the week with matinees today and Saturday, unquestionably gives Mitzi the greatest opportunity of her career. It is a feast of surprise and a positive joy from curtain rise to curtain fall. We have been privileged this year to view some sterling musical comedies, presented by casts of a standard seldom touring the country, but it remained for Henry W. Savage, who never fails to make good a promise, to bring the original New York company here for the enjoyment and delight of Atlanta theatergors. As a singing and dancing aggregation the like has not been presented here in years. It is a show that no one can afford to miss seeing. Seats may be had at the Atlanta theater box office and at the "Ask Mr. Foster" service at M. Rich & Bros. Co. store. An early reservation is advised.

Wall Street Messenger Lands in Jail for Trying To Punish His Employer

New York, April 7.—Lester Simon, a Wall street messenger, set out to punish his employer when he heard that pay day had been postponed. His retaliation landed him in jail, charged with grand larceny.

Simon was entrusted with $31,000 worth of securities to be delivered to a financial office at a certain time. After several hours, the securities had not arrived and a general alarm was sent out.

The young messenger was found at his home, the securities intact.

He told the police that another messenger had told him that they were not to be paid on Tuesday as was the custom.

"I thought I would delay delivery so that the firm would be fined for failing to deliver them on time," he said.

KURDESTAN EMIR EXCLUDED AGAIN

New York, April 7.—"The Emir of Kurdestan," Ike Philip Nolan, the fictional character of Edward Everett Hale's story, was placed today in the role of a man without a country.

The transformation was accomplished by a special immigration board of inquiry at Ellis Island which decided that the self styled "Emir," whose name is Prince Mohammed Said Zerdecheno, must be deported to England on the earliest east-bound steamer of the White Star line. Mohammed Said just got back here a few days ago after Ellis Island officials had deported him on the steamship Celtic on March 14. The British authorities refused to grant him entrance at the port of Southampton, and started the trans-Atlantic game of shuttlecock with him.

The "Emir" says he isn't loath to leave, asserting he wants to get back to Kurdestan to lead his army, now in the field. He said he came here last July "to interest American capital in the oil and minerals of my Turkish province," and was deported because the United States would not recognize a provincial diplomatic passport.

Immigration officials asserted that the "royal visitor had a police record in the United States, France and England."

Gary Predicts Good Business In Near Future

New York, April 7.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation said today that there had been a considerable recession in the steel business during the last thirty days but that some improvement in business had been noted since the first of April. Bookings of the corporation's subsidiaries he announced, now have reached about three-fifths of producing capacity with shipments running at the rate of 50,000 tons a day.

Fundamental conditions, Mr. Gary asserted, were the best they had ever been in the business history of the country, and offered promises of good business over the next few months. If the steel industry is any barometer of trade, he added, this country has a good business future which cannot be impaired by political, congressional or any other kind of agitation.

Explains Reasons.

In explaining the reasons for the recent reaction in trade, which was most pronounced during the month of March, Mr. Gary said that the progression in business activities which followed the election last fall was very enthusiastic and somewhat impulsive.

"Consequently," he stated, "in some lines the speed was too rapid. Some of us uttered words of caution during the late fall and early winter against inflation, with the statement that it might result in a sudden and unreasonable check. I think that has happened. I think also that present depression, although not great, is more than it need to have been if we consider fundamental conditions of the country.

"In some lines of industry, because of very prosperous conditions, industrialists indulged in rapid increases in producing capacity, so that the purchasing public found by experience, however imperative the demand for products, it could be promptly supplied, and that it was not necessary to buy a long time in advance of proposed usage."

These circumstances, Mr. Gary explained, had combined to produce what he hoped was merely a temporary modification of the disposition to develop, extend and utilize the producing facilities of the country.

The latest weekly reports from presidents of the corporations operating subsidiaries revealed a moderate improvement in business in the south and middle west for the week ended April 4. Conditions elsewhere continued spotty, with keen competition reported in all centers and a general unsettlement of prices.

Cartersville Man Champion Fiddler Past Five Years

Cartersville, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—Clayton McMichen has returned home from Macon, where, on last Saturday evening, he won first prize as the best fiddler at the Georgia old fiddlers' convention. Reports from there state that H. G. Lynch, of Monticello, was awarded second prize, while Riley Puckett, of Atlanta, won first prize for the best guitar playing.

Mr. McMichen said he was informed before leaving Macon that another meeting of the convention will be held again in October, of this year.

With the award of first prize given him this year, Mr. McMichen has the honor of having won first place at five state conventions, and with the exception of a brief period, has been champion fiddler of Georgia for the past five years.

Mr. McMichen operates a garage in Cartersville, and often entertains his friends with his marvelous playing on the violin. He has a wonderfully natural talent as a musician.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY TO PLAY OPPOSITE MARY PICKFORD

Hollywood, Cal., April 7.—Hugh Allan, a former high school boy of Oakland, Cal., played his first bit in motion pictures less than six months ago. Tuesday he was signed as Mary Pickford's leading man.

Coming to Hollywood a year ago as secretary to a producer, Allan became an assistant camera man and then a film cutter. Last summer he started playing small parts.

Miss Pickford was seeking a leading man for a new picture in which she returns to her "tom-boy" characterizations of earlier days. She saw a screen test of Allan, whose real name is Allan Hughes, and within an hour he was signed for the part.

"It's like a fairy story," Allan says.

U. S. SAILOR'S BRIDE WALKS 600 MILES TO SEE HUSBAND

San Francisco, April 7.—(United News.)—Nineteen-year-old Mrs. Mildred Gustavson, bride of a year, had no money. But she was lonesome for her husband, Seaman Clifford Gustavson, of the U. S. S. Mississippi.

So she walked the 600 miles from Los Angeles to San Francisco, where the warship is now at anchor.

"I'd walk further than that for him, judge," she told a police magistrate when picked up as a vagrant Tuesday.

Gossip In Hotel Lobbies

BY PAUL STEVENSON

Charlotte, N. C., is enjoying a steadier growth than any city in the south with the exception of Atlanta, in the opinion of J. A. Parham, managing editor of The Charlotte Observer, who is in Atlanta on a business trip.

"Steady growth is much better for a city than mushroom growth, and while some southern cities may be growing temporarily at a greater rate than Charlotte, I do not believe any, with the possible exception of Atlanta, are really building more rapidly in a permanent way," he said.

"Charlotte's growth has been so rapid in recent years that the city has faced a housing problem which is now on the way to solution," Mr. Parham, continued. "Erection of many new apartment houses, hotels and residences has relieved the situation to a marked extent.

While in Atlanta, Mr. Parham called on several personal friends in the editorial department of The Constitution.

"Cousin Fred" Vindicated.

"Cousin Fred" Houser was getting ready to give a dinner celebrating the statement that Atlanta is 1,218 feet above the sea level instead of 1,050 feet, but he first investigated this report in government offices at Washington, D. C. This investigation disclosed the fact that the city of Atlanta proper ranges from 1,025 to 1,076 feet, giving a mean elevation of about 1,050. Hence the dinner will have to be given to celebrate something else.

The mistake arose in reference to some heights located near Atlanta which are 1,218 feet above the sea level, but the official elevation of the city proper is fixed at 1,050 feet, according to "Cousin Fred," who obtained his information from the United States geodetic survey.

Former Legislator Here.

One of the "old familiar faces" which will be missed at the session of the legislature this summer will be that of J. B. Daniel, for many years one of the Troup county representatives in the lower house, who did not run for reelection. Mr. Daniel was a visitor at the Kimball house Tuesday, returning to Atlanta for the first time since the legislative session last year.

"I would like to come back and work with the boys again, but my business interests are such as to prevent it at this time," he said.

"Completion of highway projects in different parts of the state is gradually improving the whole state road system, and the new coastal plain highway running south from Savannah to the Florida line will add another splendid road to this system," is the opinion of Alex Lawrence, prominent Savannah lawyer, who is at the Piedmont.

"By voting these bonds the coastal counties will be able to get a trunk highway built of permanent materials which will be of wonderful value to that entire section," he says.

Shettlesworth Lauds Smith.

"I believe in giving them their flowers while they are still living," Representative Joe Shettlesworth, of Gwinnett county, said Tuesday. "So with this belief, I want to say a word about the good record State Senator E. M. Smith, of the Thirty-fifth district, made in the legislature last year. Senator Smith represented the big city of Atlanta, and he handled the big volume of legislation relating to the city with much success. We are all sorry he won't be back with us this summer."

M. R. McGruder, for nine years a member of the editorial staff of The Georgian, has been appointed editor of "The Southern Underwriter," insurance weekly journal, and secretary-treasurer of the Herald-Argus company, publishers of the newspaper, with offices in the Hurt building.

Mr. McGruder has been in the newspaper game for 16 years, and in January, 1922, joined the advertising staff of the Tanlac interests. In May, 1923, the company sent him to Buenos Aires, Argentina, to direct advertising in lower South America. He came back to Atlanta in February this year for a visit with his friends and former coworkers in the newspaper field. Recently he was induced by T. W. Dealy, president of the Herald-Argus company, to take up the editorship of the insurance publication.

JOSEPH S. DAVIS ILL; CONDITION IS SERIOUS

Macon, Ga., April 7.—Joseph S. Davis, 72, former United States marshal and a capitalist of Albany, Ga., who was stricken ill while in an automobile en route to the Baptist Sunday school convention in Augusta, today, was taken to a local hospital after first-aid treatment at a local hotel.

Doctors said that he had suffered a serious hemorrhage, but tonight appeared to be resting well.

In the automobile with Mr. Davis were Rev. E. M. Aultman and Mrs. R. H. Ferrill, all of Albany. They had passed through Macon and were on a country road when Mr. Davis became ill. They hurriedly returned to this city.

J. A. Davis, business manager of the Albany Herald, a son of Mr. Davis, arrived here tonight.

Hylan Predicts Drive on Police By Underworld

New York, April 7.—A warning that underworld interests are "marshaling their forces for an attack upon the police department and the city administration" was sounded today by Mayor Hylan in a letter to Police Commissioner Enright. This threat, the mayor wrote, comes at the time when vice and gambling have been crushed harder than at any time in the history of the city.

"Just a word of warning," his letter begins. "The big gamblers and disorderly-house keepers are marshaling their forces for an attack upon the police department and the city administration. Be prepared for it in the near future.

"If I am advised correctly, they are gathering a large fund to finance the assault and they are angling for some gentlemen of ostensibly high standing to lead their hosts.

"The underworld crowd know that there are quite a number of people who trot in his circles during the day but who like the lure and the glamor and the association of evil ways and evildoers when the sun has set.

"It is among these that the vicious element will seek for a leader to give an air of decency to their campaign against the police and the administration in the hope that the forces opposed to a humane and progressive government may get into office and bring back indecency and vice and gambling."

Dawson Methodists Vote Overwhelmingly Against Unification

Dawson, Ga., April 7.—(Special.)—At a church conference held at the Methodist church, south, in Dawson, Americus district, Sunday, a resolution rejecting the proposed plan of unification was adopted by a vote of 121 to 1 and upon motion was afterwards made unanimous.

Delegates elected to the district conference to be held in Americus are as follows, Moses H. Harper, E. D. Bolton, Andrew J. Hill, Warren B. Parks, George W. Dozier, Sr., R. E. Bell, E. T. Jordan. As alternates the following were elected: Charles A. Wall, J. A. Bolton, J. D. Laing, Dr. L. Lamar and Thomas W. Martin.

It is understood that the other churches of the county held like elections and their memberships also expressed their strong opposition to the proposed plan of unification.

MARIE HOTEL OWNER DIES AT QUITMAN

Quitman, Ga., April 7.—(Special.) William J. Powell, proprietor for many years of the Hotel Marie and known to scores of traveling men all over the south, an active citizen of Quitman and member of the Quitman Rotary club, died this afternoon at 6 o'clock after an illness of several days.

He was a member of the Methodist church and was closely identified with the life and though of the town and county. His wife, who was Miss Harrell, died nearly three years ago.

Mr. Powell is survived by four daughters, Miss Julia Powell and Mrs. Fields Roberts, of Quitman; Mrs. T. J. Wilkes, of Charlotte, N. C., and Mrs. H. H. Cooper, of Tallahassee, Fla.; three sons, Pasco, Harrell and Paul.

The funeral arrangements have not been announced tonight but the funeral will take place in Quitman where the interment will be probably on Thursday.

Karl Radek May Follow Trotzky Into Oblivion

Moscow, April 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Karl Radek, who has exercised an influence in the Bolshevik world second only to the influence of Trotzky, appears to be destined to follow the former soviet war minister into political oblivion.

The all-powerful central controlling commission of the communist party passed resolutions yesterday roundly condemning Radek's attempts to create factional strife within the German communist party and he is warned that if he continues to oppose the present central committee of the German communist party he will be dismissed from membership in the Russion communist party.

Radek, Heinrich Brand and Herr Thalhamer, former leaders of the German communist party, are forbidden to participate in the work of the Communist Internationale.

Yesterday's decision, which was taken at the instance of the central committee of the German communist party, was endorsed at a plenary sitting of the Communist Internationale.

Radek's differences with the German communist party date from the time of the failure of the Bolshevik revolution in Germany, an event which figured largely in last year's party campaign against Trotzky. Radek, who is of Polish-Jewish origin, is regarded as one of the most brilliant writers and speakers of present-day Russia. He is generally credited with a knowledge of international affairs equalled only by Trotzky. He is classed by communist colleagues as "irreconcilable" as always urging greater democracy and reforms within the party.

COMMUNIST PLOT LAID TO SOLDIERS; GIVEN 26 YEARS

Honolulu, April 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Walter Trumbull, United States army private, today was convicted by court-martial on five charges of participation in a communist plot, and was sentenced to dishonorable discharge and 26 years at hard labor.

Private Paul Crouch, previously sentenced to dishonorable discharge and forty years hard labor, attempted to assume all the blame for the attempted organization of a revolution league among the soldiers at Schofield Barracks, but failed to prevent Trumbull's conviction.

Crouch testified before the court-martial that while he believed Trumbull was 'fundamentally a communist, he didn't know it himself." He declared that Trumbull's remarks were always of a patriotic character.

NEW YORK TO STAGE PULITZER AIR RACES

New York, April 7.—The Pulitzer trophy race, the International speed classic for aeroplanes, probably will be held this year in New York, early in October, it was learned today. The contest committee of the National Aeronautical Association is expected to accept an invitation from its New York chapter at a meeting in Washington next week.

Hopes of recapturing for America the world's speed record in this race are entertained in aviation circles. A plane now under construction by the United States is designed to make between 290 and 300 miles an hour. A French flyer holds the present record at 278 miles.

JURISTS TO CONSIDER TERRITORIAL WATERS

Washington, April 7.—Decision of the Geneva commission of international jurists to take up the question of territorial waters as one of four projects of international law codification to be considered at its present session attaches new importance to the similar plan worked out by the American international law institute for the coming American law codification conference in Rio de Janeiro.

Draft conventions on "national domain" and "jurisdiction" framed by the institute embody recent thought by experts in all American republics on the questions now before the Geneva gathering.

The proposals leave the off-shore extent of "territorial sea" to be inserted, but they would establish a definite rule that the outer boundary of such sea within which the possessing nation could exercise absolute sovereignty, would follow "the sinuosities of the coast" except as to bays of stipulated width at the mouth and with both coasts under the same sovereignty. In such cases a straight line across the mouth of the bay is provided for, while in "international bays," where the shore is owned by two nations, "the sinuosites" rule would prevail.

The convention also would declare sovereignty over "the bottom and subsoil" of territorial sea, fix rules for exact location of boundaries that fall in international rivers or channels and otherwise standardize practice to eliminate disputes.

Novel proposals came in the "jurisdiction" convention. It would confer the general right to continue, within the zone contiguous to territorial seas" the pursuit of a vessel commenced within territorial waters, and to bring the vessel before its (the territorial sovereign's) courts."

A supplemental provision is that "the American republics may extend their jurisdiction beyond the territorial sea, parallel with such sea, for an additional distance of marine miles, for reasons of safety and in order to assure observance of sanitary and customs regulations."

Another provision would make crimes committed aboard merchant craft subject to the law of the flag of the ships even when committed within the territorial sea of another nation, unless "they disturb the order and public tranquility of the region where they have been committed," when the territorial sovereignty would have jurisdiction.

Fourth Attempt Is Made To Free Shepherd on Bail

Chicago, April 7.—Developments in the drama of germs, death and bail motions in the McClintock case centered Tuesday around the efforts of Judge Harry A. Olson and the state's attorney's office to corroborate the confession of "Dr." C. C. Faiman that he obtained typhoid fever germs from the city health department.

Winfield S. Hoerger, former germ clerk in the city health department, came forward to deny that he had supplied Faiman with typhoid germs. All germs shipped from the department's laboratory in the period in question had passed through his hands.

After a long conference with Judge Olson, during which he did not waver in his denial, Hoerger was taken to the office of the state's attorney, where he was confronted by John Campbell, an attorney for distant relatives of young McClintock, who are seeking to break the young millionaire's will.

Campbell told Hoerger that he could produce two witnesses who would swear that Hoerger told them he supplied Faiman with typhoid germs. Hoerger defied him to do so.

Meanwhile William Scott Stewart made the first move in his fourth attempt to secure the release on bonds of William D. Shepherd, who is confined in the county jail. Stewart filed with the state supreme court a brief containing two dozen legal citations attempting to prove his contention that the proof against Shepherd "is not great."

Coroner Oscar Wolff announced that the re-opening of the inquest into the death of Billy McClintock would be postponed for two weeks.

One Man Killed, Several Injured In Powder Blast

Hanover, Mass., April 7.—One man was killed, several persons were severely burned and damage estimated at more than $50,000 was caused today when a spark from a new powder mixing machine ignited hundreds of pounds of black gun powder at the plant of the National Fire Works company, here. A score of small buildings used as mixing sheds were destroyed. The four larger buildings of the plant were saved.

The charred body of Maynard Goodwin, of Hanover, an expert in explosives, was found near the site of a shed in which the first explosion occurred.

The new machine, which was being tested at the plant for the first time, was blown into fragments. Officials of the company said that more than 2,000 pounds of black gun powder was in the little building at the time.

The plant, situated on a wooded tract in North Hanover, consists of several hundred small buildings.

The trees and brush caught fire from the explosions and it was with the greatest difficulty that a force of 150 firemen fought the flames away from the powder magazine and the shipping department in which were stored hundreds of tons of finished product.

Where Are the Ads of Yesterday?

Gone—with the snows of yesterday—of which the poets sing, and the straw hats of the summer before last.

Constitution ads disappear so quickly because they get such quick results. Reader-power.

Mrs. T. A. Selman, 15 Gordon avenue, advertised light housekeeping rooms for rent for three days and had several applicants who were desirous of renting the apartment. It was rented immediaetly, of course, that's why her ad vanished so suddenly.

Business Takes Romance Place In Crime World

Chicago, April 7.—The white plume of romance has been stripped from the hat of the underworld hero, and he stands revealed as a practical fellow with commercial instincts deep rooted in a complex nature. Despite all the glamour and legend that has sprung up about him, he has his own stenographer to do his stenographic work, and when the need arises he can punch an adding machine as well as a nose.

This unsuspected phase of his nature was revealed by a squad of hard-boiled detectives during a raid on an office in a skyscraper on Michigan Boulevard. Detectives say this office is the headquarters of Chicago's crime syndicate, an organization doing a business in booze, vice and bribery. The profits last month were $75,000.

Pretentious Office.

The office itself was a pretentious affair. There were large and shiny desks, polished floors and draped windows. When the detectives rushed in, stenographers were taking dictation, clerks pored over books and typewriters clicked. The comprehensiveness of the auditing system would have tickled the heart of any efficiency expert.

It was when the books were examined Tuesday that romance hung her head and sneaked out of the confines of the underworld. They showed that such vice lords as Johnny Torrio, "Scarface" Al Capone and Jack Cusick had achieved the ultimate in the distribution of booze and the management of disorderly houses.

These books, ledgers and memorandum accounts will be turned over to the government. They reveal how much was distributed in bribes, how booze is delivered to Chicago. There are items showing the cost systems in disorderly houses; details of the efficient management of four great breweries; and the payrolls of booze runners, gambling house bouncers and bartenders.

Patrons of Syndicate.

And there is one book containing the names of several hundred well-known Chicagoans and several large hotels, all patrons of the syndicate. A large cupboard in the office disclosed a row of bottles, containing samples of the various grades of booze for sale.

Eight men were arrested. When searched they each had from $500 to $15,000 in their pockets, and detectives advanced the theory that it was pay day for some branch of the syndicate. One of the men arrested was Johnny Patton, late mayor of Burnham, Ind., who has been charged with operating a vice resort here. The other men have police records.

Patton offered $5,000 if the officers would forget the bookkeeping system.

"It will be useless to you, anyway," he argued.

OFFICIALS PROBE CAUSE OF BLAZE IN VACANT HOME

Flames believed to have been of incendiary origin caused considerable damage Tuesday night about 9 o'clock to a vacant house located at 724 Highland avenue. The blaze is said to have originated near the second floor, on the staircase, and will be investigated.

T. S. Page who lives across the street from the house, told police that he saw a young man rush from the vacant house shortly before the building was discovered in flames.

Slight damage was caused by flames to the residence of T. H. Tollerson, 339 Peeples street, Tuesday night about 9:30 o'clock. The fire is said to have been caused by the placing of hot curling irons on a bed, the bed clothing becoming ignited.

SIX PERSONS HURT IN CRASH SERIES

With an ugly wound on the back of her head and severe bruises about the body, Mrs. Rose Bloomberg, 50, of 132 Pulliam street, was rushed to the Grady hospital Tuesday afternoon, following an automobile accident at Piedmont avenue and Decatur street.

Surgeons who examined Mrs. Bloomberg were not certain late Tuesday night as to the extent of her injuries. They reported the X-ray examination for a fractured skull showed negative results, but they fear some blood vessels of the brain were ruptured from the impact of her head on the pavement.

The machine that figured in the accident was a taxicab and was driven by W. L. Goodrich, of 128 Luckie street. Goodrich picked up Mrs. Bloomberg and carried her to the hospital.

At the hospital Goodrich stated that he was going west on Decatur street, at a moderate speed, and that Mrs. Bloomberg was crossing on Piedmont avenue, from the north to the south side of Decatur street.

"I blew my horn and she paused as though she heard it, and as I continued to approach, she started suddenly toward the front of my car. I cut to the left as far as possible, but she walked on into the rear of my right fender," Goodrich said.

No report of the accident has been filed at police station.

Eugene Vinson, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Vinson, of 259 Glenn street, was knocked down Tuesday night by a car driven by Mrs. H. G. White, who lives near Decatur, at the intersection of Georgia avenue and Pryor streets. Injuries were slight and no case was made against the driver.

Annie Lou Jenkins, 9, of 213 West Pine street, was carried to Grady hospital Tuesday night with a badly bruised knee and head, received when knocked down by a negro messenger boy, John Brown, on Marietta street, near Pine street. Call Officers Goode and Bullard investigated the case and at the request of Mrs. Jenkins, who was with her daughter at the time of the accident, a case of reckless driving was made against Brown.

After striking a brick protruding from the pavement on State street, the car driven by C. E. Williams mounted the curb and struck a telephone pole, hurling Williams against the windshield. He was carried to Grady hospital and upon examination physicians stated his injuries were not serious. A case of reckless driving was docketed against him at police headquarters.

In the car with Williams were J. R. Dixon and W. C. Wallace, who live on Crooked road. They received only slight bruises. Call Officers Williams and McDaniel investigated the case.

Edgar Howard, 13, of 83 McDaniel street, received severe bruises about the arms when he attempted to crank a small automobile near the residence Tuesday night.

Sam Nelson, a negro, who resides on Bates avenue, was shaken up when a street car collided with a wagon on which he was riding Tuesday night, near the intersection of Highland and Cleburne avenues. Motorcycle Officers Schelling and Pettes, who investigated the case, were told that the mule became frightened and backed the wagon into the path of the car.

Wealthy Gotham Man And Florida Citizen Drowned in High Seas

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 7.—Fred S. Hunt, said to be a wealthy chemist of Water Street, New York City, 70 years old, and Jesse M. McCarley, 30, of Stuart, Fla., 40 miles north of here, were drowned near Stuart this afternoon when rough seas broke about McCarley's 28-foot cabin cruiser in which he and Hunt were returning from a fishing trip in the ocean.

The drowning occurred on the bar of the Stuart inlet following a series of gigantic breakers. Whether the waves washed both men overboard or if one lost his life in attempting to save the other is unknown.

The body of Hunt late this afternoon washed ashore five miles south of Stuart and was taken to Miami tonight. He is said to have a stepson living in Paris.

Tonight scores of bonfires and hundreds of men are lining the beach from Stuart, watching for McCarley's body. McCarley was a business man of Stuart and leaves a wife and two children.

RUSSIA TO DOUBLE ITS POWER SUPPLY

Washington, April 7.—Soviet Russia has completed the first step of its program designed ultimately to double its present supply of electric power, the Russian information bureau announced today, quoting advices from Moscow that existing power plants had been restored to full capacity of about 1,500,000 kilowatts.

Seven regional power stations are to be established, it was added, with provisions already made for expenditures totaling $70,000,000 by October.

A Word of Comfort.

Latter Day Saints Torn With Strife At Convention

Independence, Mo., April 7.—Internal strife has torn the ranks of the reorganized church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and complete disorganization is threatened.

Precept—as taught by Joseph Smith, founder of the church—is aligned against incipient modernism, the general conference here Tuesday developed, and only allegiance to one or the other can preserve the church from a serious split.

Already bitterly divided over church government, the conference was thrown into an uproar when President Frederick M. Smith, church prophet and grandson of the founder, asked that supreme directional control of the church be vested in him.

At the same time—adhering to his grandfather's teaching — Frederick Smith submitted a document providing that the church's policies be subject to review by the conference.

Smith's pronouncement, in reality a request for a vote of confidence, caught the 1,200 delegates unawares, and immediately faction flames were engendered.

"Acceptance of my manifesto will preserve harmony in our organization."

Scores of delegates, led by E. S. Long, Smith's chief antagonist, leaped to their feet.

"We want no dictator," Long shouted. "We have never had one despite precept. I hate autocracy. I despise Mormonism, and I am unalterably opposed to President Smith's proposals."

DR. ESKRIDGE TALKS TO LOCAL DRUGGISTS

An address by Dr. Frank S. Eskridge and discussion concerning the publication of a druggist magazine featured a meeting Tuesday night of the Georgia Association of Registered Druggists, held in assembly hall No. 2, Chamber of Commerce building.

Dr. Eskridge, spoke on "Pharmacy as the Maiden of Medicine," and portrayed pharmacy as the "right hand of the physician," with which cases could be either won or lost. He emphasized that "expert pharmacists were keys to welfare of the public and that there should be certain restrictions regarding entrance to this profession by men who were not thoroughly familiar with all phases of medicine." The speaker was introduced by Dr. E. W. Aldridge.

Copies of a proposed bill to be introduced in the coming session of the legislature were distributed by Dr. Orville R. Rogers, secretary of the organization.

E. L. Brandis made a brief address concerning the fostering of an association magazine for druggists and told of the success achieved by a Virginia publication. T. C. Marshall also made a few brief remarks to the assembly.

The following new members were admitted: W. B. Pope, O. W. Tucker, F. D. McCrae, Henry R. Darden, Roderick Turner of Decatur and W. A. Chambers. L. P. Gibson, Jr., a member of the student auxiliary also was admitted to membership.
